INTRODUCTION.

In presenting to the public the "Gazetteer and Business Directory of Franklin and Grand Isle Counties," we desire to return our sincere thanks to all who have kindly aided in obtaining the information it contains, and rendered it possible to present it in the brief space of time in which it is essential such works should be completed. Especially are our thanks due to the editors and managers of the county papers, for the uniform kindness they have evinced in calling public attention to our efforts, and for essential aid in furnishing material for the work. We have also found valuable aid in the writings of the various authors in Miss Hemenway's "Historical Magazine;" "Thompson's Vermont;" "Deming's Vermont Officers;" Hoskin's "History of Vermont;" Hall's "Early History of Vermont;" the "Documentary History of New York;" Lanman's "Dictionary of Congress;" Palmer's "History of Lake Champlain;" "Pioneer History of the Champlain Valley;" "Letters of John A. Graham;" in the reports of the Adjutant-General and State School Superintendent; F. W. Beers & Co.'s "Atlas of Franklin and Grand Isle counties;" and also the geological reports of Hitchcock and Hagar. Our thanks are also due to the clergy throughout the counties, and to Hon. Bradley Barlow, Dr. S. S. Clark, J. W. Hobart, W. O. Gadcomb, and Dr. O. F. Fassett, of St. Albans; Rev. Father Yoinec, and Mrs. A. H. Burleson, of Fairfield; C. H. Beeman, of Fairfax; Mrs. Bradley Brigham, of Bakersfield; M. W. Rounds, of Richford; J. H. Adams, of Grand Isle, and to many others throughout the counties who have rendered valuable aid.

That errors have occurred in so great a number of names is probable, and that names have been omitted which should have been inserted is quite certain. We can only say that we have exercised more than ordinary diligence and care in this difficult and complicated feature of book-making. Of such as feel aggrieved in consequence of errors or omissions, we beg pardon, and ask the indulgence of the reader in noting such as have been observed in the subsequent reading of the proofs, and which are found in the Errata, following this Introduction.

It was designed to give a brief account of all the church and other societies in the counties, but owing, in some cases, to the negligence of those who were able to give the necessary information, and in others, to the inability of any one to do so, we have been obliged to omit special notices of a few.

We would suggest that our patrons observe and become familiar with the explanations at the commencement of the Directory. The names it embraces, and the information connected therewith, were obtained by actual canvass, and are as correct and reliable as the judgment of those from whom they were solicited render practicable. Each agent is furnished with a map of the town he is expected to canvass, and he is required to pass over every road, and call at every farm-house and place of business in the town, in order to obtain the facts from the individuals concerned wherever possible.

The margins have been left broad to enable any one to note changes opposite the names.

The Advertisers represent many of the leading firms and business men of these and other counties, and we most cheerfully commend them to the patronage of those under whose observation these pages may come.

We take this occasion to express the hope that the information found in this book, will not prove devoid of interest and value, though we are fully conscious that the brief history of the counties the scope of the work enables us to give, is by no means an exhaustive one, and can only hope that it may prove a nucleus and incentive to future historians, who will be the better able to do full justice to the subject.

While thanking our patrons and friends generally, for the cordiality with which our efforts have been seconded, we leave the work to secure that favor which earnest endeavor ever wins from a discriminating public, hoping they will bear in mind, should errors be noted, that "he who expects a perfect work to see, expects what ne'er was, is, nor yet shall be."

FRANKLIN COUNTY, VT.

NO State in the Union, probably, equals Vermont in scenic beauty, and none can approach it in point of historical interest. Nearly every mountain, river, and lake, throughout its entire length and breadth, has clustered about its name a wealth of historical lore, over which the muse of history loves to linger—traditions that have inspired the pen of the poet, novelist, and historian, to works of rare grace and beauty. Vermont's sons, too, from the first who broke the solitude of her forests, and through a double revolution brought into existence the sovereign and independent State, have carved for themselves a name in the annals of fame that shall be as lasting as the hills for whose possession they fought. It is our purpose in this volume, not to give a full and detailed history of the whole, nor even a part of this beautiful country, but to place on record, in a continuous form, the principal events connected with the history of two of its fourteen counties—Franklin and Grand Isle; to trace in outline the lives of a few of those hardy ones who braved the vicissitudes of pioneer life that their posterity, the present and future generations, might enjoy the fruits of their toil; to trace the erection of each one of the townships therein, to enquire into the proceedings of their first inhabitants, to hand down to future generations the names and occupations of all their present residents, and to attempt to portray the beauties which nature has lavished so bountifully upon them. To accomplish this task it becomes necessary to first glance at the history of the State in general, to enquire into the causes that brought it into existence, and to briefly notice its progress from the first settlement of its territory by civilized people to the time of its admission as a member of the Federal Union.

Our country, unlike most nations, has a complete history. The organization of the government and the commencement of her progress bear date from a definite period, and are not shrouded in mythological darkness or the mists of tradition. It is now a little less than four centuries since the world was startled by the discoveries of Columbus, and during that time the vast wilderness has been transformed into one of the proudest nations on the globe. Subsequent to the discoveries of Columbus came those of the English, in 1497, followed, during the same same year, by the Portuguese, then by the Spanish, in 1506, and finally by the French, in 1524. The English, on the ground of the discoveries of the Cabots, claimed the territory from Labrador to Florida, to which they gave the name Virginia. But their explorations were confined principally to the coast between Maine and Albatraz Sound. The French confined their explorations principally to the country north of this, bordering on the St. Lawrence river and its tributaries, to which they gave the name of New France, while the Dutch, by virtue of the discoveries by Hudson, afterwards laid claim to the country between Cape Cod and the Delaware river, which they called New Netherlands.

France and England, long enemies in the Old World, transplanted their rivalries and jealousies to the New Continent, and years of warfare between these great powers followed. Attempts at colonization were made by England during the reign of Elizabeth, but they proved abortive, and it was not until the Tudor dynasty had passed away, and several years of the reign of James I., the first of the Stuarts, had elapsed, before the Anglo-Saxon gained any permanent foothold. Stimulated by the spirit of rivalry with the French, England pushed her explorations and discoveries, while France, from her first colony on the St. Lawrence, had explored the vast region from the great lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, and established among the savages missions and trading posts, first in the forests of Canada, then in the West, and finally in New York, and the territory included within the present limits of Vermont. The first of the hostilities, which are now known as the French wars, began with William's accession to the throne of England, in 1609. This was terminated in the peace of Ryswic, in 1697. Queen Anne's war, so called, came next, commencing in 1702, and terminating in the peace of Utrecht, in 1713. The third controversy was declared by George II., in 1744, and continued until the preliminaries of peace were signed, at Aix-la-Chapelle, in 1748. The last conflict was formally declared by Great Britain, in 1756, and terminated by the capture of Montreal, in September, 1760, when the whole of New France was surrendered to Great Britain.

During the progress of these wars, the territory of the present State of Vermont was often crossed by both armies, and a few settlements sprang up, the first, in 1665, being on Isle La Motte, where a fort was erected by Captain De La Motte, under command of M. De Tracy, governor of New France. In 1690, Captain De Narm, with a party from Albany, N. Y., established an outpost in the present town of Addison, at Chimney Point, where he erected a small stone fort. The first permanent settlement, however, was made at Brattleboro, in 1724, when Fort Dummer was built. For six or seven years the garrison of this fort were the only white inhabitants. In 1730 or 1731, the French built a fort at Chimney Point, and a considerable population settled in the vicinity. In 1739, a few persons settled in Westminster, and about the same time a small French settlement was begun at Alburgh, on what is now called Windmill Point, but was soon abandoned. The colony at Westminster increased but slowly, and in 1754, the whole population, alarmed by the Indian attack upon Charlestown, N. H., deserted their homes. Forts were built, and small settlements were commenced in several other places, but fear of the Indians prevented any large emigration till after the last French war, when, the Province of Canada being then ceded to Great Britain, the fear of hostile incursions subsided, and the population rapidly increased.

In the meantime, grants of land lying within the present limits of the State, had been made by the Dutch, at Albany, by the French, and by the colonies of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and New York, and each claimed jurisdiction over them. All of these claims, except that of New York, however, were relinquished without much controversy, of which more will be spoken on another page. So eagerly were the lands sought by adventurers, speculators, and settlers, that in a single year subsequent to 1760, Governor Wentworth, of New Hampshire, granted in the name of King George III., not less than sixty townships of six miles square, and in two years more the number of such grants amounted to 138. The territory now began to be known by the name of "The New Hampshire Grants," and the number of actual settlers soon became quite large. The affairs of the settlers were managed by committees in the several towns, who met in general convention, when occasion required, to provide for the common defence and welfare. The decrees of these conventions were regarded as law, and violations of them were punished with extreme severity. While the Revolutionary war was in progress, the land controversy was suspended, and all efforts were directed towards the common enemy. But soon after the war broke out, it became apparent that the settlers of the New Hampshire Grants needed some better organization than was possible by means of committees and conventions. Early in 1776, a convention was held at Dorset, and an address to Congress was prepared, declaring the unwillingness of settlers to be regarded as subjects of New York. This was not favorably received by congress, whereupon the more resolute of the people determined to assume the powers of an independent State, and risk the consequences. Another convention was held at Dorset, in June, and met again by adjournment in September, when such measures were taken that at a convention held in Westminster it was decided, on the 16th of January, 1777, that the following declaration should be adopted:—

"This convention, whose members are duly chosen by the free voice of their constituents in the several towns, on the New Hampshire Grants, in public meeting assembled, in our own names, and in behalf of our constituents, do hereby proclaim and publicly declare, that the district of territory comprehending and usually known by the name and description of the New Hampshire Grants, of right ought to be, and is hereby declared forever hereafter to be considered, as a free and independent jurisdiction or State, by the name and forever hereafter to be called, known, and distinguished by the name of

New Connecticut, alias Vermont: and that the inhabitants that at present are, or may hereafter become resident, either by procreation or emigration, within said territory, shall be entitled to the same privileges, immunities, and enfranchisements, as are allowed; and on such condition, and in the same manner, as the present inhabitants, in future, shall or may enjoy; which are, and forever shall be considered to be such privileges and immunities to the free citizens and denizens, as are, or, at any time hereafter, may be allowed, to any such inhabitants, of any of the free and independent States of America: And that such privileges and immunities shall be regulated in a bill of right and by a form of government, to be established at the next adjourned session of this convention."

The controversy between Vermont and New York had encouraged the British to make some concessions towards the former, hoping to retain their allegiance; and it is well known that many of the settlers remained inactive during the latter part of the war, on account of these negotiations. It was openly avowed that any alternative would be preferable to the detested jurisdiction of New York. Still Vermont persisted in the right to maintain her own laws, and as persistently did New York and New Hampshire maintain the right of jurisdiction. Congress was not yet willing to admit Vermont as a State, and she, disgusted with these delays, at length lost respect for the continental congress, pursuing her independence, and asking no favors; enjoying no benefits of the Union, and sharing none of her burdens. But upon application, Vermont was admitted to the Union during the second session of congress, March 4, 1791, with the full rights and privileges of an independent State. Such is a brief outline of the history of the Green Mountain State, a territory that has rightly been called the "classic ground of America."

Franklin county, as now constituted, once formed a part of the original counties of Albany, Charlotte, Bennington, Rutland, Addison, and Chittenden. The old Dutch county of Albany, with Albany, N. Y., as its capitol, extended north to the Province line. During the controversy between New York and the New Hampshire grantees, numerous writs of ejectment, executions, and other legal processes were issued out of, and made returnable to the courts at Albany, and were served, or at least were attempted to be served, by the sheriffs of that place. On March 12, 1772, New York, in order "that offenders may be brought to justice, and creditors may recover their just dues," proceeded to set off from Albany and erect a new county, called Charlotte, on the western side of the mountains. Skenesboro, now Whitehall, was made the shire town, and Philip Skene appointed chief judge of the court of common pleas. After the organization of the State, however, on February of 11, 1779, Vermont was divided into two counties, the Green Mountains forming the dividing line, the portion on the east being called Cumberland, and that on the west Bennington county. Each county was divided into two shires, that on the east into Westminster and Newbury, and Bennington and Rutland on the west. This division of counties remained till the extra session of the legislature, in February, 1781, when the county of Rutland was incorporated from Bennington, and Windsor and Orange counties were incorporated from Cumberland, and the name of Cumberland altered to Windham. Rutland county in turn extended through to the northern line of the State, for a period of four years, eight months and five days, during which time courts were held at Tinmouth. The State, then, on October 18, 1785, dismembered the old county, incorporating from it a new one, called Addison, and made the towns of Addison and Colchester half shires. Chittenden county was then in turn set off from Addison, October 22, 1787, and November 5, 1792, Franklin county was incorporated, the limits being fixed as follows:—

“Beginning at the northwest corner of Chittenden county, thence easterly on the northerly line of Chittenden county to the southeast corner of Sterling; from thence northerly on the easterly line of the towns of Sterling, Johnson, Belvidere, Avery's Gore, Montgomery, and Richford, to the north line of the State; from thence westerly on the line of the State to the west line thereof; from thence southerly on the west line of the State, to place of beginning.”

In November, 1802, the general assembly passed an act by which the towns of Alburgh, Isle La Motte and North Hero, in the county of Franklin, and the towns of South Hero and Middle Hero, in the county of Chittenden, together with all such lands as lie in the State, near the above mentioned towns, and more than a mile from the main land in the counties of Chittenden and Franklin, were constituted into a county by the name of Grand Isle. In October, 1835, Franklin county was again circumscribed in its limits by taking from it the towns of Belvidere, Cambridge, Johnson, and Sterling, towards forming the county of Lamoille, other than which no changes have been made in its limits.

Franklin county lies between lat. $44^{\circ} 31'$ and $45^{\circ} 0'$, and between longitude $3^{\circ} 47'$ and $4^{\circ} 27'$, extending about thirty-four miles from east to west, and about thirty-three miles from north to south, containing an area of 600 square miles, and has a population of 30,114. It comprises within its limits the towns of Bakersfield, Berkshire, Enosburgh, Fairfax, Fairfield, Fletcher, Franklin, Georgia, Highgate, Montgomery, Richford, Sheldon, St. Albans, Swanton, and Avery's Gore, and is bounded on the north by the Province line, east by the counties of Orleans and Lamoille, south by Chittenden and Lamoille, and west by Grand Isle county, from which it is separated by a portion of the waters of Lake Champlain.

In surface it is varied enough to form a most pleasing landscape, yet contains little waste land in mountains, lakes and rivers. The eastern part of the territory is broken and rocky, extending up upon the western range of the Green Mountains, while the western portion is comparatively level, and contains some of the finest farming lands to be found in the State. Manufactures are carried on to some extent, yet agricultural pursuits form the principal occupation of the inhabitants. The county is especially noted for its fine herds and flocks of cattle, horses and sheep, and for its large production of butter and cheese. Indeed, the whole county, possessing wonderfully pleasing scenery in itself, and surrounded by the most wonderful beauties of nature, and containing natural advantages and facilities for water and railroad transportation, is all in all a most desirable home for both the manufacturer and the farmer. Numerous streams of minor importance are distributed over its surface, affording ample irrigation to the soil, but the Missisquoi and Lamoille rivers are the largest streams, and form the principal water courses of the territory.

The Missisquoi river was named by the Indians, and said to mean "much water-fowl." It rises in Lowell, Orleans county, and, pursuing a northeasterly course through a part of Westfield and Troy, crosses the northern line of the State into Canada, where it receives a large stream from the northeast. After running several miles in Canada, it returns into Vermont about a mile west from the northeast corner of Richford. Thence it runs southwesterly through the corner of Berkshire, where it receives Trout river, into Enosburgh. It then takes a westerly course through Sheldon, into Highgate, where it bends to the south into Swanton, and, after performing a circuit of several miles in that town, forms the boundary line between it and Highgate, and, flowing northwesterly, falls into Missisquoi bay near the Canada line. There are several falls and rapids in the stream, but the current is generally moderate and the river wide and shallow. It affords a considerable number of valuable sites for mills, while its valley is very fertile and productive. Its whole length, including its windings, is about seventy-five miles, and it receives the water from about 582 square miles of territory.

The Lamoille river is somewhat smaller than the Missisquoi. It rises in Greensboro, Orleans county, from the union of several small streams, flows southwest to Hardwick, when it turns northwesterly, passes through the center of Lamoille county, entering Franklin county in the southern part of Fletcher, crosses Fairfax and a portion of Georgia, and thence turns south into Milton, where it empties into Lake Champlain. It was discovered by Champlain, in 1609, and called by him La Mouette, the French for mew, or gull, a species of water-fowl, which were very numerous about the mouth of the stream. In Anger's map of his surveys, in 1732, it is called La Riviere a La Mouelle, probably a mistake on the part of the engraver in not crossing his l's. "Thus," says Mr. Thompson, "to the mere carelessness of a French engraver are we indebted for the smooth, melodious sounding name of Lamoille."

Several inland lakes, or ponds, are scattered over the surface of the county, of which Franklin pond, in Franklin, is the largest. The others are Fairfield pond, in Fairfield, Proper and Cutler's ponds in Highgate, and Metcalf and Halfmoon ponds, in Fletcher.

GEOLOGICAL.

The geological formation of this county does not materially differ, in general structure, from that of most of the other counties of the State. Its rocks are distributed, like those of the others, in parallel ledges, or ranges, extending nearly in a north and south direction. Passing eastward from the shore of the lake, one finds an immense bed of Hudson River slates, extending through the western portion of St. Albans, Swanton and Highgate, whence it extends into Canada. Lithologically, it consists of deposits of pure and impure limestone, clay slate, calcareous slate, interstratified with small beds of limestone, often sparry, silicious slate, sandstones, brecciated limestone, and slate filled with veins of calcite, etc. The group is 930 feet in thickness, and is the highest member of the lower silurian rocks.

The lake shore of the southern part of the country overlies a great vein of red sandrock, a continuation of the range in Chittenden county. It has a mean width of about three miles, and extends through the towns of Georgia, St. Albans, Swanton and Highgate. Stratigraphically considered, this bed occupies the position of the Medina group, of New York, or its equivalent, the Levant series of Pennsylvania and Virginia. The sandstones and shales bear a close resemblance to those of the latter, not in color, but in the profusion of fucoid-like markings which they display on some of the parting surfaces. The series of reddish and gray limestones which rest upon these massive arenaceous beds form an interesting feature in the geology of Vermont. Their alteration with layers of sandstone and shale, and their frequently reddish tint, would lead one to regard them as a continuation of the lower mass under somewhat new formative conditions. The whole formation, however, embraces a great variety of rocks, and there is some difficulty experienced in associating them together, because of the general absence of fossils.

Between these two formations there is a narrow bed of Hudson river limestone, extending from the head of St. Albans bay to the Canada line, which contains much valuable building material, and an abundant supply for the manufacture of lime. This deposit is also cut by a small bed of Trenton limestone, which extends into Highgate from Canada. The former deposit has been worked to some extent, especially in Swanton, as a variety of marble.

Parallel with and adjacent to the red sandrock range, there is a bed of Georgia slates, some five miles in width and extending through the towns of Georgia, St. Albans, Swanton, Highgate and Franklin. The group of rocks forming this structure receives its name from the town of Georgia, where it is developed in its full proportions, and where the most interesting fossils have been found. In Rutland county the slate is manufactured quite extensively for roofing purposes and for various articles of furniture; but in this county no quarries have been opened.

Next in order is found a vein of quartz rock, extending from Chittenden county through portions of the towns of Georgia, Fairfax, Fairfield, St. Albans, Swanton, Sheldon, Highgate and Franklin, and adjacent to which is a large bed of talcose conglomerate extending the whole length of the county. This latter rock, according to Professor Adams, in his report of 1845, was called magnesian slate; but later its present name was considered more appropriate, and consequently adopted. The vein is a purely conglomerate species, having associated together in its formation the following varieties of rock: sandstones, breccias, quartz rock, calcareous rocks, novaculite schist, talcose schist, and coarse conglomerates. The sandstones are few, while the quartz variety is quite abundant. No estimate of the thickness of the rock has been made, but it is known to be 2,000 or 3,000 feet thick at the least calculation.

The rocks underlying the residue of the county are of talcose schist formation. Talcose schist proper consists of quartz and talc; but with this bed there are associated together, as integral parts of the formation, clay slate, with plumbaginous, aluminous, and pyritiferous varieties, hornblend schist, gneiss, quartz rock, sandstone and conglomerates, limestone and almites. Two quite extensive beds of pure gneiss and clay slate are found in the vein also. Iron and copper ores have been discovered in several localities throughout the county, and will be found noted in connection with the several towns wherein the deposits are found.

STAPLE PRODUCTIONS.

The whole of the county is an uncommonly fine farming territory, with a soil varying from clay and gravel to the finest alluvial deposits, and well adapted to grazing purposes, and the manufacture of butter and cheese. Considerable attention is given to raising fine bred cattle, horses, and sheep. Several flocks of Spanish Merinos are bred that will compare favorably with any in the State. Some idea of the extent of the products may be formed from the following statistics, taken from the census reports of 1870, though the reports for 1880, when tabulated, will doubtless show a material change in many of the figures. During that year there were 276,963 acres of improved land in the county, while the farms were valued at $16,663,493.00, and produced 49,431 bushels of wheat, 5,857 bushels of rye, 116,826 bushels of Indian corn, 308,587 bushels of oats, 14,275 bushels of barley, 13,793 bushels of buckwheat, and 335,122 bushels of potatoes. There were also 6,025 horses, 27,624 milch cows, 13,777 working oxen, 20,054 sheep, and 4,564 hogs. From the milk of the cows was manufactured 2,984,520 pounds of butter, and 510,226 pounds of cheese, more than any other county in the State, while the sheep yielded 92,178 pounds of wool.

The breeding of Spanish Merino sheep, for which Vermont is so justly celebrated, is conducted to a considerable extent, and with great success, in both Franklin and Grand Isle counties, though they do not possess so many valuable flocks as some of the other counties of the State. Their natural resources are favorable to the culture, and they will undoubtedly one day be noted in this respect.

Both the Spanish and French Merino families are reckoned among the finest in the world. Their wool is fine, long, soft, and twisted in silky spiral ringlets, purely white in color, though naturally so oily that the fleece appears dingy and unclean from the dust and dirt adhering to the outside. Both these breeds were introduced into America during the present century, the Spanish by Hon. David Humphreys, Minister to the Court of Madrid, in 1802, and the French by Mr. Taintor, of Hartford, Conn., in 1846. It is asserted by some, however, that three Spanish Merinos were brought to Boston in 1793, by William Foster, but were not preserved for breeding purposes. Since then, the names of Atwood, Jarvis, Hammond, Sanford, Stickney and others have become famous as breeders of this stock, and descendants of their flocks are now owned by breeders in these counties. There are two associations for the registry of Merino sheep, having their offices in Middlebury, Vt., the Vermont Atwood Merino Sheep Club, with Worthington C. Smith, of St. Albans, president, and the Merino Sheep Breeders' Association, E. N. Bissell, of Shoreham, Vt., president.

Our limited space does not admit of particular mention of the prominent breeders of this section, except as incorporated in the directory portion of the work, though it would be an interesting task to do so.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Franklin County Agricultural Society, the object of which was "the improvement of agricultural productions, useful domestic animals, domestic manufactures and agricultural implements," was organized at St. Albans, September 13, 1844. Eleazer Jewett, of St. Albans, was chosen president; Michael F. Palmer, of St. Albans, vice-president; Charles W. Rich, of Swanton, secretary; and Alfred H. Huntington, of St. Albans, treasurer. The first annual fair was held on the public green, at St. Albans, September 25, 1845, when the sum of $169.00, received from the State, was awarded in premiums. From this time forward fairs were held each year, until 1861, when none were held until 1866. The society was then reorganized as the Franklin County Agricultural and Mechanical Society, with R. J. Saxe, president; Dr. R. Potter, and H. D. Farrar, vice-presidents; and L. H. Hapgood, secretary. Since that time fairs have been held at Sheldon.

The fair ground contains thirteen acres, located at the junction of the St. J. & L. C. R. R. and the Missisquoi river, conveniently arranged for the purposes for which it is intended, and furnished with all appropriate buildings, etc. The society is now in a flourishing condition, with a reserve fund in its treasury. The present secretary, Mr. J. H. Stufflebean, who has held the office for the past thirteen years, has labored hard for the success of the society, and has done much to sustain its standing. Aside from three directors from each town, the present list of officers is as follows:—

Gardner I. Fassett, of Enosburgh, president; S. A. Riden, of East Fletcher, and W. H. McAllister, of West Enosburgh, vice-presidents; J. H. Stufflebean, of East Sheldon, secretary; S. B. H. Stufflebean, of Sheldon, assistant secretary; Daniel B. Stetson, of Enosburgh Falls, treasurer; Charles H. Whittemore, of Olmstead Falls, assistant treasurer; Benjamin C. Gallup, of North Sheldon, general superintendent; and John F. Draper, of Sheldon, marshal.

 MEDICAL SOCIETY.

The Franklin County Medical Society was incorporated by an act of the legislature, at an adjourned meeting held at Windsor, in January, 1804, under the head of "The Third Medical Society of Vermont," and embraced the counties of Franklin and Chittenden.

The following named physicians were enrolled in the act of incorporation: John Pomeroy, Benjamin Chandler, Joseph D. Farnsworth, Nathaniel Wilson, Truman Powell, David Tracy, Ephraim Little, Julius Hoyt, and Horatio Powell, and were given all the powers of an incorporate body, to transact business, sue or be sued, etc., and to hold property to the amount of two thousand dollars, in the interest of the society, and their successors in office to be empowered with the same rights and privileges. This act required "the above named physicians to meet at the court-house in St. Albans, on the second Tuesday of May next," but failing to print the act in time to give due notice, there was no meeting held; but at the next session of the legislature, held at Rutland, in October, 1804, a subsequent act was passed, requiring them to meet at the same place, viz: "The court-house in St. Albans, the first Tuesday of January next, and the proceedings of this meeting should be valid, as if met on the first mentioned time." Pursuant to the tenor of this act, the above named physicians convened and organized the Third Medical Society of the State of Vermont, and continued to hold their meetings at various places, semi-annually, until October, 1813, when the legislature passed an act to incorporate the State Medical Society, and a society in each of the counties of the State, and at which time Chittenden county withdrew, and formed a society under the name of their own county.

The Franklin county society has continued to hold its sessions twice a year, ever since, with more or less enthusiasm. For several years after its organization, the society was in the habit of examining physicians and granting licenses to those found qualified to practice the science of medicine. At this time there were few schools in this country, and not to exceed eight in America. The students of that day were not rich in this world's goods, and but a few were able to attend lectures in Boston or Philadelphia. They were, however, men of vigorous constitutions and energetic habits, able to sit in a saddle and journey over the rough roads during the whole twenty-four hours of a day, if need be.

The society at present is in a flourishing condition, numbering about forty members, all graduates from some accredited school or college. They early adopted the code of ethics of the American Medical Association, and endeavor to live up to the requirements and spirit of it. This society has never been allowed to abase its meetings into that of a mere trades-union for individual emoluments or pecuniary gain, but has steadily kept the faith first implanted within it, viz: "progress in the healing art." The present officers of the society are G. S. Goodrich, M. D., of West Berkshire, president; R. E. Welch, M. D., of Franklin, vice-president; S. S. Clark, M. D., of St. Albans, secretary.

MANUFACTURES.

The manufacturing interests are spoken of in detail in connection with the sketches of the several towns, so it would be a needless repetition to give the subject more than a passing glance at this point. The principal manufactures are lumber, in all its various branches, machinery, railroad iron, patent medicines, etc., while marble, lime, woolen cloth, etc., are manufactured to some extent. According to the United States census report of 1870, the county had 213 manufacturing establishments, operated by thirteen steam engines and 109 water-wheels, giving employment to 1,133 persons. There were $411,518.00 invested in manufactures, while the manufactured products were valued at $1,802,849.00.

COURTS AND COUNTY BUILDINGS.

At the organization of the county, St. Albans was chosen the shire town, where the supreme court meets on the first Monday after the second Tuesday in January, and the county court meets on the second Tuesday in April and September. The whole county constitutes a probate district. Ebenezer Marvin, was the first chief judge of the county. The house now occupied by Romeo H. Hoyt was built by Silas Hathaway, in 1794, and used by him as a tavern, and for a time the courts were held in its hall. The first court-house was originally built of wood, but finally bricked up. It was used for many years, by different denominations, for public worship, and by the town of St. Albans for its town meetings, commencing May 9, 1803. In 1872, the old court-house, built in 1830, was torn down, and the present commodious edifice erected upon its site, on the east side of the park. It is built of brick, with granite foundations. The first floor contains the offices of the county clerk, and grand and petit jurors' rooms, while the second floor contains the court room, judges' office, and jury and county committee rooms. The building is a substantial one, and though not yet entirely completed, has had $50,000.00 expended upon it.

In 1796, William Coit built a large house near the present site of the Congregational church, in the back part of which the first jail of the county was situated. The second, known as "the old basswood jail," was erected in 1800, on what is now Bank street. The third jail was built in 1810, on the corner where the Episcopal church now stands. This was destroyed by fire December 25, 1813, and rebuilt the year following. The fourth was erected on the site of the present jail, in 1824, and was burned in March, 1827. A prisoner confined in the debtor's room, came near being destroyed with the building. The flames had made such progress before being discovered that the door of his cell could not be reached, and he was rescued, with some difficulty, through an opening made in the roof. The present jail was erected in 1852.

The first trial in the county was during Jesse Welden's early settlement here. An improvident settler stole a quantity of corn from him, and was tried and sentenced to receive thirty-nine lashes. In the year 1820, the first and only execution in the county took place at St. Albans. This was the hanging of Luther Virginia, for the murder of Rufus W. Jackson, in the town of Highgate, November 14, 1819. Virginia was a young colored man of intemperate and dishonest habits. He had worked for Mr. Herrick, a hotel keeper at Highgate Falls, and was convicted of stealing money from the till of the bar, and was sentenced to a term in the State's prison. After the expiration of his sentence he settled in Canada near the line of Highgate. Sunday afternoon, November 4th, he came to Herrick's, partially intoxicated, and demanded liquor. This being denied him, he became quarrelsome, and had some angry words with Jackson, who was present. He was finally expelled from the house and started, as was supposed, for home. Jackson, at sunset, started on horseback to go to the northern part of the town, crossed the bridge over the Missisquoi river, and ascended the hill beyond, when he was knocked from his horse by Virginia, with a stake taken from the fence near by, and beaten to death. Virginia drew the lifeless body out of the road, and the riderless horse returned to the tavern. This created alarm for the safety of Jackson, and a party started off to search for him. The body was soon found, and Virginia was captured before morning at his home in Canada, and lodged in the jail at St. Albans. Jackson's watch was found secreted in his bed. He was convicted of wilful murder at a special session of the supreme court, December 13, 1819, and sentenced to be hung between the hours of ten in the forenoon and two o'clock, P. M., January 14th, 1820. This sentence was carried into execution by Shiveric Holmes, the sheriff of the county, in a field on the north side of Congress street, opposite Governor Smith's stock barn. Virginia attended his own funeral service at the court-house, which was conducted by Rev. Phineas Culver, who preached a sermon from Genesis ix., 6,—“Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed.” The execution was witnessed by a large concourse of people.

Although this is the only execution that ever occurred in the county, there have been several atrocious crimes committed. On Sunday, October 16, 1842, Eugene Clifford, residing in the northern part of Fairfield, murdered his wife and infant child, by drowning them in Fairfield pond. Clifford was a deserter from the British army, and had come to Fairfield, where he married Mrs. Elizabeth Gilmore, a widow, who owned a farm of some fifty acres. He had been told, and being an ignorant man probably believed, that if he outlived his wife and child this farm would be his own, and it is supposed that he then formed the purpose of bringing about their death. He invited his wife to cross the pond with him in a log canoe, and she and her infant were never seen again alive. In the course of an hour or two Clifford returned to the neighborhood of his home with the report that his wife, in the act of adjusting a shawl about her infant, had fallen from the canoe and both perished. Their bodies were recovered, but neither appeared to have a shawl about it, which excited considerable suspicion in the minds of the murderer's neighbors, who, from the first, had been loth to believe his story. A search for the missing garments was instituted, and they were at last found buried in the sand on the shore of the pond. This recovery of the shawls was rendered somewhat romantic, from the fact of their place of concealment being revealed to Mrs. Stephen Marvin in a dream. She followed the course indicated by her dream, and found the garments precisely as she had seen them in her vision. At least, such is the common tradition. Clifford was arrested, tried, convicted, and on April 21, 1843, was sentenced to be hanged one year from that date; but before the day of execution arrived he became a raving maniac, and in that condition died.

During one week in the month of July, 1874, two murders occurred in the town of St. Albans, which have since been known as the Ball murder, and the Minor murder. The former, from its peculiar atrocity and the mystery which long surrounded it, became noted throughout the whole country. The facts in the case were principally these: On the afternoon of Friday, July 24, 1874, Miss Mariette Ball, daughter of George W. Ball, of St. Albans, was brutally assaulted and murdered, in the eastern part of the town. The young lady was teaching school in the Hill district, and on this occasion was going from the school-house to the home of a friend. At a lonely, wooded spot on the highway, she was brutally assaulted and murdered, and her body dragged into the woods, where it was not found until early on the morning of the following Sunday. Several arrests were made, but no person was held for the crime, and for several years it remained a mystery. Finally, Joseph LaPage, a Frenchman, was convicted of the murder of Miss Josie Langmaid, in New Hampshire, a young school teacher who was killed under circumstances similar to those attending the death of Miss Ball, and upon the eve of his execution confessed to having also murdered Mariette Ball, thus clearing the sad mystery.

The Minor murder occurred Monday afternoon, July 20, 1874, as follows: Joseph Minor, a Frenchman, belonging in St. Susa, P. Q., arrived in St. Albans on the evening of Saturday preceding the murder, being on a journey from Holyoke, Mass., to his home in Canada. He remained over Sunday with friends, and on the afternoon of the fatal Monday was on the railroad track near Brigham's crossing, where he met two men, and for some reason was drawn into an altercation with them. They assaulted him with knives, stabbing him several times, from the effects of which he died several days after the assault. He was able to give but a meagre description of his assailants, and no clue to the perpetrators of the deed has ever been obtained.

THE POOR.

Those who from age, infirmity or otherwise, are unable to support themselves, and are so unfortunate as to be obliged to rely upon public charity for sustenance, are cared for, in conformity with the laws of the State, by the towns wherein the unfortunates reside.

INTERNAL IMPROVEMENTS.

Previous to the introduction of railroads here, the county was, in a certain sense, in a state of partial isolation. The islands composing the county of Grand Isle cut it off from the main channel of the lake, which was the great highway of travel. In early times, the merchants, and others who had occasion to visit New York city, proceeded on horseback to Troy, and thence by sloop down the Hudson. Goods were freighted from New York to Troy by sloop, forwarded by wagons to Whitehall, and thence by sailing vessels to St. Albans Bay. When a line of steamboats was established on the lake, it was only a partial benefit to the county, as, to reach them, a land journey to Burlington was necessary, that being the nearest port at which they touched. The establishment of a steam ferry to Plattsburgh, in 1828, made a connection with the through steamboats at that point; but little was gained, however, since transshipment at either point was unavoidable. The markets of Boston, and the great manufacturing regions of the East, could hardly be said to be available to the inhabitants at all, and the trade with that section, which has since attained such enormous proportions, had no existence. It may be believed, then, that the introduction of the iron sinews of the railroad into the life of the county, in 1847 and 1850, created a great innovation and marked a new era in her progress. Acres upon acres of her land are now covered by mammoth railroad buildings, and her entire territory is spanned by silver threads in a network composed of the rails of six distinct lines,—the Vermont & Canada, the Montreal & Vermont Junction, and the Missisquoi, all operated by the Central Vermont Railroad Co., and the St. Johnsbury & Lake Champlain, the Southeastern Townships, and the Canada Junction railroads, though the latter is not yet completed.

As early as 1843, the legislature granted charters to several railroad companies, among which were charters for the Rutland & Burlington, and Vermont Central railroads. A company was incorporated under the latter charter, November 1, 1843, for the purpose, and with the right of building a railroad "from some point on the eastern shore of Lake Champlain, thence up the valley of the Onion river, and extending to a point on the Connecticut river, most convenient to meet a railroad, either from Concord, N. H., or Fitchburgh, Mass., to said river." The directors of this road claimed the right to build their road across the sand-bar to South Hero, to connect with a road which had been located from Ogdensburgh to Plattsburgh, N. Y. To this the directors of the Rutland & Burlington road objected. A movement was then instituted for a charter to an independent company, to build a road from Burlington northward to effect a connection with the roads to the city of Montreal. In October, 1845, mainly through the efforts of Hon. John Smith, the charter of the Vermont & Canada railroad was granted by the legislature to Benjamin Swift, John Smith, Lawrence Brainerd, William O. Gadcomb, Victor Atwood, Abel Houghton, Gardner G. Smith, Romeo H. Hoyt, Samuel W. Keyes, Stephen E. Keyes, Timothy Foster, George

Greene, Bradley Barlow, Peter Chase, Jacob Wead, William Greene, Hiram Bellows, Homer E. Hubbell, Isaac Patrick Clark, Alvah Sabin, Joseph Clark, Albert G. Whittemore, Daniel H. Onion, Oscar A. Burton, Horace Eaton, William Clapp, Asa Owen Aldis, and their associates and successors. The route established in the charter was as follows :—

“ From some point on the Canada line, thence through the village of St. Albans to some point or points in Chittenden county, most convenient for meeting, at the village of Burlington, a railroad to be built on the route described in the act to incorporate the Champlain & Connecticut River Railroad Company, and to some point or points in Chittenden county most convenient for meeting a railroad to be built on the route described in the act to incorporate the Vermont Central Railroad Company, and with the right, and for the purpose, of extending a railroad from any point in the aforesaid route to some point on the western shore of Grand Isle county, passing across the sand-bar to South Hero, as the said company may hereafter designate.”

The project of a connection with the Ogdensburgh road, at Plattsburgh, was, from the first, regarded as very unpromising by those best acquainted with the locality. There were those who advocated the erection of a bridge from South Hero to Cumberland Head, a distance of four or five miles, and in a great depth of water. But the great majority of the people understood well that the connection could be made only by a ferry, and that, through the winter months, there could be no communication whatever, on account of ice. The village of Burlington demanded the abandonment of the project, and that the connection of the Vermont roads with the Ogdensburgh road should be made at Burlington. The directors of the Ogdensburgh road, at length, changed its location from Plattsburgh to Rouse's Point, where the channel of the lake was so narrow as to render bridging a matter of comparative ease. The attention of the public began to be strongly attracted to this new and apparently feasible route. The capitalists of Boston and other places, whose funds had hitherto been the main support of the Vermont roads, hesitated to advance further aid, except on the condition that an unbroken line of railway could be secured to the great lakes of the West. The Vermont & Canada railroad, therefore, in compliance with the statute, gave legal warning that an application would be made to the legislature for changes in their charter, which would give them the right to locate their road to the western shore of Alburgh, and build and maintain a bridge from that point to the west line of the State. A bill was accordingly introduced to the legislature, October 27, 1847, over which a contest ensued, which has few parallels in the history of the legislation of the State. The desired boon, however, was ultimately attained, though passing the house by a majority of two only.

Stock to the amount of $100,000.00 only had been taken, barely sufficient to organize the company; and so much distrust in Vermont railroads was beginning to be felt, that the great capitalists hesitated. Several wealthy railroad gentlemen of Boston had been placed on the board of directors, but they were not disposed to advance any great amount of funds, or to assume individual responsibility in the enterprise, yet it was a matter of vital importance that the work on its construction be commenced at once, else the enemies of the project might influence the legislature to repeal the act granting its amended charter. At this crisis, John Smith and Lawrence Brainerd, of St. Albans, and Joseph Clark, of Milton, decided upon a course as bold as it was ultimately successful. They proceeded to let the contract for grading and mason work to Messrs. Balch, Kearney, and Hinch, becoming personally responsible for the expense, though in prosecuting the work they were obliged to borrow about $500,000.00 on their own credit, before money was realized from subscriptions to the stock of the company. The individual credit of these gentlemen proved sufficient to float the project, until by an arrangement with the Vermont Central Company, the stock was taken and the gentlemen relieved from the hazard they had incurred.

Ground was broken early in September, 1848, in the northern part of Georgia, and the road was completed through to St. Albans, October 17, 1850, the first train passing over it on the evening of the 18th, having among its passengers the members of the legislature from Franklin county. The entire line was opened early in the summer of 1851. On November 23, 1872, the road came under the control of the Central Vermont Railroad Company, by the conditions of that company's charter, as follows:—

“Such bondholders under the first or second mortgages of the Vermont Central Railroad, and such other persons as shall hereafter become stockholders, are hereby incorporated under the name of the Central Vermont Railroad Company, for the purpose of purchasing the Vermont Central and Vermont & Canada railroads, or either of said roads, and for the purpose of purchasing or retiring by exchange or otherwise, the stock and bonds of the Vermont Central and Vermont & Canada companies, and for the purpose of operating and maintaining said roads.”

Several other roads have since been leased to this company, until it is now one of the largest in New England, with Hon. J. Gregory Smith, president; J. W. Hobart, general superintendent; J. M. Foss, assistant general superintendent; A. Arnold, superintendent central division; I. B. Futvoie, superintendent northern division; Jessie Burdette, superintendent Rutland division; E. A. Chittenden, superintendent of local traffic; and Silas W. Comings general passenger agent, the principal office being located at St. Albans village. The branch of the road extending north into Canada, from Swanton Junction is known as the Montreal & Vermont Junction railroad.

The Missisquoi railroad, extending from St. Albans to Richford village, where it connects with the Southeastern Townships railroad, which connects New Port, Vt., with Montreal, was leased or mortgaged to the Vermont Central road, September 26, 1870, as follows:—

“The Missisquoi Railroad Company have organized under their charter, and have concluded a contract with George F. Harris & Co., to build their railroad from its point of junction with the Vermont and Canada railroad, in the village of St. Albans, in the county of Franklin, to the village of Richford, in said county, being a distance of about twenty-eight miles, about nine miles of which railroad has been graded, and about five miles thereof has the iron laid thereon, and which railroad is, by the contract with said Harris & Co., to be completed in the month of July, 1871, and the said railroad company have found it necessary, in order to procure funds to furnish iron and complete their railroad, and pay land damages and other necessary expenses, to issue its bonds to the amount of $500,000.00, payable in twenty years from date, at seven per. cent interest, payable semi-annually, and to execute a mortgage of their said railroad, to secure the payment of said bonds and interest ; and it being deemed for the best interest of said railroad company to make arrangements with the trustees and managers of the Vermont Central and Vermont & Canada railroads, to run and operate their said railroad, when completed, in order that said railroad may be run and operated in a prudent and economical manner, and that the payment of the said mortgage bonds as it shall accrue, may be assured to the holders thereof."

The St. Johnsbury & Lake Champlain railroad, extending from Maquam Bay to St. Johnsbury, passes through the towns of Swanton, Highgate, Sheldon, Fairfield, and Bakersfield. It was formerly called the Lamoille Valley railroad, and was completed through to Swanton, and the first train of cars passed over it on Tuesday, July 17, 1877. Soon after this the road was completed from the village of Swanton to the Bay, about two miles, where docks and ware-houses have been built. The first freight train passed over this portion of the road, August 23, 1877, loaded with coal for Messrs. Fairbanks. The first passenger train from the lake to the East, passed over the road in July, 1877. The train which took the first canal-boat load of marble from Swanton Falls to load a boat at Maquam, was shipped by George Barney, of Swanton. The marble was used for the floors of the State, War, and Navy Department Building, at Washington, D. C.

The Southeastern Townships railroad, extending from Newport, Vt., to West Farnham, P. Q., is a part of the railroad line from Montreal to Boston and New York city. It extends through only the northern portion of the town of Richford.

The Canada Junction railroad, now being constructed by Hon. Bradley Barlow and his associates, is completed from the South Eastern Townships railroad to East Franklin, and is expected to be finished through to Sheldon Junction by June, 1883.

NEWSPAPERS.

During the first part of the present century, the first newspaper was established in the county, or counties,—for Grand Isle has always depended on Franklin county for this advantage,—an important era in the history of any community, for it marks the sure progress of enterprise. Since that time the county has not been without a paper, except at intervals of a few years each, and it now supports six ably conducted sheets.

The St. Albans Adviser was the first paper published in the county. It was a small sheet, published at St. Albans, by Rufus Allen, in 1807, and continued about one year.

The Champlain Reporter was next commenced, in May, 1809, issued from the office of Ambrose Willard, "in the new brick store on the southwest corner of court-house square." The sheet measured 24 by 19 inches, and was printed on coarse, dingy paper, though edited, however, with considerable ability, by Abner Morton, a lawyer of some eminence, and a leading politician of the Federal party. He removed to Michigan after a time, and died there in September, 1863, aged ninety years. The paper was continued until the spring of 1811, when it was discontinued from want of patronage.

The Repository followed next in order, though for a period of twelve years, succeeding the demise of the Reporter, the county was without a publication of its own. In the winter of 1823, an energetic movement for the establishment of a newspaper in St. Albans was made, and Colonel Jeduthan Spooner, who had commenced the publication of the Repertory at Burlington, October 1, 1821, was invited by the citizens to remove his paper to St. Albans. After a visit to the town and a conference with the leading business men, he decided to comply with the request, and in May, 1823, the publication of the Repository was commenced in St. Albans. It became one of the ablest papers of the State, but the anti-masonic excitement operated against it, and its proprietor, having determined to emigrate to the West, closed its publication April 26, 1836.

The Franklin Journal was started at St. Albans, as an anti-masonic paper, May 1, 1833, and was edited a short time by Samuel N. Sweet. After this it was conducted by Joseph H. Brainerd, until December 7, 1837, when it was sold to Enoch B. Whiting, who changed the name to the St. Albans Messenger. The publication of the paper under this name was commenced December 14, 1837, and continued under the proprietorship of Mr. Whiting, who, in 1863, made it a daily and weekly, changing the name to the St. Albans Daily Messenger, until August 1, 1870, when it came into possession of Albert Clarke and J. Dorsey Taylor, by purchase. They also bought the Vermont Transcript and consolidated it with the Messenger, and enlarged the weekly paper from a folio to a quarto. In 1874, Mr. Clarke became sole proprietor by the death of Mr. Taylor. In 1878, he erected the present Messenger Building, on Kingman street, one of the finest and best arranged newspaper offices in the State. In September, 1880, Mr. Clarke sold the paper, S. B. Pettingill becoming nominal proprietor, and the latter also obtained the St. Albans Advertiser and consolidated the two, since which time it has been called the ST. ALBANS DAILY MESSENGER AND ADVERTISER. The weekly MESSENGER is published on Fridays. In May, 1882, S. B. Pettingill retired, and was succeeded by D. W. Dixon as chief editor, and A. J. Lang as business manager. Dixon had been editorially connected with the Messenger most of the time since 1869, and Lang since 1874. The paper has a large influence, an extensive circulation, and, as previously mentioned, one of the best equipped offices in the State.

The Franklin Republican, a weekly, was published at Sheldon, by J. W.

Tuttle, editor and proprietor, during the greater part of the years 1837, 1838, and 1839. It is said to have been a creditable sheet, and would compare favorably with many of the papers published in the State at the present time.

The North American, published at Swanton, was commenced in 1838, the first number being issued April 10th, and was continued in weekly numbers until August 13, 1841. It was published at first by H. P. Thomas, and edited by Americans and Canadians, the latter being at Swanton as refugees during the continuance of the so-called "Patriot War" of Canada. The last year or more it was published by J. B. Ryan.

The Vermont Republican, published by C. G. Eldridge, at St. Albans, was commenced July 16, 1839. Some time afterwards Mr. Eldridge left, and D. A. Danforth became its editor and publisher. He continued the paper until April, 1846, when it was suspended.

The Loco Foco, a small political sheet, was issued at Swanton a few weeks in the autumn of 1839, the first number appearing on the 15th of August.

The Swanton Herald, at Swanton, was begun by Ripley & Chamberlain, in 1852, and continued by them until the spring of 1853, when Rev. A. J. Samson began to publish and edit the paper, and continued it one year.

The Democrat, by M. F. Wilson, was started at St. Albans in August, 1852. In the spring of 1853, Darwin Mott became its proprietor, and continued the paper for more than two years. It was then discontinued until August, 1858, when it was revived by M. F. Wilson and George Church, who continued its publication until the autumn of 1861.

The Franklin County Herald, issued at Swanton Falls, appeared November 5, 1853, under the management of the Drury Brothers, Lucius H. Drury being editor. This paper was intended to support the Democratic party, and was continued until some time in the winter of 1855.

The Vermont Tribune was commenced at St. Albans, by Sampson & Somerby, January 5, 1854. In September following, Z. K. Pangborn became its editor. It was discontinued in 1855.

The American Journal, at Swanton, was issued March 10, 1855, by H. N. Drury, with Revs. William A. Miller and A. J. Samson, editors. It was in reality, however, published by an association of the citizens of Swanton for the express purpose of establishing a good family paper, sound in its morals, and calculated to benefit the community, in which respects it was by no means a failure. Messrs. Miller & Sampson ceased to act as editors March 14, 1856. Albert Sowles then became its editor and H. N. Drury publisher. The fifty-first and last number of the second volume appeared March 27, 1857.

The Swanton Journal, of Swanton, appeared May 15, 1857, under the direction of H. N. Drury, as editor and proprietor. It was continued until November 6, 1857, when it was suspended, and Mr. Drury went to Burlington to reside.

The Synchronist, also of Swanton, was edited and published by John Sawyer, Jr., at first as a bi-weekly, and afterwards as a weekly. The first number appeared in September, 1859, and the last in 1860.

The Franklin County Herald and Swanton Advertiser was started at Swanton in 1862, the first number being issued March 7, by J. Ketchum Averill, editor and proprietor. It was continued in Swanton until August of the same year, when it was removed to St. Albans, where its publication was continued only a short time, when Mr. Averill gave up his paper and enlisted in the 7th N. Y. Vols., and died at Morris Island, S. C., in December, 1863.

The Vermont Transcript was established at St. Albans in March, 1864, by Henry A. Cutler. May 20, 1866, it became the property of Wilbur P. Davis, who, in May, 1868, commenced the publication of The Daily Transcript. In 1868, C. H. Baker and J. H. Montefiore became its proprietors. In 1870, the paper was sold to Clarke & Taylor, who merged it with the daily and weekly Messenger.

Le Protecteur Canadienne, a paper published in the French language, was commenced at St. Albans by Rev. Z. Druon, in 1869. Mr. Druon was succeeded by A. Mousette, with Fred Houde, editor. In 1872, it was sold, and removed to Worcester, Mass.

The St. Albans Transcript was commenced in August, 1870, by J. H. Montefiore and A. N. Merchant. In November of the same year A. N. Merchant became sole proprietor, by purchase, and continued the publication until 1872.

The Franklin Journal was commenced at Swanton, in February, 1870, by A. N. Merchant, publisher and proprietor. After about one year the press on which it was printed was removed from Swanton, and the paper continued to be issued at another place, under the above name, for about four years, when it was purchased by C. S. Kinsley & Co., of Burlington.

The Vermont Temperance Advocate was established at St. Albans, by Clarke & Taylor, in 1871, taking the place of a smaller paper of that name published at Springfield, Vt. It was edited by W. H. H. McAllister, as the organ of the Good Templars of the State, and was continued about one year, when it died from want of patronage.

The St. Albans Advertiser, a morning daily and weekly, was established by a stock company in the autumn of 1873, with A. J. Samson, business manager, and Lucius Bigelow, editor. Several changes occurred from that time down to September, 1880, when it was consolidated with the MESSENGER. Hiram S. Hart, A. P. Cross, and J. F. McGowan, were successively business managers, and Stephen E. Royce and Edward S. Sears, editors. Before consolidating with the MESSENGER, S. B. Pettingill was editor. The morning edition was discontinued after about two years, and the daily issued at noon, then at 5 P. M. Once or twice the daily was discontinued altogether, and a semi-weekly edition substituted. When the daily was finally re-established, the weekly was discontinued, and the semi-weekly issued.

THE SWANTON COURIER, published at Swanton, was commenced by its present editor and proprietor, T. M. Tobin, March 10, 1877. This paper is a live weekly, and though not a large sheet, contains much well-edited news, a particularly interesting feature being the great variety of local items it furnishes its readers.

The Fairfax Advertiser, a small, half sheet bi-weekly, was commenced in Fairfax, by F. H. Sanborn, about 1879, and continued a little over a year.

The Enosburgh Reporter, a weekly, was commenced at Enosburgh, by W. S. Roberts, in 1879, and continued by him until the spring of 1880.

The St. Albans Home Journal was established by Charles H. Hibbard, October 1, 1881, and issued weekly by him until September, 1881, when it was purchased by J. H. Montefiore, and consolidated with the VERMONT RECORD.

THE VERMONT RECORD, a weekly, published at St. Albans, was established by J. H. Montefiore, June 29, 1882. The RECORD is a neat, twenty-eight column paper, published each Wednesday.

THE VERMONT SENTRY was established at Swanton, by its present editor and proprietor, C. R. Jamason, February 2, 1882. This paper is a large, eight-page sheet, ably conducted, and its sturdy infancy gives promise of a hardy old age.

The Frontier Sentinel was established at Richford, by M. F. Wilson, about 1866, and issued by him until he sold it to J. B. Bowditch, who continued it eight years. In March, 1875, it came into the hands of William F. Scott and Carmi C. Brown. On October 16th, of the same year, Mr. Brown sold his interest in the sheet to Charles L. Reed, of Enosburgh Falls, and the firm name was changed to Scott & Reed. The following January Mr. Scott retired from the enterprise, and from that time until March 16, 1876, Mr. Reed conducted the paper alone; but on that date he sold the office to L. P. Bailey, and retired from the business. Bailey continued the paper until the 22d of the following October, when he sold it to C. R. Kent, of St. Johnsbury. Mr. Kent retained the office one week, when he gave it up and left the town, and the property reverted to the hands of Bailey again, who suffered the publication to die out and become extinct. The Sentinel was a little less than ten years of age, when it died, and during its brief life had endured many trials and afflictions. In 1878, the office, fixtures, etc., were sold to L. H. Goff, who, with his son and son-in-law, established the RICHFORD GAZETTE, which is now a popular sheet.

The Green Mountain Journal was established by Charles L. Reed, October 15, 1878. It was then issued as an eight-page, thirty-two column paper, but in November, 1881, Mr. Reed enlarged it and changed its name to the RICHFORD JOURNAL. The JOURNAL has steadily increased in prosperity, and now stands on a firm basis.

ABORIGINAL OCCUPANCY.

The whole territory of Vermont, previous to its settlement by Europeans, was claimed as a hunting ground by several tribes of Indians who were hostile to each other, and consequently was often the scene of their savage wars, whose constant invasion prevented its being made the permanent home of either of the tribes. Still there are abundant evidences that at some period the Indians must have resided here in large numbers. A branch of the Abenakis tribe were the aboriginal occupants of this section of the country; and, indeed, they lingered upon their rightful soil, at the mouth of the Lamoille river, and thence north along the Missisquoi bay, for a long time after the French and English had taken possession of the country to the north and south of them. When Mrs. Howe and others were taken at Bridgeman's fort and carried into captivity, in 1755, the northern parts of Lake Champlain were in the possession of the St. Francis tribe of Indians, who wintered there in large numbers and subsisted by hunting and fishing; and as late as the time of the Revolutionary war, a branch of this tribe had a village at Swanton, consisting of about fifty huts, with a church, Jesuit missionary, and had some land under cultivation. About the year 1798, the Caughnawaga Indians advanced a claim to most of the lands lying between Lake Champlain and the Green Mountains, and importuned the legislature of Vermont, at several sessions, for remuneration for the same, but without success.

Aside from the relics of the village in Swanton, arrow-heads, spear-points, and other weapons of offense and defense have been found in nearly every town throughout the county. These relics, however, seem to exist in the greatest numbers in the vicinity of Franklin pond. Mr. Edward Powers, of Franklin, has a collection of from 200 to 300 arrow-heads that he has found upon the shores of this pond. Still, as we have stated before, neither this nor any other locality in the State seems to have been the Redman's home; at least not within historic times. Vermont was rather a territory to which all laid claim, and was used in common as a hunting, fishing, and battle-ground, by the St. Francis tribe on the north, their principal settlement being at Montreal, or Hockhelaga, as it was then called; the Narraganset on the east, with their principal settlement on the Merrimac river; the Pepuquoits on the south, inhabiting the northwestern part of Connecticut; and the Iroquois, or Mohawks, as they were commonly called, on the southwest, their principal settlement being at Schenectady, N. Y., on the Mohawk river.

The origin of the Indian cannot be determined by history, nor will calculation ever arrive at a probable certainty. Some writers have declared that they were indigenous, while others maintain the opinion of their migration; and both classes, with perhaps a few exceptions, consider them the extreme of human depravity, and outcasts of the world. Now, while we do not dispute this sentiment entirely, let us, in justice, glance at the other side of the question. Criminations have been thrown upon them, they have been driven from their possessions, then in turn driven from others they had obtained, and thus, over and over again, the quietness of their dwellings has been interrupted by insolent invaders. But above all, dissipation, introduced among them by their civilized neighbors, has plunged them still deeper into wretchedness and barbarity. Might they not, had other treatment and other circumstances been brought to bear, be other than the degraded people they now are ?

WHEN FIRST SETTLED BY THE WHITES.

The first settlement of the county, of which we have any record, is supposed to have been in Swanton, as previously mentioned ; though most of the relics of the old mission have been found just over the river in Highgate. During the many years that Lake Champlain and its environs were in the possession of the French, nearly the whole of the present county was granted to different French parties, and was actually mapped out, and the several grants named after their respective French proprietors. The land now comprising the towns of Swanton, Highgate, St. Albans and Georgia, was granted to M. de Bauvis, fils, and to M. Douville. According to a map of this section published at London, in January, 1779, a copy of which may now be found in the first volume of the "Documentary History of New York," Swanton, or the greater portion of it, is called Prattsburgh ; in the vicinity of what is now known as Sheldon, there is exhibited a concession to Lord George Townsend & Co. ; south of this there lie grants made to Nathan Stone & Co., in St. Albans ; to Josiah Willard & Co., and C. H. Gordon, in Fairfax, Fairfield and Georgia ; to Samuel Ashley & Co., in Bakersfield ; Kellybrook township, in Fairfax, and to W. O. Huddleston and E. Robinson, John Gordon and the Governor of King's College, in Fletcher. No attempt at settlement, however, was probably ever made under any of these grants.

The first settlers were emigrants from New England, and for the most part of English origin, a hardy, enterprising people. At the time of their settlement the territory was an unbroken wilderness, and but lately released from exposure to the cruelties of Indian depredations and warfare. Hence, none but the spirited and enterprising would place themselves in a situation so lonely. The character of the people, like the roughness of their native mountains, was bold and unyielding. Acquiring by their own exertions and ascendancy over the perplexing difficulties that beset them, high notions of liberty and independence were entertained, and great confidence placed in their own abilities. Such were the forefathers of the present people of Franklin county.

A very few settlers came in previous to the Revolution, whose settlement will be spoken of in connection with the sketches of the towns wherein they dwelt ; but all left with the advent of the war, and until after peace was declared, no settlements were again commenced. Immigration became rapid then, however, and grants were rapidly taken up, so that at the taking of the first census, in 1791, the county had a population of 1,372.

LAND TITLE CONTROVERSY.

As the county had no large population to take an active part in the scenes of strife that occurred between the people of the New Hampshire Grants and New York, we shall give this subject but a passing notice. It must be remembered, however, that many who ultimately became early settlers of the county, came from the southern part of the State, where they had taken an active part in the quarrel with their New York cousins.

The grant of Bennington, made in 1749, gave rise to the controversy, as New York soon after laid claim to the territory as far east as the Connecticut river. The question in dispute was settled by the King, July 20, 1764, ordering that the Connecticut river, from the line of Massachusetts to 45° north latitude, should be the boundary between the two provinces from that time forward. But the government of New York did not accept the full intent of this decision, and called upon the settlers to take out new grants, declaring those of New Hampshire illegal. Those who did not obey this call, found their grants contested by new claimants, whom the New York courts declared lawful owners. Thus the quarrel continued, producing more irritation, until, in 1769, the King prohibited the Governor of New York from issuing any more grants "until his majesty's further pleasure should become known." Meanwhile civil disturbances and open defiance to the New York authorities continued to such an extent that, in 1774, a law was passed by New York, ordering the surrender of offenders under penalty of death. In reply, Vermont returned a public letter, threatening death to any who should aid in arresting any of her leading citizens. About this time a plan was made for the formation of a royal province, but the Revolutionary war soon absorbed every other interest. In 1789, New York acknowledged the independence of Vermont, and endeavored to adjust all matters of dispute, having previously made grants to those who had suffered by adhering to her allegiance, while Vermont in turn paid into the treasury of New York thirty thousand dollars.

REVOLUTIONARY WAR.

With Vermont, the Revolutionary contest possessed a double interest, and while she lent her aid to redress national grievances, she also maintained a spirited contest on her own account, resolving to secure her independence from New York. The territory treated of in this work, however, has none of the romantic stories and traditions of this period that grace the annals of localities earlier settled. The people of the New Hampshire Grants, as may well be supposed, entered with an especially hearty zeal into this contest. Their schooling had been such as to render them an exceedingly undesirable foe to meet, as a large portion of the settlers had served in the French and Indian war, and during the twelve or fifteen years that intervened, had been almost continuously at strife with New York, and entertained a feeling of deadly hatred against King George and the British Parliament. It is not strange, then, that the Green Mountain Boys were soon both feared and respected by their adversaries. The few who had settled in Franklin county, left, as previously mentioned, on the approach of Burgoyne.

WAR OF 1812.

The yoke of the mother country having been thrown off, the American colonies rapidly advanced in progress. Vermont expanded into a free and independent State, and finally was annexed to the Union, March 4, 1791. In the meantime, the French nation, led by Napoleon Bonaparte, had arrived at the zenith of military glory, and was giving England great cause for fear and trembling. England, in turn, seeming to forget that her offspring had arrived at maturity and was quite able to protect its own institutions, continued her acts of tyranny. Looking upon herself as mistress of the ocean, during her wars with Napoleon, she utterly disregarded the rights of the United States as a neutral nation. Her cruisers would stop and search American vessels, and seize such able-bodied seamen as were needed, on the pretext that they were British subjects. An American frigate, not in condition to resist, having been subjected to this indignity almost within sight of an American port, after receiving several broadsides for denying the right of search, the President issued a proclamation ordering all British ships-of-war to quit the waters of the United States. Congress also laid an embargo on American vessels, detaining them at home, but afterward substituted a non-intercourse act, prohibiting trade with Great Britain. All intercourse between this State and the people of Canada was prohibited, without permit from the Governor, under a penalty of $1,000 fine and imprisonment at hard labor in the State penitentiary for the term of seven years.

Notwithstanding all this, England persisted in her offensive course. All hopes of obtaining concessions on the impressment question from her were at length abandoned. George III., who was still on the throne, had become insane, and the men who managed affairs were as short-sighted as his advisers had been forty years before, whose folly had provoked the Revolution. Longer submission to their arrogant claims was deemed unworthy of a free nation, and war was formally declared by the United States, June 18, 1812.

The majority of the people of Vermont considered the declaration of war rash and imprudent, believing that the required issue could have been brought about by legislation; but notwithstanding this feeling, the general assembly of the State passed the following resolution:—

“The constituted authorities of our country having declared war between the United States and Great Britain and her dependencies, it is our duty as citizens to support the measure; otherwise we should identify ourselves with the enemy, with no other difference than that of locality. We therefore pledge ourselves to each other and to our government, that with our individual exertions, our example and influence, we will support our government and country in the present contest, and rely on the great Arbiter of events for a favorable result.”

Both Franklin and Grand Isle counties were well represented in this trouble, and sustained with honor the reputation of their State. The list of their soldiers during this war, so far as known, will be found incorporated with the several town sketches, and to their pages we refer the reader for further mention of the part taken by the citizens of these counties in those stirring times.

In the summer of 1814, the British, having concentrated 14,000 men near the foot of Lake Champlain, undertook an invasion of the States, somewhat on the plan of Burgoyne in 1777. There had been skirmishing throughout the season; but when in August most of the American troops were transferred to the Niagara frontier, Gen. Prevost improved the opportunity to march upon Plattsburgh. Here Gen. Macomb, in command of the Americans, had made all the preparation in his power for a vigorous defense; but he had only 2,000 efficient men, and lacked ordnance, while his works were still incomplete. Commodore McDonough had also strained every nerve to make ready for the British fleet, which was to act in conjunction with the army. His flagship was launched within forty days from the time that the trees used in its construction were standing in the forest. Despite all his exertions, however, in the number of his vessels, guns, and men, he was inferior to the enemy.

The British army, having reached Plattsburgh, was there held in check by Macomb, who, strengthened by the brave militia of Vermont and New York, had taken a position on the south side of the Saranac river. But the fate of the battle was to be decided on the water. On the 11th of September, the British flotilla drew near to Plattsburgh, and McDonough joined battle, after having on deck of his vessel invoked the blessing of God upon his cause. Two hours of terrible fighting resulted in victory for the Americans as signal as had been that of Perry on Lake Erie. The British commander, who had boasted that with his flag-ship alone he could whip the whole Yankee fleet, was killed, and his entire squadron struck. Thus ended the Battle of Plattsburgh Bay, one of the great naval engagements of the world.

The British commissioners, at first unreasonable, lowered their tone after the battle of Plattsburgh and the subsequent battle of Baltimore, and on the 24th of December, 1815, a treaty of peace was signed at Ghent, in Belgium, ending the war. Once more the Green Mountain Boys settled down to the peaceful avocations of life, to be aroused again not until many years after, when the terrible civil struggle of 1861, called them again into the field. Some of the old veterans still are living in the county, a remnant of the gallant ones who gave England her final lesson in Yankee pluck.

THE PATRIOT WAR.

The rebellion of the French population of Canada against the rule of the sovereign of England, in 1837-'39, was the cause of no ordinary excitement among the people along the northern frontier. The history of that abortive attempt at a revolution does not properly belong in this publication, and is mentioned only on account of the consequent excitement it occasioned here.

That the people of these counties should have regarded with indifference the struggles of a conquered race, however unpromising, to throw off a foreign domination and establish a government and institutions of their own, was not for a moment to be expected. In the early days of this rebellion, several gentlemen, having become subjects of suspicion to the officers of the government, and in danger of arrest, left their homes for a season and took up a temporary residence at St. Albans. Among these were R. S. M. Bouchette, a young man of high family connection, splendid abilities and fine personal appearance; Dr. Cyril Cate, a young physician of influence and promise, and P. P. Demory, a respectable notary of St. Johns, with others of more or less distinction in their communities. In Swanton, which was made a kind of headquarters, the patriots, as they styled themselves, gathered to the number of two or three hundred. Two or three skirmishes occurred in Alburgh, Highgate, and other points, all of which tended to make the loyal people of Canada feel unfriendly to the harborers of their enemies. Many buildings were burned, it is supposed, by loyalists, along the line in Alburgh and Highgate, during the spring of 1839. Finding that affairs were assuming a threatening aspect, Brig.-Gen. Nason promptly repaired to the frontier and called out the militia to guard against these invasions. This silenced the matter, and the people finally settled down to their accustomed pursuits, and many doubtless regretted that they had expressed so much sympathy for a cause which turned out so disastrously.

THE WAR OF THE UNION.

After the war with Mexico, 1846-'48, the country enjoyed thirteen years of peace,—years of great improvement in the condition of Franklin and Grand Isle counties, a counterpart of the prosperity enjoyed by the whole State. Indeed, the war with Mexico had scarcely disturbed the even tenor of her way, as so few of her sons were engaged in the strife, the active scenes of which were so far removed. Except for display at celebrations, or as curiosities, the old sword and musket were unseen. The "Green Mountain Boys" had passed away to join the spirits of their brave commanders, while their names were perpetuated alike in the annals of history and romance. Their children and grandchildren were enjoying the bounties of the verdant fields they had struggled so hard to win; but amid all the enervations of peace and plenty, the spirit and blood of such men as Allen, Baker, Stark, and Warner, yet coursed in their veins, ready to reveal its latent power, like the trained battle-horse, at the first clash of arms.

The morning of April 12th, 1861, dawned bright and fair, yet dense with weight of woe that overspread the land. The fatal shot upon Sumpter had been fired, and for the first time in its young life, since first unfurled to the breeze o'er the decks of the "Ranger," proudly bearing its "emblem of perpetuity,"—the wreath of thirteen stars,—the flag of the Union had been desecrated.

The causes leading to this terrible civil war we need not repeat; the results are patent to every household in this broad land. To some, however, the word "results" has a peculiar significance. It recalls to the memory of the wife, the husband's face so kind and true; to the son and daughter, the loved lineaments of their sire; and to the parent, the noble form of their bright and promising son, all of whom now are resting in the quiet churchyard, or, mayhap, whose bones are bleaching in the sand that drained their blood at the fearful carnage of Gettysburgh, Antietam, Fredericksburgh, or other fields where perished so many of our noble dead. But, ye wives, parents, brothers and sisters, the nation's honored dead o'er whose graves you weep, have left you a valuable legacy, a bequest in which none but you can share—the glory that surrounds their names!

Vermont's sons soon proved their "lineal descent from warlike men," and "The Green Mountain Boys" became again an honored title of the present, adding lustre to the fame which already clustered about it. Of this band, 34,238 were sent to fight the battles of their country, and $9,087,352.40 of Vermont's treasure were expended in the cause. But her greatest treasure was the 5,128 noble souls she sacrificed upon the altar of freedom, while 5,022 loyal ones were returned to their homes with shattered constitutions, or maimed in body. Surely, a bountiful contribution towards the preservation of our "Grand Republic."

These counties furnished their full quotas, both of men and means, and bore a most honorable part in all of the great war's honors and vicissitudes. During the first year, in 1861, no special inducements were offered for enlistments, save $7.00 per month paid by the State to the soldiers and their families, and then more soldiers volunteered than were required. In the summer and autumn of 1862, some towns paid small bounties, from $25.00 to $75.00 for three year's men. In 1863, town bounties ranged from $100.00 to $350.00 for three year's men, and in 1864, the highest point was reached, from $500.00 to $1,000.00. The town of Fairfield paid as high as $1,000.00 for one year's men in the summer of 1864, while the town of Montgomery paid nothing throughout the war, except to drafted men.

The following complete roster of men sent as commissioned officers, and of those, who, enlisting in the ranks, were subsequently promoted to a commission, is compiled from the Adjutant and Inspector-General's report of 1866, and from other sources. For convenience sake, the names are arranged in alphabetical order, the dates referring to commissions, the date of muster being omitted:—

IN CONCLUSION.

It may be well to state that the War Department accredited to this State 5,242 men; being one thousand and four more than are shown by the State records, and gives the State credit over the aggregate quota under all calls, of fifteen hundred and thirteen men. "This discrepancy may be and probably is to be accounted for," says Adjutant-General P. T. Washburn, "by enlistments in organizations of other States, to the credit of this State, which appear upon muster rolls of those organizations and were not reported to the State."

GRAND ISLE COUNTY.

IT is probable that the first European whose eye ever rested upon this locality was Jacques Cartier. In 1535, he was commissioned by Francis I., of France, with the command of an expedition to explore the western hemisphere. Having discovered the gulf and river St. Lawrence as far as the present site of Montreal, he found there an Indian encampment, or village, known as Hocelaga. An Algoquin chief, Donnacona, conducted him to the summit of Mount Royal, and showed him a beautiful country to the south, which he called Iroquoisia, and told him of great rivers and inland seas and of smaller rivers and lakes penetrating this beautiful territory, belonging to the war-like Iroquois. Many years afterward, Samuel Champlain, accompanied by a party of friendly Hurons, proceeded to the locality described by Cartier, and on the fourth day of July, 1609, entered upon the waters which perpetuate his name, and consequently was the first white man to enter the territory which now bears the name of Grand Isle county.

Away up in the northwestern corner of the State this county lies, between lat. $44^{\circ} 35'$ and $45^{\circ} 0'$, and between long. $3^{\circ} 39'$ and $3^{\circ} 47'$, embosomed in the waters of Lake Champlain, having a length of twenty-eight miles from north to south, and a width of about five miles. It contains eighty-two square miles, 40,070 acres, about 4,126 inhabitants, and is divided into five towns,—Alburgh, Grand Isle, Isle La Motte, North Hero, and South Hero.

After the division of the State into counties (see page 20) and the subsequent erection of Franklin county, November 5, 1792, the towns of Alburgh, Isle La Motte and North Hero were set to Franklin county, leaving Grand Isle and South Hero still under the jurisdiction of Chittenden county. This arrangement was peculiarly unsatisfactory to the people of Grand Isle county, as it virtually divided the five townships, thereby creating many inconveniences of a public nature. The people of these townships were bound together, in a greater or less degree, by local attachments and interests, and they therefore deemed that their public and private welfare would be essentially promoted by a political separation from the main land, and the erection of the five towns into a distinct county. There were, in the outset, many influential persons, however, who opposed this project determinately, and for a time successfully. The subject was agitated as early as 1792, but no measures were instituted to carry out the scheme until September, 1794, when a petition was drawn up, praying for the formation of a new county, to be called the "Hero," and asking for that purpose all the islands in Lake Champlain, north of Colchester Point, and east of the channel of the lake, to lat. 45°, including Alburgh. This petition was signed by twenty-three citizens of Alburgh, eight of Isle La Motte, twenty-nine of North Hero, and sixty-three of South Hero and Grand Isle. It was presented to the legislature at its October session of the same year, and referred to a select committee, which, after some deliberation, asked to be discharged from its further consideration; and the matter was thereupon referred to the next legislature. The subject was urged and discussed, with more or less pertinacity, from this time until 1802, but without effect. After repeated trials, in which popular sentiment in favor of the measure had gradually gained strength and potency, the assent of the legislature was finally, though reluctantly, secured, and the new county incorporated November 9, 1802. The following are the provisions of the act of incorporation:—

“First, That the towns of Alburgh, Isle La Motte and North Hero, in the county of Franklin, and the towns of South Hero and Middle Hero, in the county of Chittenden, together with all such islands as lie in the State near the above mentioned towns, and are more than a mile from the main land, in the counties of Chittenden and Franklin, be, and they are hereby constituted a distinct county, by the name of Grand Isle. Second, That at the session of the legislature, in October, 1805, the said county of Grand Isle shall be organized for the transaction of all legal business as a county.”

The surface of the country is generally level, though diversified with occasional hills and small tracts of rolling land, while the scenery is varied and attractive. There are no streams or inland lakes of importance, but the lake whose waters nearly surround the county amply compensates for any loss of beauty or interest on this account. Not only in beauty, however, does this lake excel, for around none other of the continent hover historical associations so brilliant and memorable. Long before any European had looked upon its silver waters, its long and narrow track, adapted to the transit of the light canoe, had opened a pathway between hostile tribes, in their perpetual missions of reciprocal slaughter and rapine. The Indian, doubtless, in reference to this fact, gave to the lake the striking and appropriate name, Caniadere-Guarante, that is, the lake that is the gate of the country. And again, for a period of over two centuries from the date of its discovery by Champlain, its character and position remained unchanged. Its waters were the portals of alien and often hostile nations; along its highway the stealthy march of murderous bands have passed, to be precipitated upon the slumbering settlements of the foe; fleets of canoes and batteaux in summer have glided over its pure waters on errands of blood and rapine; and in winter its crystal pavement afforded an easy pathway to the invader, or if deep snows rested upon the ice, the snow-shoe left scarcely an impress to betray his transit. By this track the French, with their savage associates, traversed the lake, and penetrating the gorges of the Green Mountains, devastated, amid the storms and snows of winter, the fairest villages of New England. Later on, vast armies, clothed in the pomp and panoply of modern warfare, have gathered on its sequestered shores, or glided over its silent waters, where now all is a scene of thrift and prosperity—a scene of rare beauty and great interest, that each season calls hundreds of tourists from this and foreign lands to gratify their love for the beautiful, and to revel amid its gems of historical lore. And amid these scenes of historic renown, none, perhaps, possesses an interest equal to that attached to Grand Isle county. Its shores were the first in the State to be visited by a white man, within its limits was commenced the first settlement, and upon its soil rested the first military fortification erected in what is now the proud State of Vermont. But these honors, by some strange chance, have for many years been assigned to other localities.

GEOLOGICAL.

Geologically, there is nothing in Grand Isle to distinguish it from other counties of the State. The principal rocks are of the Black river limestone, Trenton limestone, Utica slate and Hudson river slate formations. The rocks of the Black river group underlie the western portions of South Hero, Grand Isle, and Isle La Motte, and are generally known as Isle La Motte marble. It is a black, compact, finely granular marble, a pure carbonate of lime, and a very handsome and valuable stone. It also contains many fossils. When sawed, it makes an excellent marble for floor tiling, and specimens of it may be seen in the public edifices and costly mansions of the principal cities of the Union.

A vein of Trenton limestone lies parallel with and adjacent to the Black river ledge, extending the whole length of the county, having a mean width of about one mile. One very soon learns to distinguish this rock from all others in Vermont, by its common characters of black schistose layers, associated with slaty seams of limestone and occasionally argillaceous matter. The rock occupies the middle and northwestern parts of South Hero, reaching entirely across the island at one place, to Keeler's Bay; but the shape of the island is such that it runs off to the northwestern part, where it sinks beneath the lake to rise again in Isle La Motte. In Grand Isle, the best development of the Trenton formation in Vermont appears. Prof. Adams, in his manuscript notes of the geology of Vermont, thinks that the thickness of the rock here is as much as 500 feet. The strata are thick-bedded, and filled with beautifully developed trilobites, orthocerata, shells, fucoids, etc. The principal mineral found in the rock is a large vein of milk-white calcite, ten feet wide, in South Hero.

A large bed of Utica slate comes next in order, underlying, except a small portion of the extreme eastern part, the residue of the county. This rock is a continuation of the calcareous shales of the Hudson river group downwards, until they meet the slaty limestone of the Trenton limestone. The common variety greatly resembles the shales of the Trenton limestone, differing from them principally by being firmer, and exhibiting a double system of joints, which are often filled with seams and veins of calcite. These veins constitute a marked feature of this rock. There are three varieties of them,—the large veins, or dikes; the smaller ones, that twist and branch in every direction, frequently like the branches of a tree; and thirdly, small veins that occupy the cleavage seams, and are parallel to one another over large areas. This rock is particularly conspicuous on the southeast and southwest shores of Alburch, where ledges of it occur, and also in the center of the town near the railroad. Upon the east side of Isle La Motte, two ledges of the slate appear, in contact with the Black river and Trenton limestone. The mineral contents are mostly calcite and nodules of pyrites. Several mineral springs occur in the formation, the principal ones being in Alburch and South Hero. The water is strongly impregnated with sulphurated hydrogen, and they are visited by many invalids with beneficial results. It is probable that the sulphur arises from the decomposition of the nodular pyrites common in the slate.

The numerous drift scratches, moraines, etc., found throughout the county confirms the supposition that it was once the bed of an ocean. Larger deposits of marine shells also are interspersed with the soil in different localities, and many fossil remains have been exhumed, especially in North Hero and Isle La Motte.

STAPLE PRODUCTIONS.

The material resources of the county are not large, though sufficiently so to entitle it to rank as not the least respectable and prosperous, though the smallest of the fourteen counties in the State. A great portion of the lands are exceedingly fertile, and yield nearly all of the different kinds of grains, fruits, and vegetables common to this latitude. The value and productiveness of the soil averages nearly the same in all parts of the county, though the town of North Hero,—which contains the greatest proportion of arable land according to its area,—may be considered the most productive. The constituent properties of the soil are clay, loam and marl, with a substratum of coarse gravel and heavy clay, the latter predominating. A considerable proportion of the old pasture lands, however, begin to exhibit signs of impaired fertility. Both the soil and climate render the county admirably adapted to fruit culture, apples, plums, pears, cherries and grapes being produced at a fair profit. Dairying and stock-raising interests also occupy a large amount of attention, there being owned throughout the county some excellent herds of blooded cattle, and a number of flocks of Spanish Merino sheep. A better idea of the staple productions may be derived, perhaps, from the following statistics, taken from the United States census reports of 1870. During that year there were 36,872 acres of improved land in the county, while the farms were valued at $2,579,795.00, and produced 18,774 bushels of wheat, 205 bushels of rye, 21,073 bushels of Indian corn, 105,431 bushels of oats, 7,454 bushels of barley, and 26,876 bushels of buckwheat. There were owned throughout the county 1,285 horses, 1,457 milch cows, 12 working oxen, 16,087 sheep, and 545 swine. From the milk of the cows were manufactured 160,653 pounds of butter and 11,388 pounds of cheese, while the sheep yielded 83,838 pounds of wool.

MANUFACTURES.

Owing to the absence of streams suitable for furnishing water-power, and the comparative scarcity of native fuel, manufacturing has never been conducted to any great extent. The census returns of 1870, show the county to have had twelve manufacturing establishments, operated by two water-wheels, employing thirty-eight hands. There were $7,185.00 invested in these enterprises, while the entire product for the year was valued at $22,417.00.

COURTS AND COUNTY BUILDINGS.

The county seat is located at North Hero, where the supreme court meets on the third Tuesday in January, and county court on the last Tuesday in August, and the last but one in February. North Hero was appointed as the shire town of the county by an act of the legislature passed in 1803, and from that time until 1825, the courts were held in the only hotel ever built in the town, erected during that year by Jed. P. Ladd. It had for its site a position near the center of the town, overlooking the waters of a beautiful bay, and for twenty-two years a portion of it was made use of for judicial purposes, it being provided with a court-room and jail. The old building was torn down in 1857. Those who saw it daily while standing, remember it as a large, square, time-browned edifice, constructed after the ancient regime, and from garret to cellar looking rather shadowy and mysterious. These impressions were, in a measure, due to the various uses which it had served, having answered, in its time, as a court-house, church, and tavern, a singular trio to associate together. The court-room was 25 by 50 feet, and and also served as a ball-room. It contained a very convenient desk for the judges, and was supplied with fixed benches, surrounding the room. The jail was located in the upper story, and furnished with a ponderous oak door, barred and bolted in the most substantial manner.

The erection of the present court-house was commenced in 1824, and completed in 1825. It is a solid, substantial structure, 40 by 50 feet, and two stories in height, built of Isle La Motte marble. The first story contains apartments for the family of the jailor, and a "debtor's-room" and dungeon, while the second story contains the court and jury rooms. The dungeon, or the "cell" as it is known, is constructed of blocks of marble three feet square, doweled together with stone of proper size. It has had but few inmates since its erection, however. The town of North Hero paid $500.00 towards the construction of the building for the privilege of using the court-room as a place of worship.

The first session of the county court was held in the old tavern, on the first Monday of March, 1806, when Asa Lyon presided as chief judge; Nathan Hutchins and Alexander Scott, assistant judges; with Alpheus Hall, county clerk; Amos Morrill, sheriff; Daniel Webb, high bailiff; and Philo Berry, State's attorney. The first cause tried was an action on a note, brought by John Martin against Edmund Barnes.

The first important criminal case tried was that of Isaac Stevens, for theft, at the March term, 1808, before Judge Benjamin Adams. Solomon Morgan, State's attorney, appeared for the prosecution, and Hon. C. P. Van Ness, for the defense. The following named persons were impanelled as jurors; Nathan Douglass, Thaddeus Landon, Joseph Boardman, Samuel Davison, Kimball Kinney, John Thomas, Peter Minkler, Daniel Hoag, Wyman Chamberlain, Jacob Mott, John Borden, and Joseph Hazen. After a verdict of "guilty" had been rendered by the jury, the judge addressed the prisoner, and pronounced sentence as follows:—

"You, Isaac Stevens, are brought before this court for feloniously taking, stealing and carrying away three yards of blue broad-cloth, and forty dollars in silver, the just property of James Gillert. You have pleaded "not guilty" of the crime; you have shown no signs of repentance, but have behaved with a show of arrogance. The court notwithstanding, have feelings for you as men, and sincerely lament your deplorable condition; but as ministers of the law, they cannot flinch from their duty.

"Therefore, the court give judgment and pronounce sentence, that you, Isaac Stevens, shall, between the hours of twelve o'clock, noon, and two o'clock in the afternoon of the 12th day of March, A. D., 1808, receive twenty stripes on the naked body, and pay forty-five dollars as treble damages to the party aggrieved; pay costs of prosecution, and stand committed until judgment be complied with."

This sentence was duly carried into effect, on the date aforementioned, when a large crowd of people congregated to witness its execution. Stevens was brought down from the jail, bound to one of the posts supporting the shed, and received the twenty stripes with apparent indifference.

INTERNAL IMPROVEMENTS.

Grand Isle county, though the best in the State in some respects, so far as natural resources go, has suffered one great inconvenience, which her inhabitants have had to contend with from the first, arising from the fact of being cut off by the waters of Lake Champlain from the rest of the State. Grand Isle, containing the towns of South Hero and Grand Isle, was the first to remedy this, by building what is known as Sand-bar bridge. This work was completed in 1850, the cost being $18,000.00, which was borne by the people of the island, aided by private subscriptions from citizens of Burlington. Now another island has lately been connected with the mainland—Isle La Motte. This bridge extends from the northern end of the island across to Alburgh, which is connected naturally with the mainland, from which it projects its "tongue" down into the lake, between Isle La Motte and North Hero. This bridge, finished in August, 1882, was built by Messrs. Adgate & Weston, of Keeseville, and is 2,000 feet long. It is composed entirely of stone filling, with the exception of the draw, thirty-one feet wide, which is 800 feet from the Alburgh shore, and 1,169 feet from the Isle La Motte shore. The "fill" is fourteen feet wide on the surface, which is well up above high-water mark, the sides sloping at an angle of forty-five degrees to the bed of the lake. The water under the draw is sixteen feet deep at low water, and the draw itself is simply a movable track fifty-two feet long, which slides back easily upon the line of the bridge by means of a rack and pinion, being strongly trussed, and weighted at the shore end, so as to prevent tilting downwards of the end as it leaves its supporting pier on being slid back. These piers at either side of the channel are of solid masonry, thirty-two feet square. The natural channel here is only 250 feet wide, the water for that distance having a depth of from ten to sixteen feet, while the rest of the way across the water is quite shallow. Along the shore of Isle La Motte and through the channel, the bottom is rocky, but from the channel to the Alburgh shore there is a mud bottom. The cost of the bridge was $15,000.00, of which the State furnished $7,000.00, the town of Isle La Motte paying the balance.

The building of the Vermont and Canada railroad (see page 30) across the town of Alburgh, was an important era in the history of the county, as it afforded a more convenient and ready means of communication with market towns, and its value to the county will be much enhanced by the building of this bridge. This system of communication with the outside world will probably prevent much loss of life and property through the ice and from ferries, which has been going on to a greater or less extent ever since the settlement of the county. It will doubtless not be long before the other island, North Hero, will be connected by bridge to the mainland.

ABORIGINAL OCCUPANCY.

A branch of the Abenakis tribe of Indians, called the Zoquageers, were the aboriginal occupants of this section, and had a village in the present town of Alburgh. Another subdivision of the Abenakis, called the Loups, or Wolf-tribe, are supposed to have resided at the sand-bar in South Hero, and departed from that place many years prior to the commencement of any settlement by the whites; but this supposition is founded upon uncertain tradition. There were Indians at the sand-bar, but they may have been a portion of the same tribe that occupied the town of Alburgh. We have no evidence to show that other parts of the county were inhabited by the aborigines; and there are but few traces of them remaining in the localities before named. The territory occupied by the Abenakis was called, on the oldest maps, the country of the Irocoisa, or Iroquois, whom, tradition affirms, were primitive dwellers on the lands embraced within these limits; but it is well known that the Iroquois never had a permanent residence in this county. During the progress of the old French and English colonial wars, a branch of the Iroquois, known by their aboriginal name as No-tsi-io-ne, invaded the Abenakis territory, and after many a stern conflict, the Zoquageers were driven off, thus virtually terminating the Indian occupation of this locality.

WHEN FIRST SETTLED BY THE WHITES.

It has long been claimed by most local historians that the first occupation of the State by civilized people was in 1690, when Capt. Jacobus De Narm, from Albany, erected a small stone fort at Chimney Point, in Addison county. This, however, is erroneous. Fifty-five years after the discovery of the lake by Champlain, in 1664, M. De Tracy, Governor of the French possessions in America, entered upon the work of erecting a line of fortifications from the mouth of the Sorel river into Lake Champlain. The first year he erected three forts upon the river, and the next spring, 1665, he ordered Capt. De La Motte to proceed up the lake and erect another fortress upon an island which he designated. It was completed the same year and named Fort St. Anne, and afterwards called Fort La Motte, from the name of its builder, and which in the end gave the name to the island on which it stood. In 1666, an important expedition under De Tracy was fitted out, and proceeded from this place against the Mohawk Indians. The fort faced north and west at a point commanding the passage of the lake, where portions of its ruins are still discernable. Settlements were also commenced in Alburgh as early as 1731, and again in 1741. The settlement of Fort La Motte precedes that of any other in the State by nearly half a century, and was sustained by the French, and the English after them, together with Alburgh and North Hero, where were located block-houses, with some interruptions, nearly up to the year 1800.

The first permanent settlement of the county, however, was commenced in Alburgh, by a party of French emigrants from St. Johns. For accounts of the settlements made subsequent to this, together with records of their growth, etc., we refer the reader to the sketches of the several towns, found on other pages.

Numerous grants of land lying within the present limits of the county, were made by the French, causing much trouble relative to titles in after years. The titles to the lands embraced in the town of Alburgh, were for many years a fruitful source of controversy. Sir George Young claimed the territory as a grant from the Duke of York, but his title was never recognized. The governor of Canada subsequently granted the lands to Henry Caldwell, of Quebec, from whom the early settlers mainly derived their titles; and, prior to 1787, the township was called Caldwell's Upper Manor. In 1781, the legislature of Vermont granted the township to Ira Allen and others; but their attempts to take possession of the lands were legally resisted by the settlers, who, after several years of litigation, secured complete triumph. North Hero, called by the French Isle Longue, was granted by the governor of Canada, to M. Contrecour, in 1734, with the condition that a settlement should be established within a period of five years, or the grant thereby become invalidated; and as it appears not to have been settled within the prescribed time, M. Contrecour forfeited his claim to the island. Isle LaMotte, together with the town of Chazy, N. Y., was granted by the French to Maj. Pean, of Quebec, about the year 1733; but it was never occupied by him, nor by any other persons claiming proprietorship under him. The south Island does not appear to have been included among the French and English grants, and no disposition seems to have been made of it until chartered to Ethan Allen and others, in 1779. Prior to this time, the governor and legislature of Vermont received numerous applications from private individuals, for grants of the islands, but they preferred to donate them to such persons as had performed honorable service in the Revolution.

Here we leave our sketch of the county, only to be taken up in connection with the town chapters. Many of the Revolutionary heroes settled within its limits, some of whom bore honorable part in the war of 1812. But the meagre space we are at liberty to devote to the record of those interesting themes, will be found incorporated with the sketches under these heads in the Franklin county chapter. The roster of officers who went from this county, and served in the war of the Rebellion, will also be found incorporated with that county.

GAZETTEER OF TOWNS.

FRANKLIN COUNTY.

AVERY'S GORE is a rough, mountainous tract of land containing an area of about 9,723 acres, having Montgomery on the north, Bakersfield on the west, Belvidere in Lamoille county on the south, and Lowell in Orleans county on the east. A number of small tracts of land were formerly granted to Samuel Avery, by the above name, but all except this one have been annexed to other townships. This was granted October 29, 1791. The soil is mostly owned by parties in New York, and it contains but few inhabitants. Settlements have been made in the northwestern portion, along the Bakersfield line, by a few families, and nearly as many in the northern part, and along a road which has been opened through, from Montgomery to Belvidere. Ebenezer Wellman was the first settler, having moved across the line from Montgomery, about the year 1828. The land is not of a quality to attract settlers, and those who have gone in are mostly poor, and sustain no schools or mechanics among them. The Gore is legally under the jurisdiction of the town of Montgomery.

BAKERSFIELD, an irregularly outlined town, lies in the southeastern part of the county, in $44^{\circ} 47'$ north latitude, and longitude $4^{\circ} 9'$ east from Washington,* bounded north by Enosburgh, east by Avery's Gore, and Waterville in Lamoille county, south by Fletcher, and west by Fairfield. The original of this tract was granted by the State, February 27, 1787, and chartered January 25, 1791, to Luke Knowlton, under the name of Knowlton's Gore, containing 10,000 acres. Knowlton retained the territory about one month, then sold it to Joseph Baker, the first settler, and in whose honor the town was finally named, for £500, the deed being given February 21, 1791. On the 25th of the following October, this tract, together with Smithfield and Fairfield, were formed into two towns, Fairfield and Bakersfield. Bakersfield remained thus until October 31, 1798, when Knight's Gore was annexed to it, and a part set off to Enosburgh, and, finally, October 26, 1799, a part of Coit's Gore was annexed to Bakersfield, so that it contained about 27,000 acres. Some changes in boundary have taken place since, however.

* As the whole county lies in north latitude, with longitude reckoned east from Washington, the terms north and east will hereafter be omitted.

About 3,000 acres have been annexed to Waterville, and the boundary between itself and Enosburgh has been straightened, so that the town now contains only about 24,000 acres.

In surface, Bakersfield is broken into serrated hills, though not mountainous, and has a general altitude of about five hundred feet above the ocean, the highest elevation being bald mountain, situated in the southeastern part of the town, from which an extensive view of wild, picturesque scenery may be obtained. The mountain has an elevation of about 1,000 feet. The soil is generally warm and productive, sustaining large crops of grass and grain, its timber being principally hard wood. The territory is watered by several small streams, tributaries of the Missisquoi river; Black creek, flowing across the southern part of the town from east to west, being the largest, and none of them containing any extensive mill sites. A small pond, called Trout Lake, is situated in the southeastern part of the town.

Geologically, the formation of the town is of the rock known as talcose schist, and does not materially differ from others overlying that rock. There are two beds of limestone appearing in the northeastern, and a bed of soapstone in the eastern part. Several mineral springs, and a small cave, known as Smugglers' Cave, situated in the southeastern part, are the only natural curiosities of the township.

In 1880, Bakersfield had a population of 1,248, was divided into fourteen school districts and contained fourteen common schools, employing four male and twenty-three female teachers, to whom was paid an aggregate salary of $1,176.24. There were 308 pupils attending common school, while the entire cost of the schools for the year ending October 31st., was $1,300.86. J. L. Forman was superintendent of schools.

BAKERSFIELD, a post village, is very pleasantly located near the central part of the town, with its main street extending nearly in a north and south direction. It contains three churches, (Cong., Meth., and Roman Cath.,) two hotels, six stores, Brigham academy, a steam mill, meat market, shoe-shop, two livery stables, two blacksmith shops, two carriage shops, one cabinet maker's shop, a hose company, and the usual complement of dressmaker and milliner shops, etc. It has among its professional men three lawyers, two doctors, and one dentist. The village has, since 1840, when Bakersfield academy was established, been noted for its educational facilities, sustaining two fine academies most of the time. This reputation is still maintained by Brigham academy, founded in 1877, by Peter B. Brigham, of Boston, he having given the town $30,000.00 at that time as a permanent fund to be used for school purposes. The academy building, whose location is unsurpassed for beauty and healthfulness, together with the land upon which it stands, was donated by Mrs. Sarah B. Jacobs, Mrs. S. Jane Kendall, Mrs. Roxana B. Hankinson, and Mrs. Jonathan Northrup. The school was opened in September, 1879, since which time its primary object has been to provide an opportunity for the young people of the town to procure a liberal education, though it solicits the patronage of a limited number of non-residents, as two hundred pupils can be accommodated. The course of study is the usual English and scientific, and college preparatory. The first principal of the academy was Mr. F. L. Irish, but since 1880, it has been very ably conducted by the present principal, Mr. Otis S. Johnson.

Charles B. Brown's saw and grist-mill, located on road 19, is operated by water-power, and does custom work. The grist-mill has the capacity for grinding one hundred bushels of grain per day, while the saw-mill turns out about 200,000 feet of lumber annually.

Danford Ayers' saw and grist-mill, located in the northeastern part of the town, on road 14, does custom sawing, and grinding of feed. The saw-mill is furnished with a circular saw, and is capable of cutting 5,000 feet of lumber daily.

John Rooney's saw-mill, located in the southern part of the town, on road 42, is supplied with a circular saw and planing machinery, and has the capacity for sawing 500,000 feet of lumber annually.

Rensselaer Tupper's tannery, located on road 26, manufactures uppers and harness leather, making about $1,200.00 worth annually.

The town poor-farm, located in the northern part of the township, contains 160 acres, owned by this town in union with Montgomery, Richford and Fletcher, with Amos W. Potter, superintendent. The buildings are commodious, and kept scrupulously clean, while everything possible is done to make a pleasant home for the indigent ones, fifteen of whom are now harbored there.

As previously intimated, Joseph Baker, after whom the town was named, was the first settler. The precise time of his settlement is not known, though it was during the year 1789-'90. He was joined, in 1791, by his son-in-law, Stephen Maynard, and Jonas Brigham, with their families, after which no settlers arrived until 1794, when Jeremiah Pratt, Luke Potter, and Jonathan Farnsworth located in the town. In the winter of 1796, Thomas Potter, from Brookfield, Mass., took up his residence here, making the fourteenth family to arrive, the whole population being then the families of the following named gentlemen: Joseph Baker, Jonas Brigham, Stephen Maynard, Jeremiah Pratt, Jonathan Farnsworth, Levi Brown, Samuel Cochrane, Solomon Davis, Aaron Smith, Elisha Boyce, Joshua Barnes, Edward Baker and Jacob Huntley. In 1800, the population had increased to 222, forty new families having moved into the town during that year.

The warning for the first town-meeting, dated at Cambridge, March 18, 1795, read as follows:—

“WHEREAS, there have a number of the inhabitants of the town of Bakersfield made application to us as the law directs, to warn the Town Meeting; these are therefore to warn the inhabitants of the town of Bakersfield, that are qualified to vote, to meet at the dwelling house of Joseph Baker, Esq., in Bakersfield, on Monday, of instant March, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of choosing town officers, as the law directs, and to do any other business proper on said day.”

Pursuant to this warning, the meeting was held on the 30th day of March, when the following officers were elected: Stephen Maynard, town clerk; Jonas Brigham, Joseph Baker, and Stephen Maynard selectmen; Amos Cutler, constable; and Jeremiah Pratt, hayward. At the first freemen's meeting, held September 16, 1796, the records show that there were nineteen votes cast for Thomas Chittenden for governor, and one for Isaac Tichenor. Jonas Brigham was elected a representative to the general assembly, an office he held for seventeen years. He was also the first justice of the peace, chosen in 1795, serving in that capacity twenty-six years.

Soon after Mr. Brown took up his residence here, a small party of Indians camped during the winter in the swamp back of the present Methodist parsonage, and during their stay a papoose was born, the first child known to have been born in the township. The first white child born here was Betsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard, January 13, 1793. She was a granddaughter of Mr. Baker, in honor of which he gave her fifty acres of land. She became the wife of Hon. Austin Fuller. The first male child born was Cheney, son of Jonas Brigham, April 22, 1793. The first marriage was that of John Maynard to Elizabeth Knowles, in 1799. The first death was that of Isaac F. Farnsworth, August 17, 1798. The second was that of Elisha P. Pratt, November 20, 1798, aged eleven years and three months. Elder Joseph Call, a Baptist minister, preached his funeral sermon, the first sermon preached in the town. The first framed house was built by Jeremiah Pratt, in 1797 or '98. The first grist and saw-mill was built in 1794, by Elisha Boyce, upon the site now occupied by Charles B. Brown's mill. The first carding machine was set up by Carpenter & Jones, near the tannery. The first tannery was built by Joseph Baker, in 1796. The first hotel was kept by Samuel Cochran, in the southern part of the town. Stephen Maynard kept the first hotel at the center of the town. The first physicians were Ebenezer Williams, Thomas Lassel, and Amos Town. Col. S. Hazeltine kept the first store. The first resident lawyer was Eben Barlow. John Maynard was the first postmaster. The first militia company was formed in 1802, under Capt. Wilkinson. The first artillery company in 1806, under Capt. Start. The first school in town was taught by Foster Paige, in a log building a mile or so north of the present village, about the year 1797.

Jonas Brigham was born in 1748, and came to this town, from North Brookfield, Mass., in the spring of 1791, locating in the northern part, where Walter Cutting now resides. Here he erected a log house which he occupied until able to build a more pretentious dwelling, the one now occupied by Mr. Cutting. He was the first representative of the town, elected in 1796. The next year the town by vote resolved not to elect a representative, but in 1798, he was returned by a unanimous vote, retaining the office for the next sixteen consecutive years. He also held the office of justice of the peace a term of years. His death occurred December 1, 1826, in his seventy-eighth year. His children were Michael, Eli, Hannah, Sally, Patty, Jonas, Luther, Asa, Betsey, and Cheney, none of whom are living. His representatives in the town now are ten grandchildren, with their families.

Josiah Fay Brigham, the sixth child of Uriah and Elizabeth (Fay) Brigham was born in Bakersfield, October 11, 1801, and died here August 28, 1878. Mr. Brigham was a man of wide reading, of independent thought, of pure morals, of upright character, kind to his neighbors, and gentle to his family. Being a Democrat in politics, he was on the unpopular side in the Green Mountain State, which has always been Whig or Republican; yet at three different times (1857, 1869, 1876,) he was elected to the State legislature, and frequently filled the office of selectman. The last time he was elected to the legislature, Deacon Asa Dean, one of the oldest citizens of the town, and a life-long Whig and Republican, braved the inclemency of the weather, and came out to vote for him, saying that he knew he was voting for an honest man. On relating this fact to a friend in Montpelier, Mr. Brigham said, with that frankness and simplicity so characteristic of him, that he regarded Deacon Dean's remark as one of the most flattering compliments he had ever received. In speaking of his death, a correspondent to the Montpelier Argus and Patriot made the following tribute to his memory:—

“My acquaintance with Mr. Brigham began thirty years ago, when I was a student at Bakersfield academy. He was then an influential citizen and a substantial farmer, in the very prime of life, and impressed me as a gentleman of strong points of character, of more than ordinary intelligence, and of positive opinions. The impressions then made have been strengthened as we have occasionally met since. For candor and frankness in the expression of his opinions, which on some subjects were peculiar to himself, and for dignity of manner and courtly bearing, he was rarely excelled. * * * He enjoyed the esteem of his fellow townsmen to a high degree, and exerted an important influence upon all public affairs. He was a Democrat throughout his long life. Having been schooled and practised in the customs and ways of days long gone by, he naturally looked with distrust and suspicion on the extravagances and pretences of the present day. A great void has been created by his death, which it would be difficult to fill. To pay a simple tribute of respect to his memory is the object of these lines.”

Simeon Maynard and Deacon John Perkins came to Bakersfield from Massachusetts, at an early day in the history of the town, making their way through the deep snow on a sled drawn by two yoke of oxen. Mr. Maynard had come on the year previous, built a log house, cleared some land, and planted and harvested crops, which he stored away to await the coming of his family, which consisted of a wife and one child. Here he resided on road 17, upon the farm now owned by his son, Harrison, until his death, at the age of eighty years. He was held in high esteem by his townsmen, who often chose him to fill offices of trust. Of his family of ten children, five are yet living, Calvin and James in this town, Harrison in St. Albans, and Foradice and Mariette in Massachusetts.

Willis Ross, from Sterling, Mass., came to this town at an early day, locating in the northeastern part. The farm upon which he settled has since been divided among several owners, the major portion being now the property of Patrick Brady. Mr. Ross was early promoted to the office of captain of militia, and served his company faithfully. He died in 1837, aged sixty years. He was the father of eleven children, eight of whom are now living, one, Horace, in this town.

William Giddings, from Massachusetts, came to Bakersfield, in company with Capt. Daniel M. Stearns and Thomas Childs, making their way through the forest by means of two teams of horses and two yoke of oxen, occupying four weeks on the journey. Mr. Giddings was one of the first pioneers in the eastern part of the town, that portion having been settled later than other parts, owing to its heavy growth of then unvaluable hemlock timber. He erected a blacksmith shop soon after his settlement, and followed that occupation, together with farming, until his death, at an advanced age. The old homestead is now owned by his grandson, Joseph Giddings. Two others of his grandchildren are residents of the town, Simeon on road 6, and William H., a practicing physician, located at the village.

Benjamin Doane, from North Brookfield, Mass., was an early settler in the eastern part of the town. He remained there but a short time, however, when he removed to the farm now occupied by his son, Benjamin. He died in 1855, aged seventy-four years. Of his family of ten children three only are now living.

Thomas Potter, born at North Brookfield, Mass., November 16, 1757, started for this town, with his family, on the 29th of February, 1796. He made his way with an ox team, being twenty-one and one-half days on the road. Mr. Potter became one of the most esteemed men of the town and died at the advanced age of eighty-eight years. Mrs. Potter, a most excellent lady, died at the great age of ninety-two years. They had a family of eleven children. Their son, Silas, was eight years of age when he came here with his parents. He married Dolly Hunter, and became one of the most prominent and public-spirited men of the town, and served his people as selectman for a period of twenty-four years, besides other important town offices, for all of which he received but four dollars in recompense, a fact fully illustrating his unselfishness. He had a family of six children by his first wife, who died in 1847, and one son by his second wife, Laura Lock. He lived to the good old age of eighty-five years, retaining his mental faculties wonderfully well to the last. His wife survived him about two years.

Thomas Ayers, born in Brookfield, Mass., in 1768, removed with his family to this town in 1799, locating in the northern part, near road 8. He afterwards removed to a place near the present town poor-farm. Mr. Ayers had a large family of children, and many of his descendants now reside in the town. He built a saw-mill on the site now occupied by Danford Ayers's mill, soon after his arrival here, which proved a great accommodation to his neighbors.

Moses Wheelock, from Westmoreland, came to Bakersfield about the year 1800. He was a carpenter and joiner by trade, and his first job after coming here was to build a house for Dea. Pratt, the same now occupied by Dr. Cutler, at the village. At this time Mr. Wheelock and his wife boarded with Mr. Pratt, where they made it their home for two or three years, then removed to the farm where their son, Hiram K., now resides. Mr. Wheelock died at the age of eighty-five years, while his wife attained the unusual age of ninety-seven years. They were the parents of six children, two of whom, Hiram K. and Emerson, now reside in the town.

Ephraim Maynard, from Oakham, Mass., came here about the year 1800, and located on road 21, where he continued to reside the remainder of his long life, being eighty-five years of age when he died. Of his large family of fifteen children, only four are now living.

Dr. Ebenezer Williams, born at Plainfield, N. H., in 1768, came to this town in 1801, and located upon the farm now known as the Wheelock place. He subsequently located upon the farm owned by John J. Hill, where he died, in 1848. He had a family of six children, the eldest of whom, George W., married Emily A. Leach and reared a family of four children. George W. occupied the old homestead until 1867, when he sold it and removed to the village, where he died in 1877. He was the father of four children. His eldest son, Merritt B., was captain of Co. G, 13th Regt., and died from wounds received at Gettysburgh. His son, Wesley C., was also a soldier during the late war, and now resides at Claremont, N. H. Sarah E. (Mrs. J. J. Hill) resides on the old homestead, her sister, Effie, residing with her. David K., the second son of Dr. Williams, was a Congregationalist minister. He obtained his education through hard labor and strict economy, graduating from the theological school at Bangor, Me.

Thomas Tupper, from Barnard, Vt., came to this town in 1801, and was the first settler on the farm now owned by Clinton Cross. He subsequently removed to the farm now the property of his son, Jackson Tupper, where he died, aged eighty-nine years. He was a volunteer captain of artillery during the war of 1812, and was present at the battle of Plattsburgh, though he took no part in the engagement. Mr. Tupper reared a family of eleven children, four of whom, Rensselaer, Solon, Sarah, and Jackson, now reside in the town.

Elisha Parker, born at Hardwick, Mass., in 1787, came to Bakersfield in 1802, and located on road 40, upon the farm now occupied by his daughter, Mrs. M. Converse.

Joseph Park, from Paxton, Mass., came here in 1804, and located in the southern part of the town, upon the farm now owned by J. W. Stone.

Robert Scott came to Bakersfield, from Townsend, Vt., in 1804, and settled upon the farm now owned by his grandson, Hamlet H. Scott. Mr. Scott was a sturdy, hard-working man, and died at the age of sixty-nine years. His son, Thomas W., succeeded him to the homestead.

Daniel Spofford, from Temple, N. H., came to this town about the year 1810, and built a small log cabin in the wilderness, which he occupied, with his family, until lumber became more plentiful, when he built a more commodious place, where his son, Daniel, now resides. He became interested in the early military affairs of the town, and held all the company offices, from corporal to captain. He died in 1870, aged eighty-two years, being a hale and hearty man up to the time of his death.

Josiah Shattuck was born at Townsend, Vt., October 20, 1781, married Sarah Boutell, of Athens, Vt., and came to Bakersfield in 1812, locating where Willis L. Tillotson now resides. He had a family of eleven children, two of whom, William B. and Jason L., reside in the town.

Benjamin Upton came to Bakersfield about the year 1812, and located upon the farm now owned by his son-in-law, Simeon Giddings. Mr. Upton attained the great age of one hundred years and ten months. He was the father of ten children, three of whom are now living.

Peter Powers, from Temple, N. H., came to this town in 1818, and located about half a mile east of the village, upon the farm now owned by Dr. Cutler. He lived but four years after his settlement here, and left a family of eight children, two of whom are yet residents of the town.

On January 8, 1866, the pioneers of Bakersfield, so-called, held a re-union at the residence of Bradley Brigham, Mr. and Mrs. Brigham being grandchildren of Jonas Brigham and Thomas Potter. Those who were gathered together, about fifty in number, were children of the first settlers, and most of them aged over three-score years and ten. There are now but twelve of those who attended the party living.

During the war of 1812, this town furnished the following named soldiers who were present at the battle of Plattsburgh: M. Stearns, captain, Ichabod Wilkinson, John Doane, Francis B. Parker, Elisha Field, Benjamin Barnes, Josiah Doane, Orrin Holbrook, Samuel Sumner, Moses Brown, Jr., Prentice Farnsworth, Theophilus Potter, Ebenezer B. Scott, Eleazer Williams, Ewel Rice, Jacob Huntley, Josiah Edson, Jonathan Fullington, Joseph Hazelton, Jonathan Fay, Andrew Farnsworth, and John Prentiss. During the late civil war Bakersfield furnished 123 enlisted men and three commissioned officers, seventeen of whom died, from natural causes or from wounds received in action, before their term of service expired.

The subject of preaching and the gospel ministry early received attention. In the warning for the town meeting in March, 1801, was an article "to see if the town would grant money or a sum to be paid in produce, to hire preaching for three months, the coming season, or act thereon in any way that they shall think proper." This was not carried at this time, but was renewed the following year, and in June, 1804, a meeting of the inhabitants qualified to vote, was called, "to see if the town will agree to give the Rev. Samuel Sumner an invitation to settle with them in the gospel ministry, and if the town will agree upon a yearly salary for his service." This meeting was held June 14th, at the dwelling of Col. Silas Hazeltine, with Elisha Parker, moderator. It was voted to "give the Rev. Samuel Sumner an invitation to settle with them in the gospel ministry, and to give the sum of $100.00 for a yearly salary, to be paid in good merchantable wheat, at cash price, the 20th day of January, annually." And it was also voted to give him twenty-five acres of land, at the northeast corner of lot No. 1, called the ministerial lot.

The First Congregational Church of Bakersfield was organized July 4, 1811, by a committee of the North Western Consociation, consisting of the following clergyman: Revs. Wooster, Parker, Parmelee, and Truair. Its first members were Josiah Sheldon, Jeremiah Pratt, William Perkins, Joseph Ross, Ezra Allen, Daniel Stebbins, Lydia Perkins, Hannah Hazletine, Peggy Shoet, Elizabeth Ross and Lydia Allen.

For a period of ten years, the church had no regular minister. The first that remained a year was Elderkin Boardman; he ministered to the church five years, and was succeeded by Samuel Perry, one year; S. G. Penny, three years; Mr. Batchelder, one year; Thomas Canfield, five years; Daniel Warren, seven years; C. W. Piper, six years; G. F. Wright, ten years; and R. Hicks, five years. The present pastor is J. K. Fuller, in the sixth year of his ministry. The following have served as deacons of the church in the order of their election: Jeremiah Pratt, Amery Parker, William Perkins, Asa Dean, Cyrus Barnes, Joseph Allen, Andrew Farnsworth, Horace Denio, John A. Perkins, and James Perkins. Nearly five hundred persons have had connection with this church, and the present membership is 119.

The first house of worship, built of brick, was dedicated in March, 1831. This building waxed old, and has gone to decay. The present edifice, a brick structure, located on the common, near the cemetery, was erected in 1850. It is pleasant and commodious, and will seat five hundred persons with comfort. Its original cost was about $3,000.00. The present value of church property, including parsonage and grounds, is something over $5,000.00. The Sabbath school numbers eighty scholars, with an average attendance of sixty-four.

The church, in 1839, took decided grounds upon the subject of temperance, and with regard to vain amusements and Sabbath observance, and, in fact, upon all practical questions of morality it planted itself firmly; and through its able ministry, deacons, and laymen, it has not ceased to teach and preach all truth and duty that make up the well-developed, symmetrical Christian. It has had no hobbies, and is liberal in its interpretation of creed and scripture; is always the friend and promoter of common schools and higher education. It has performed no unimportant part in the formation of a staple, healthy, public sentiment in favor of morals and intelligence, besides leading to that higher life in Christ, into which it has helped many from year to year.

The Methodist Church of Bakersfield.—Methodist classes were formed, one in the northeastern and the other in the southern part of the town, at an early date, but at what time it is impossible to tell precisely. The class in the southwestern part was formed by Isaac Hill, from Fairfield, as early as 1806. On January 27, 1816, the town voted to divide the money arising from the rents of the ministerial lands between the two societies, in the proportion of two-thirds to the Congregational society, and one-third to the Methodist. Afterwards it was divided pro rata, according to the members of the respective societies, including a Freewill Baptist and a Universalist society. These latter have ceased to exist as separate organizations.

St. George's Catholic Church of Bakersfield.—In the early part of the year 1867, the Catholics of Bakersfield bought the lower part of the old academy building, paying therefor $600.00, and fitted it up as a chapel. The first resident pastor was Rev. P. Savoie, in 1868, who remained two years. After his removal the church was supplied by pastors from Fairfield, once each month. In 1879, Rev. Father Brelivet, of Enosburgh, attended the church, and again in 1881 and 1882, it was supplied by Fairfield. The church now consists of about forty families, is out of debt, and it is hoped by many that the whole building will be given to the society.

BERKSHIRE, one of the northern tier of towns of the county, lies in lat. $44^{\circ} 58'$, and long. $4^{\circ} 16'$, bounded north by the Canada line, east by Richford, south by Enosburgh, and west by Franklin. It was granted by the State to William Goodrich, Brazilla Hudson, Charles Dibble and their associates, fifty-nine in all, March 13, 1780, and chartered June 22, 1781. It was intended it should have the usual township area of 23,040 acres, but through an error in locating its boundary lines, it received some 2,000 acres beyond its charter limits, so that it has an area of about 25,000 acres.

The surface of the township is broken into gentle swells and hills, rising from the beds of the several streams, though never so abruptly as to retard cultivation of the soil. These grass-grown hill slopes form excellent pasture land and afford sustenance to large herds of cattle, so that the town is principally noted as a grazing section. Still, it possesses a strong, arable soil, varying in different localities, which produces fine crops of grain. The rich alluvial tracts along the streams are especially productive. Missisquoi river, the principal stream, flows across the southeastern corner of the town, entering from Richford. Pike river rises in the northern part of the town, near the Canada line, and after a very circuitous course south and west, turns north again and enters Canada. Trout brook has its source near the central part of the town and flows south into Enosburgh. On these streams, though there are others of lesser magnitude, are numerous excellent mill privileges, several of which are in use. The timber is mostly beech, maple, bass, elm, and hemlock. The products for export, manufactured and agricultural, have an excellent means of transportation to market in the Missisquoi railroad, which crosses the southeastern part of the town, with a station at East Berkshire village. In 1869, when the road was put through, the town was bounded to the amount of $26,200.00; but a few of the people were averse to this debt, and proposed that the bonds be bought up. A meeting was called and a vote taken, which resulted in their carrying their point by a majority of thirty-five. A committee was appointed to transact the business consisting of Henry Ladd, E. A. Hull, and A. A. Moore. This committee succeeded in making the purchase at a discount of twenty per cent., payable in three instalments, so that the town is now free from debt.

The geological structure of Berkshire is very uniform, as nearly the whole rock formation is composed of talcose schist with its various component parts. There are, however, several small beds of granite, syenite and proctigne, lying in the northern and southern parts. A bed of steatite, or soapstone, also is found east of the center. No minerals, to any extent, have been found, except iron. This is quite abundant, sufficient to warrant an almost inexhaustible supply. Upon the farm of H. Yaw, on road 8, there is a mine of this ore which was discovered many years ago. The ore has lately been tested at the iron works in Troy, Vt., and pronounced a superior quality. The mine bids fair to become quite valuable.

In 1880, Berkshire had a population of 1,596, was divided into fourteen school districts, and contained fourteen common schools, employing eight male and sixteen female teachers, to whom was paid an aggregate salary of $1,355.34. There were 347 pupils attending common school, while the entire cost of the schools for the year ending October 31st, was $1,507.61, with S. S. Davis, superintendent.

EAST BERKSHIRE, a post village and station on the Missisquoi R. R., located in the southeastern part of the town on the Missisquoi river, contains two churches (Cong. and Epis.), one hotel, three stores, two millinery shops, a horse-power and churn manufactory, carriage shop, two blacksmith shops, an undertaker's store, and about 150 inhabitants. An extensive and destructive fire occurred here on the 29th of April, 1868, destroying in all some thirty-five buildings. The fire originated in the business portion of the village, on the north side of the river, and burned all the stores. Among the heaviest losers were the present firms of W. S. Rublee & Son, and Paul & Moren.

WEST BERKSHIRE, a post village located in the northwestern part of the town on Pike river, contains one church (Meth.), one hotel, two stores, a tannery, sash and blind manufactory, a wheelwright and blacksmith shop, and undertaking and cabinet shop, and about one hundred inhabitants.

L. A. Weld's saw-mill, also located at West Berkshire, was built by E. Weld in 1865. It cuts about 25,000 feet of lumber per year, and has a cider-mill connected with it, which manufactures 240 barrels of cider annually.

The first settler in Berkshire was Job L. Barber, who came here with his wife and child in 1792, and settled on the west bank of the Missisquoi. A short time after this Stephen Royce moved into the town, and located about a mile below Barber's, and Daniel Adams commenced a settlement where the village of West Berkshire now is. During that winter, however, none of them remained here. Barber removed his family to Franklin, and the others had not yet brought their families into the town; but in the spring, they all returned, so that in the latter part of April, 1793, there were three families residing here. During this year, and the one following it, a few additional settlers arrived, among whom were Capt. Phineas Heath and Capt. David Nutting, revolutionary officers, Jonathan Carpenter, and James Adams. From this time forward the settlement increased rapidly, so that in 1800, the town had a population of 172.

The town was organized and the first town meeting held, March 7, 1796, when David Nutting was elected town clerk; Stephen Royce, James Adams, and Silas Pollard, selectmen; and Timothy R. Barker, constable. Stephen Royce was also chosen the first representative, during this year. He had already been appointed justice of the peace, even as early as 1794, and continued to hold that office for a period of eleven years. The first birth was that of Elihu M. Royce, July 19, 1793. The first resident minister was Rev. John Barnet. The first regular physician who located here was Dr. Amherst Willoughby, in 1798. The first lawyer was Solomon Brigham, a man of considerable talent.

remained there a number of years, and finally removed to Canada, where he died. Frank located in the northern part of the town, and from there emigrated to one of the Western States, where he died. John B., settled upon a farm just east of West Berkshire, and served the town as an efficient officer until his death. Hiram and Daniel Rublee, sons of Capt. Andrew, are still living, the former in Enosburgh Falls and the latter in Franklin. David Rublee, father of George, who resides on road 27, was born in this town in 1798, and is now living in Iowa, aged eighty-four years. Numerous descendants of these brothers reside in the town and throughout the State.

Robert Noble, from Pownal, Vt., was one of the early settlers of the town, having located upon the farm now owned by his son, William P. He took an active part in town affairs, held most of the town offices, and died here in 1860, aged seventy-six years, leaving a large family of children. William P. was born in 1828, and has always resided on the old homestead.

John, the eldest, located in the western portion of the town, while the others established themselves along the banks of the Missisquoi river. Benjamin located where Addison Pond lies, and reared a large family of children, who brought honor and respectability to the family. He died in 1850, aged eighty-one years. Mitchell, the only son now living, is nearly eighty-two years of age. He is a second cousin to President Arthur. James R. Robert Anderson came to Berkshire about the year 1814, and located in the eastern part of the town, where he reared a family of eight children, and died in 1843. His son, Seth P., fourteen years of age when his father came here, died on the old homestead, in 1878. The place is now occupied by Seth's son, Ira S., one of the present selectmen, Joel Gaines, from Gifford, Vt., came to this town about the year 1800, locating in the central part. He was a shoemaker by trade, and the first to introduce pegged shoes here. He died in 1880, aged eighty-five years.

Asahel Denning came here in 1822, leased a carding-mill and run it one year, then bought the carding-mill and cloth dressing works and continued the business for a period of thirty-seven years. In 1844, he opened a store at West Berkshire, where he continued to do business most of the time up to 1876, when he retired. He is now eighty-one, and his wife eighty-four, years of age.

Hon. Stephen Royce, who was so long an honored citizen of Berkshire, was born at Tinmouth, Vt., August 17, 1787, and removed with his parents to this town April 25, 1793. During the year 1800, he was placed by his parents in a common school of his native town, where his improvement was so rapid that during the following year he entered upon an academical course at Middlebury, under the tuition of Chester White, subsequently a clergyman of considerable note. Owing to the ill health and financial embarrassments of his father, young Royce was enabled to enter college only by the exercise of the greatest industry and economy. He graduated from Middlebury college with the class of 1807. In 1809, he was admitted to practice as an attorney in the county court, having studied with his uncle, Ebenezer Marvin, Jr. In 1817, Mr. Royce removed to St. Albans, where he pursued the practice of his profession with diligence until the autumn of 1825, when he was elected a judge of the supreme court. The town of St. Albans had chosen him as their representative to the legislature in 1822, 1823, and 1824, and also as a delegate to the State constitutional convention in 1823. He held the office of judge during 1825 and 1826, and declining a re-election in the autumn of 1827, returned to the practice of his profession until the autumn of 1829, when he again accepted the appointment of judge, which he held by successive elections up to 1852, a period of twenty-three years, the last six of which he was chief justice of the court. In 1852, he closed his judicial labors by declining another election. He was elected Governor of the State for the years 1854 and 1855, and retired to private life in the latter year. Mr. Royce was never married. His death occurred in Berkshire, November 11, 1868.

Dr. G. S. Goodrich, of West Berkshire, was born at Swanton, Vt., in 1822, and located where he now resides in 1856. The Doctor was educated at the Bakersfield academy, after which he read medicine with Dr. Fasset, of East Berkshire (now of St. Albans), and graduated from the Burlington medical college with the class of 1853. He married Jane Miner, of Richford, by whom he has been blessed with three children, Alice D., Ada L., and Maraquetta K.

Henry Ladd was born in Enosburgh, where his father was an early settler, in 1818. He came to Berkshire in 1840, locating in the eastern part of the town; but in 1853, he removed to West Berkshire, where he still resides. He is a large land owner and has held most of the town offices.

William J. Ayer, from St. Armand, P. Q., located in the northern part of this town in 1840, where he is now one of the heavy land owners.

Ethan A. Hull, born at Fairfield, Vt., July 1, 1813, located in this town in 1861. He is an extensive farmer, a railroad commissioner, and has held most of the town offices.

During the war of 1812, Berkshire furnished the following list of soldiers, who were present at the battle of Plattsburgh: Capt. Elias Babcock, Sergt. Scott McKinney, Amos Chadwick, Samuel White, L. Hapgood, and Daniel Foster. Berkshire's tribute towards quelling the late rebellion was 119 enlisted men and two commissioned officers, twenty-two of whom gave up their lives in the cause.

The Calvary Episcopal Church, located at East Berkshire, was organized at a meeting held at the house of Dr. Titus Sampson, in March, 1818, there being six members. Rev. Joel Clapp was the first pastor. The first house of worship was a wood structure, built in 1822, which did service until 1873, when the present stone structure was erected. It will accommodate 200 persons, cost $7,000.00, and is valued at $10,000.00. The society now has forty-seven members, with Rev. William Westoner, rector.

The East Berkshire Congregational Church was organized with nine members, by the Rev. Benjamin Wooster, in 1820. The first pastor was Rev. Phineas Bailey. The first church building was erected in 1822, did service until 1860, and was superseded by the present structure. It will seat 200 persons, cost $2,000.00, and is now valued at $3,000.00. The society has seventy-seven members, with Rev. Elias W. Hatch, pastor.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, located at West Berkshire, was organized in 1845. The society has 200 members with Rev. William Puffer, pastor. The building will seat 200 persons and is valued at $3,000.00.

The Union Church, located at Berkshire Center, was built, and has since been occupied, as a union church, the denominations contributing to its erection and maintenance holding services therein alternately, in proportion to their respective contributions. The Universalists, the Baptists and the Methodists are supposed to be the principal, and perhaps the only, owners, though neither has yet had a settled or permanently resident minister connected with the church.

 ENOSBURGH, located in the eastern-central part of the county, in lat. 44° 52', and long. 4° 15', bounded north by Berkshire, east by Montgomery, south by Bakersfield, and west by Sheldon, was granted as a township to contain thirty-six square miles, by Gov. Thomas Chittenden, March 12, 1780, and chartered the 15th of the following May, to Roger Enos, from whom the town received its name, and fifty-nine associates. The restrictions and reservations under which the charter was issued were as follows:—

“Each proprietor of the town of Enosburgh, his heirs and assigns shall plant and cultivate five acres of land, and build a house at least eighteen feet square on the floor, or have one family settle on each respective right, or share of land, within the term of four years next after the circumstances of the war will admit of settlement with safety, on penalty of forfeiture of his grant or share of land in said town; the same to revert to the freemen of this State, to be by their representatives regranted to such persons as shall appear to settle and cultivate the same. Secundo: That all pine and oak timber suitable for a navy be reserved for the use and benefit of the freemen of this State.”

But as the town was not settled until many years after the date of the charter, the conditions attending its grant were not complied with. Still it does not appear that any of the grantees forfeited their right. On October 31, 1798, a portion of the town of Bakersfield was annexed, so that the town now contains something more than the original six miles square, or 23,040 acres.

In surface, Enosburgh is considerably diversified by mountain, hill, and dell, having a very picturesque contour, the eastern portion of the town lying entirely upon a spur of the Green Mountains. The western and central portions, however, are more level and unbroken. The soil generally is better adapted to the growth of grass than grain, though the alluvial flats in the basins of the several streams, and in the mountain valleys, is exceedingly rich and productive, yielding a large percentage of the fruits and grains indigenous to this latitude, with comparatively little labor. The country is well watered, and many excellent mill sites are afforded, by numerous streams, the principal ones being the Missisquoi river, flowing a westerly course through the northern part of the town, Trout river flowing across the northeastern corner, and Tyler's branch flowing across nearly the whole southern part of the town from east to west. All of these streams, constituting the principal water-courses, have numerous tributaries, some of which are of considerable size. The timber is that common to most of the highland towns of the State, containing large quantities of maple, from which many thousand pounds of sugar is manufactured each year. Geologically, the rocks of the town are composed almost entirely of talcose schist, with its several varieties. The southeastern part contains a small bed of steatite, though no minerals of importance have been found. The Missisquoi railroad crosses the northern part of the town, with stations at North Enosburgh, Enosburgh Falls, and Sampsonville.

In 1880, Enosburgh had a population of 2,213, was divided into fifteen school districts, and contained seventeen common schools, employing eight male and nineteen female teachers, to whom was paid an aggregate salary of $1,795.00. There were 509 pupils attending common schools, while the entire cost of the schools for the year ending October 31st, was $2,093.80, with Reuben Chaffee, superintendent.

ENOSBURGH FALLS, a post village and station on the Missisquoi railroad, is beautifully situated in the midst of a prosperous agricultural community, in the northwestern part of the town, on the Missisquoi river. The falls at this point, from which the village receives its name, afford the finest water-power in the county. The village contains four churches, (Episcopal, Baptist, Methodist, and Roman Catholic,) nine stores, two millinery and three dress-making shops, a high school, one hotel, Kendall's spavin cure manufactory, three carriage shops with blacksmith shops, three horse-shoeing shops, one bakery, one tannery, a shoe shop, lumber and shingle-mill, broom-socket manufactory, grist-mill, jobbing shop, where sash, doors and blinds are also made, a saw-mill and box factory, a woolen-mill, a livery, one dentist, and one photograph gallery.

WEST ENOSBURGH, a post village located in the western part of the town on Tyler's branch, contains one church (Methodist), two stores, one blacksmith shop, a grist and flouring-mill, printing office, two shoe shops, and seven or eight dwellings.

EAST ENOSBURGH, a hamlet located a little southeast of the central part of the town, on a tributary of Tyler's branch, contains one church (Baptist), a blacksmith shop, district school-house, and several dwellings. By reason of two men by the name of Stone having lived here at an early day, it has locally borne the name of Stoneville since. There were mills erected here at one time, and some manufacturing carried on, though there is none at present.

ENOSBURGH CENTER (Enosburgh p. o.), a hamlet located near the center of the town, contains two churches (Congregational and Episcopal), one store, a blacksmith shop, wheelwright shop, a district school-house, hotel, and about half a dozen dwellings. The hamlet has a beautiful site, on an eminence, surrounded by well cultivated farms, betokening it the neighborhood of a thrifty class of people, rendering it also a desirable place in which to pass the heated months of summer. The hotel is kept by Mr. John Spooner, who has been its landlord for the past thirty years, and in that time gained an experience in hotel keeping, which, with the assistance of his very estimable wife, renders his house a most homelike and welcome retreat.

BORDOVILLE (p. o.), a hamlet located in the southwestern corner of the town, contains one church (Advent), one store, a wagon and blacksmith shop, and several dwellings.

NORTH ENOSBURGH (p. o.), a station on the Missisquoi railroad, is a small hamlet located in the northern part of the town, on the Missisquoi river, about twenty miles from St. Albans.

SAMPSONVILLE, a station on the Missisquoi railroad, is a small hamlet located on the Missisquoi river, containing a few dwellings, blacksmith shop, grist and saw-mill, and one store. It derived its name from a man by the name of Sampson who settled here many years ago. At one time it was the center of quite a lumbering district, mills were erected, and it bid fair to become a flourishing village; but for some reason it degenerated and the bustle of manufacture has dwindled down to one dilapidated old mill.

Manley & Towle's job shop and sash and door manufactory, located at Enosburgh Falls, was established by Sprague & Manley, in 1872, and operated by them until the spring of 1878, when the present firm took possession. The firm does a general line of job work, in addition to manufacturing sash, doors, blinds, and builders' furnishings. They employ five men.

Pierce's patent broom-socket manufactory, located at the Falls, was established in April, 1871, by the North American Broom Co. The works are operated by water-power, employ fifteen hands, and manufacture 6,000 broom-sockets per day.

The Missisquoi flouring and grist-mill, located at Enosburgh Falls, was established by the present owners, Stetson & Gilbert, in 1877. The mill is 40 by 50 feet in size, exclusive of wheel-house, and operates four runs of stones, in addition to one set of machinery for merchant work, employing three men.

Gladden & Marsh's saw-mill and box factory, located at the Falls, was built by J. Burt & Sons, in 1868, upon the site of a mill built by John Burt many years ago. It is furnished with a circular saw, and cuts 300,000 feet of lumber and manufactures about 50,000 boxes per year, in addition to a large number of "Simplicity" bee-hives, employing three men.

B. J. Kendall & Co.'s spavin cure laboratory, located at the Falls, was erected in 1880, for the manufacture of this remedy, ranking as one of the largest industries of the county. The building is a commodious wood structure, two and one-half stories in height, with a basement, and is furnished with all modern appliances and improvements for the manufacture of this valuable remedy. One large room is furnished with two printing presses and devoted entirely to preparing advertisements. The business now employs twenty men and is rapidly increasing.

The Lawrence saw and shingle-mill, located at the Falls, was originally established as a saw-mill, with an upright saw. In 1852, it was purchased by Sprague & Reed, who put in a circular saw, and on April 16, 1854, Reed's interest was purchased by John Lawrence, and the business continued under the firm name of Sprague & Lawrence until 1876, when Mr. Lawrence became sole owner and added the shingle-mill. The mill cuts about 500,000 feet of lumber and manufactures 100,000 shingles per year, employing four men.

Lucia's tannery, located at Enosburgh Falls, was built about sixteen years ago by John Kellogg. In 1871, Antoine Lucia, the present owner, purchased the property. The business is now carried on by Leonard Irish, who does a general line of custom tanning.

C. F. Ovitt & Sons' grist and flouring-mill, located at what was formerly known as Fuller's Falls, on Tyler's branch, was originally built by Judge Austin Fuller, the fourth he had built in this vicinity. It was destroyed by fire in 1877, and rebuilt by the present owners within four months subsequent to the fire. The mill is furnished with three runs of stones, and grinds 10,000 bushels of custom, and 12,000 bushels of merchant grain, per year.

The Missisquoi Woolen Mills, located at the Falls, were purchased by Milton A. Kent, the present owner, a half interest in 1865, and the remainder in 1870. The mill has a water-power capacity for four sets of mills, operates seven looms, but is capable of running thirty-two, and consumes about one hundred pounds of wool per day, employing twelve hands. It makes a specialty of cassimeres and flannels. Mr. Kent is extensively engaged in the glove and mitten business in Boston, so the mill here is doing but little business in comparison to what it might. It is managed by Harvey Clark, who has held the position since 1873.

John L. Perley's grist-mill, located at Sampsonville, was built by Norman Davis, upon the site of a mill built many years ago. The mill has one run of stones and does custom work.

Perley's saw-mill, located at Sampsonville, was built by Anson and John L. Perley, and is now the property of the latter. It is operated by water-power and uses a circular saw.

Gilbert's tannery, located on Tyler's branch, at the junction of roads 33 and 34, was built by John Tolman, from Massachusetts, in 1827, and sold to Dexter Gilbert, in 1837, who in turn transferred it to his son, Lyman, the present owner. It turns out about 1,000 hides and 6,000 skins per year, employing three hands.

Charles L. Rounds's carriage shop, located on road 45, was established by the present owner in 1878. It employs three hands, and does a general line of carriage and wagon work. Mr. Rounds has also a cider-mill attached which makes 400 barrels of cider per year.

L. C. Kendall's carriage shop, located on St. Albans street, turns out a general line of carriages, wagons, and sleighs, manufacturing about fifty of the former and thirty of the latter per year, giving employment to seven hands. Mr. Kendall also deals in lumber, lath, shingles, etc.

Alfred A. Simpkins's saw-mill, located on road 48, corner 52, is furnished with a circular saw and cuts about 350,000 feet of lumber per annum. It has also a shingle and custom feed-mill attached.

None of the original proprietors ever settled in the town. Their first meeting was held at the residence of Joseph Baker, in Bakersfield, September 8, 1795, when, and at subsequent meetings, the following business was transacted:—

“Chose Jedediah Hyde, Stephen House, Samuel D. Sheldon, Levi House, Amos Fassett, Joseph Baker and Martin D. Follett, a committee to allot said township at their discretion, after they have reviewed said township thoroughly. Adjourned to meet at five o'clock this P. M., at the house of Jonathan Fisk, in Cambridge. Attest, Jedediah Hyde, moderator; Martin D. Fisk, clerk. Met agreeably to adjournment. Adjourned till to-morrow at six o'clock, A. M., then to meet at this place. September 9, proprietors met agreeably to adjournment. First,—Voted that said committee lay out ten acres in center of said town of Enosburgh, for a public parade, or as near the center as the land will admit of; taking into view every other circumstance relating thereto; which ten acres to be laid in square form. Adjourned until the 24th of October next, at seven A. M., at the house of Joseph Baker, in Bakersfield. At which time the proprietors first voted to give Stephen House the privilege of pitching 400 acres of land, as the law specifies, for building a saw-mill and grist-mill in said town; which mills are to be completed at a time to be agreed upon by said proprietors at their next meeting; said House to give bonds for the performance of the business. Adjourned until the fifth day of May next, at nine o'clock A. M., at this place.”

From this time forward the proprietors met from time to time, transacting the usual business of a new settlement, until January 29, 1823, when they ceased, nothing of particular importance ever having been voted by them.

The first family who wintered in the town was that of a Mr. Balch, consisting of himself and wife, in the winter of 1796, and '97. They located in the western part of the town, upon what has since been known as Balch hill. Previous to this, from 1795, some who owned land had come on and worked upon it during the summer and returned to their homes in the winter. The real settlement of the town, however, dates from the spring of 1797, commenced by Amos Fassett, Henry House, Martin D. Follett and others, most of whom came from other towns in the State. But, once started, the settlement rapidly advanced, so that at the first freemen's meeting, September 3, 1799, twenty-eight persons took the oath of allegiance, and in 1800, the census returns show the town to have had a population of 143.

Among those who came into the town during the first years of its settlement, from 1795 to 1805, were the following: Stephen House, Henry Hopkins, Martin D. Follett, — Putnam, Amos Fassett, Isaac Baldwin, Samuel Cooper, Nathan Pierce, Ketch Peck, Ebenezer Bogue, James Tracy, Joseph Waller, William Barber, Robert Barber, Charles Rosier, Challis Safford, Ephraim Adams, Nathaniel Griswold, Gove Griswold, Thomas M. Farrar, town clerk; Charles Follett, Samuel Little, and Martin Dunning, selectmen; and Moses Farrar, constable. The first justice was Thomas Richards, chosen in 1767, and William Barber the first representative, in 1798. The first child born in the town was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Balch, previously mentioned. He was named Enos, from the name of the town, and, it is said, was cradled in a sap trough. He became a Methodist minister. The first birth, according to the records, was that of Anna F. Farrar, daughter of Isaac B. and Anna Farrar, June 4, 1798. The first marriage was that of Joshua Miller and Patty Rosier, March 25, 1802. The first mills as per contract with House, were built at the Falls. The first school-house was built of logs, covered with bark, and had a bark floor, the school being kept by Betsey Little. The first cart was owned by Stephen House, and the first wagon by Ephraim Adams. The first saw-mill, in the eastern part of the town, was built by T. M. Pollard. The first grist-mill, in the southeastern part of the town, by Joseph Wright, in 1812. The first framed school-house, at the Center, answered the purpose of town, court, school, and meeting-house, and was called the "town-house." The first harness maker was Ebenezer Bogue, who made the first harness of elm bark; he also established the first tannery, but meeting with success at neither, he commenced farming. The first store was kept by Deacon Thomas Fuller, at North Enosburgh, his goods being brought from Boston on an ox-sled.

The first death was that of a negro, who was frozen to death while passing through the town from Cambridge to Sheldon, where he was to be married. The next was that of Mr. Cole, killed while assisting in building a log house on the Safford place. Samuel Little kept the first tavern, at the Center.

Quite a number of the early settlers were veterans of the war for Independence, and some even had been enrolled among the Green Mountain Boys, against the Yorkers. In the war of 1812, the town responded to the call for aid with the following company: Martin D. Follett, captain; Benjamin Follet, lieutenant; Alvin Fassett, corporal; Solomon Dodge, Henry Follett, John Flint, Samuel Hedge, Barnabas Hedge, Nathan Hedge, Talma Hendrick, James Miller, John Miller, William Miller, John Martin, Joseph Pollard, Anthony Bessey, Abijah Rice, Enoch Pease, John Osborne, Laban Brown, Asa Ladd, Samuel Kendrick, privates; and Hiram Fassett, musician. Judge Amos Fassett, from Bennington, Vt., located at the Falls at a very early date, where he and Stephen House built the first saw-mill, receiving in consideration thereof, a grant of 800 acres of land, from the State legislature. Mr. Fassett was a man of sterling worth, and won the respect of all with whom he came in contact. He was the father of ten children, and died while attending court at St. Albans, in 1810. In 1832, he removed to Boston, where he was engaged in mercantile pursuits until 1840, when he returned to Enosburgh and located upon the farm he now occupies. Among the positions of trust he has ably filled are those of trustee of the University of Vermont for a period of ten years, State Senator in 1860-'61, member of the Constitutional Convention in 1850 and 1857, justice of the peace forty years, town lister for several years, and town auditor for the past thirty years, he being now a hale old man seventy-one years of age. His wife died March 29, 1882, aged sixty-nine years. John Whitcomb, an early settler, located upon the farm now owned by John M. Whitcomb, it never having passed out of the family possession since. Bliss, of Swanton, and Bradley and Prucilla (Mrs. H. B. Chamberlin) in this town. Mr. Bliss served in the war of 1812, and died as he had lived, a firm Baptist, August 12, 1855, at the house of his son-in-law, H. B. During this sojourn Mr. Gilbert collected a large number of curiosities, which may be seen at his residence on road 44.

years ago. During the war of 1812, he was in the British army, where he worked as a tailor. He located near the present Gilbert's tannery, where he established a small tannery, which was afterwards owned by John Tolman. He married Roxana Loomis, of Georgia, by whom he had a family of eleven children, two only of whom are left in the town, though there are numerous descendants. This family is of Scotch origin, having descended from John Bogue, a native of Glasgow, who came to America in 1680, and located at East Hoddam, Conn.

The First Congregational Church of Enosburgh, located at Enosburgh Center, was organized by James Parker and John Truax, with ten members, in 1811, the Rev. Thomas Skelton acting as their first pastor. The first church edifice was built in 1820, a wooden structure, which gave place to the present pleasant edifice erected in 1870. It is built of wood, will seat 250 persons, and cost $10,000.00, about its present value. The society now has 142 members, with Rev. Alfred Swift, pastor. The church also has a well-conducted Sabbath school, with an average attendance of 140, superintended by G. S. Fassett.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, located at West Enosburgh, was organized by the Rev. Isaac Hall, with fifteen members, about the year 1825. The church building was originally built in 1839, removed and repaired in 1855, and again in the summer of 1882, so that it is now a comfortable brick structure capable of seating 200 persons, and valued at $2,500.00. The society has at present sixty-seven members, with Rev. Henry Bushnell, pastor.

FAIRFAX, a pentagonal shaped town located in the southern tier of the county, in lat. 44° 42' and long. 5° 56', is bounded north by Fairfield, east by Fletcher, south by Westford, in Chittenden county, and west by Georgia. It was granted by New Hampshire to Edward Burling and sixty-two others, August 18, 1763, entitling them to 23,040 acres, butted and bounded as follow:—

“Beginning at the northeasterly corner of Westford, a township lately granted, from thence running westerly by Westford, as that runs, to the north-westerly corner thereof, which is also the southeasterly corner of Georgia, thence turning off northwardly, and running by Georgia aforesaid, as that runs, to the northeasterly corner thereof; thence turning off easterly, and running so far on a parallel line with the northwardly side line of Westford aforesaid, as that a straight line drawn from that period to the northeasterly corner bound of Westford aforesaid, shall include the contents of six miles square—23,040 acres.”

The tract thus described was duly laid out and surveyed, and retains the same area now, no changes in its boundary lines ever having been made. The usual restrictions and reservations incident to the New Hampshire grants were contained in this charter, though there seems to have been little given to them by the settlers, or by the grantees themselves, none of whom, however, ever located in the town.

In surface Fairfax is broken and hilly, affording excellent pasturage for flocks, and producing abundant crops of hay and grain in its valleys and intervalles. None of the hills approach the dignity of mountains, though Buck hill approaches the nearest to the name. The scenery is varied and pleasing, as is the case with most of the towns in this vicinity. The soil is light and easily cultivated, and watered by several good sized streams which afford some fine mill-sites. The principal of these streams is the Lamoille river, one of the largest in the State. It enters the southern part of the town from Lamoille county and flows across the town, a serpentine course parallel with the southern boundary line. About midway between the eastern and western lines are falls on this river, where the water descends some eighty-eight feet in a distance of thirty rods, affording some of the best mill privileges in the county. Mill brook, rising in the northern part of the town, unites with the Lamoille at Fairfax village. Beaver Meadow brook rises in the northern part of the town, flows a southwesterly course and enters Georgia near the Lamoille. Brown's river enters from the south and unites with the Lamoille in the western part of the town. Lumbering has been one of the principal industries of the town, and is carried on to some extent at present, though the forests have mostly disappeared. The varieties of timber most common are maple, beech, elm, ash, basswood, of the deciduous kind; the pine, hemlock, spruce, and fir, with some cedar in the swamps, of the evergreen varieties. Fairfax is naturally divided into three separate parts—the south part, where the village is located; North Fairfax, including that portion north of Beaver Meadow brook; and Buck Hollow, closed round by hills, through the center of which flows Mill brook. Each of these sections, has a postoffice, known respectively as Fairfax, North Fairfax, and Buck Hollow. Geologically the town has three general ranges of rocks, extending in parallel ledges north and south. The western part of the town overlies a bed of quartz rock; the extreme eastern part is composed of talcosc schist while between them is an immense bed of talcosc conglomerate. Each of these general divisions, however, contain well-developed specimens of the several rocks that enter into their formation, as more fully mentioned on page 22.

In 1880, Fairfax had a population of 1,820, was divided into eighteen school districts and contains eighteen common schools, employing three male and twenty female teachers, to whom was paid an aggregate salary of $1,752.00. There were 430 pupils attending school, while the entire cost of the schools for the year ending October 31st, was $2,013.20. W. A. Robinson was school superintendent.

NORTH FAIRFAX, a post village located in the northern part of the town, contains about a dozen dwellings.

FAIRFAX, a post village located in the southern part of the town on the Lamoille river, contains two churches (Baptist and Methodist), two hotels, an academy building, two drug stores, one hardware store, one jewelry store, five general stores, one saw-mill, and between 300 and 400 inhabitants.

The New Hampton Institution, located at Fairfax village, was founded in 1831, at New Hampton, N. H., and was removed to its present location in 1853. Rev. Eli B. Smith was its first president in its new location, and under his management the school enjoyed remarkable prosperity, numbering nearly 300 students. The Institution has a location second to none in the State, has a fine library of 2,000 volumes, and considerable philosophical apparatus. It is very able conducted under the successful management of Albert G. Cox, A. M., principal, with Miss E. M. Kidder, assistant. Instruction is given in all branches sufficient to insure admission to any of the New England colleges.

BUCK HOLLOW (p.o.), a hamlet located in the eastern-central part of the town, on Mill brook, contains one church (Episcopal), and half a dozen dwellings.

The Lamoille Mills are located at the Great Fall of Lamoille river, one and one-half miles south of the village of Fairfax. The falls have a descent of eighty-eight feet, comprising a series of cascades, affording power sufficient to carry one hundred and fifty thousand spindles. The present buildings were erected by the present owner, Samuel N. Gaut, of Boston, Mass., who is the son of William and Hannah Gaut, and was born at Brandon, Vt., in 1816.

When quite young his parents moved to Middlebury, where they resided nine years. About 1830, they moved to Fairfax, from which place Samuel went to Boston, in 1836. He soon after started for himself in the baking business in that city, and in 1840, he opened a store on Washington street, at which location he still carries on the same business, having, during the past forty-two years, stood at the head in his business in that city. In 1843, he married Susan Elliott Dutton, of Newburyport, Mass. Soon after engaging in business in Boston he purchased a farm in Fairfax, half a mile from the present site of the Lamoille Mills. In 1849, he purchased of John Warner, of Cambridge, and James S. Blin, of Shelburne, the water-privilege of the Great Fall on both sides of the river, and at various times subsequently about eighty acres of land surrounding it. In 1850, he built a brick mill containing four runs of stones for grinding flour, &c., for which purpose it is still used. In 1864, he erected a building for the manufacture of woolen goods, and in August, 1865, he formed a co-partnership with F. W. Shepardson, of Fairfax, for the manufacture of flannels, cassimeres and yarns, under the firm name Gaut & Shepardson, which continued until January, 1881, when Mr. Shepardson retired from the business, since which time it has been conducted by Geo. S. Minot, agent, son-in-law of S. N. Gaut. The factory is a one set mill with job card, using Davis & Furber machinery, with Crampton looms, and continues to manufacture strictly all wool goods. Mr. Gaut has built also a two and a half story brick store and dwelling, where for several years he carried on the sale of general merchandise, under the style of Gaut & Stewart, his partner being the late Hiram Stewart. The buildings connected with the mill, beside those heretofore mentioned, consist of six dwelling houses, three of which Mr. Gaut built. Although a citizen of Boston during the past forty-six years, he is always happy when he can give employment and do anything that will increase the business interests of the town of Fairfax.

M. C. & W. B. Shepardson, located on Stone's brook, two miles east of Fairfax, commenced the manufacture of linden feathers, in November, 1881, the first manufactory of this kind established in the East. Linden feathers are a manufactured article for filling beds and for lining carpets, made from the linden, or basswood tree. These feathers undergo a process of medication whereby they are said to be rendered vermin proof, and being non-conductors of heat, cold or electricity, and at the same time very pliable and elastic, make an excellent substitute for natural feathers at a greatly reduced cost.

W. H. Rood's saw-mill, located on road 25, is operated by water-power, employs two men, and cuts 150,000 feet of lumber per year.

Newton D. Kidder's saw and grist-mill, located at Fairfax village, is operated by water-power, employs two men, does custom grinding, and cuts 200,000 feet of lumber, and 75,000 shingles per annum.

Edward A. Sowles's tannery manufactures from 5,000 to 9,000 rough deacon skins annually, using about fifty cords of bark.

Broadstreet Spafford and his two sons, Nathan and Asa, came into Fairfax from Piermont, N. H., in 1783, began improvements, and soon after removed their families here, being the first settlers in the town. A Mr. Eastman started from New Hampshire with them, but died on the road, and was buried in a trough on the flats in Johnson. They located on the banks of the Lamoille, in the southeastern part of the town. During the following year they were joined by Robert and Jose Barnet, and in 1786, by Thomas Russell, they all being related to each other. In 1787, Levi Farnsworth made the first settlement on the Plain. He came from Charlestown, N. H., bringing only his gun and an axe. In the autumn he returned to New Hampshire, and in 1790, moved his family to their new home. They moved by way of Williston, and thence cut their road to Cambridge Borough, there crossed the Lamoille, and proceeded down its north bank, by the road of Capt. Spafford, and again fording the river just below the falls, cut a road to their new home, about a mile distant. He was soon followed by his brothers and friends, Jasper Farnsworth, Sr., Jasper Farnsworth, Jr., Oliver Farnsworth, and Joseph Farnsworth, all of whom settled on the Plain.

The first settlement made in North Fairfax was by Joseph Beeman, Sr., and Joseph Beeman, Jr. They came from Bennington, Vt., in the year 1786, on foot, carrying upon their backs their provisions and utensils for opening their farms. They built a house of logs, covered it with elm bark, and floored it with basswood, cleared a small space for corn and turnips and returned to Bennington in the autumn. The following year they moved their family here. Mr. Beeman drove a cow, which was their main dependence for food. He brought his flour from Bennington, of which the first year he had some 300 or 400 pounds. This year he raised a patch of turnips, and a small quantity of corn. The next year his sons, Joseph, Jr., and Beriah, came on, and became permanent settlers in the town. Numerous descendants of this family still reside here. The following season Hampton Lovegrove and Jacob Story boarded with Mr. Beeman, whilst they commenced settlements in the town. The settlement thus begun soon increased by Gideon Orton, Aaron Hastings, Shores Ufford, and others.

The first settlement in Buck Hollow, was begun by Gould Buck and Abigail Hawley, who came from Arlington, in 1791. They settled on land purchased by Lemuel Buck, of Arlington, of Elias Jackson and Eleazer Marble, of Salisbury, Litchfield county, Conn. This tract contained 1,400 acres, the original rights of John, Christopher, James, Viner and William Legraft, was purchased for £100, and comprised the territory now known as Buck Hollow. They were followed the next year by Jesse, George, Nathan, Zadock and Joseph Buck.

The first improvements made where the village now stands, was by a man named Joseph Belcher, about the year 1787. In 1789, William Maxfield, Lester Grosevenor and John Andros made a permanent settlement here. Stephen England came in 1788, and located on the old Belcher claim, where he soon after opened a hotel, the first in the village. He subsequently sold to Hampton Lovegrove, and the old stand yet remains in the village.

The first certificate of warning for a town meeting, was as follows:—

“CAMBRIDGE, April 20, 1787.

“This may certify that the inhabitants of the town of Fairfax had a legal warning given out to them for a town meeting, in said Fairfax, on the 22d of March, A. D., 1787.

“To whom it may concern.

“AMOS FASSETT, Justice of the Peace.”

Pursuant to this warning, the inhabitants met at the house of Capt. Broadstreet Spafford, where Capt. Spafford was elected moderator; Thomas Russell, town clerk; Nathan Spafford, constable; and Broadstreet Spafford, Robert Barnet, and Thomas Russell, selectmen. The first justice was Broadstreet Spafford, in 1787. The first representative was Thomas Russell, also in 1787. The first birth in town was that of Martha Powers, June 10, 1784. The first mill was built in 1791, at the Great Fall, by Judge Amos Fassett, of Cambridge. It was a frame building, and the inhabitants from Buck Hollow, North Fairfax, Cambridge and Westford, turned out to assist in raising it. Previous to this the people had gone to Burlington and Vergennes for milling. Crane & Crandall established the first clothing works at the Great Fall; but their building was carried off by the great freshet of June, 1830. A woolen factory was built on a small scale, and a few years afterwards burned. The first machinery built on Mill brook was by a man named Bidwell, in 1792. His was a log building, with a fulling mill, and tenter-bars for fulling and drying the cloth, which was spun and woven by the women. In 1806, Joseph Beeman, Jr., built a grist and saw-mill. Josiah Spafford made the first improvement about a mile north of the village, and Asa Wilkins the first in the northeastern part of the town. The first framed house built was by Joel Leonard, in 1792. The first framed barn by Levi Farnsworth. The first single wagon brought into town was by Josiah Brush, in 1808. Previous to this there were several two-horse wagons, and numerous ox-carts upon which people would visit about, but the traveling was on horse-back. The first mowing machine brought here was in 1855, by Reuben Hunt. The first town hall was built in 1807, or near that time, and was occupied many years as a house of worship. The first doctor in town was Aaron Hastings. He settled in North Fairfax, frequently served as a lawyer, and is represented as having been a shrewd, active man. The next to locate here was Dr. Ross Coon. The first tavern was kept by Hampton Lovegrove, in North Fairfax, a few years after his settlement here, on the Johnson farm. The first road in town was marked out by Capt. Broadstreet Spafford, and underbrushed so that he could get through. The first mail route was through from Danville to St. Albans, and a man by the name of Trescott carried the mail.

He struck the river at its mouth, and followed its banks until he arrived at Fairfax Plain, where he located. Being pleased with the location, he immediately commenced improvements. He brought with him to his new home his gun, axe, a small quantity of flour, and a little bag of salt, relying for sustenance mainly upon the wild game and fish which were abundant in the vicinity. He remained here alone with his dog from May until October, clearing his land. Towards fall he was surprised by a visit from Tisdale Spafford, who called at his clearing while on his way from Cambridge to Burlington to procure seed-wheat. Mr. Farnsworth accompanied him on his journey, and being a man of great muscular power, brought back with him two bushels of wheat on his shoulder. This he sowed, then returned to his old home in New Hampshire, where he remained for the winter. In the spring, accompanied by his brother Oliver, he returned, bringing with him a horse laden with supplies. With this re-enforcement he was enabled to make much larger improvements, so that he soon had his farm cleared, upon which he continued to reside until his death, in 1814. He married Chloe Balch, and was the father of seven children, all of whom remained in Fairfax until they attained a mature age. Ira settled in the town as a tanner, and continued the business about twenty-five years, when he built the brick hotel at the village, and occupied it about eight years, then sold it and engaged in farming until his death. FAIRFIELD, the largest town in the county, lies in the central part of the same, in lat. $44^{\circ} 49'$ and long. $4^{\circ} 5'$, bounded north by Sheldon, east by Bakersfield, and a small part of Enosburgh, south by Fletcher and Fairfax, and west by Swanton and St. Albans. The town originally contained 23,040 acres, chartered, in connection with two others, Smithfield and Bakersfield, by New Hampshire, August 18, 1763, to Samuel Hungerford and sixty-three others. But on October 25, 1792, Fairfield, Smithfield and Bakersfield were made into two towns, Fairfield and Bakersfield, giving to Fairfield about 38,000 acres, thus making it the largest in the county.

The surface of Fairfield is generally very uneven, though not so much so but that it is mostly susceptible to cultivation, and having a various, though excellent soil, it produces fine crops of grasses and grains, and also sustains large areas of grazing land. It is well watered by numerous streams, the principal of which is Black creek, which rises in Fletcher and flows from Bakersfield in a northwesterly course through this town into Sheldon. Fairfield river is a small stream which also has its source in Fletcher, and flowing north through the center of this town, unites with Black creek. Dead creek, sometimes called Cedar Swamp creek, on account of its having its source in a large cedar swamp lying in the western part of the town, flows in a northerly course into the outlet of Fairfield pond. This pond is a beautiful sheet, covering an area about three miles in length by one and a half in breadth. The rocks of the town are almost entirely of the talcose formation, conglomerate in the western, and schist in the eastern. No minerals of importance nor natural curiosities have been discovered. In times gone by lumbering was carried on quite extensively, and is now conducted to some extent, the principal timber being of the hard wood varieties. Agriculture, however, is now the prevailing industry, the products finding a convenient mode of transportation in the St. J. & L. C. railroad, which extends through the town in a northwesterly direction, with a station at East Fairfield.

In 1880, Fairfield had a population of 2,172, was divided into twenty school districts, and contained nineteen common schools, employing nine male and nineteen female teachers, to whom was paid an aggregate salary of $1,953.87. There were 507 pupils attending common school, while the entire cost of the schools for the year ending October 31st, was $2,387.56. W. H. Fairchild was school superintendent.

EAST FAIRFIELD, a flourishing post village located in the southeastern part of the town on Black creek, and also a station on the St. J. & L. C. railroad, contains a saw-mill, flouring-mill, five or six stores, a good hotel (Isham House), several shops for mechanical work, and about thirty dwellings.

FAIRFIELD CENTER, a post village located in the central part of the town, contains three churches, (Catholic, Episcopal, and Congregational,) two general stores, one tin shop, three blacksmith shops, a wheelwright shop, a grist and saw-mill, and about twenty-five dwellings.

ST. ROCKS, a hamlet located in the northern part of the town on the outlet of Fairfield pond, contains a saw, shingle and planing-mill, and a small cluster of dwellings.

W. C. Prouty's mills, located at East Fairfield, do grinding of meal and feed, manufacture bent wood work for wagons and carts, and do job work in slitting and planing, amounting in all to about $10,000.00 worth per annum.

R. S. Read's saw and shingle-mill, located at East Fairfield, manufactures about 200,000 shingle and 600,000 feet of lumber annually, employing five hands.

Burton & Rodee's custom flouring-mills, located at East Fairfield, keep in stock flour, meal and feed, and do custom grinding. Their machinery is mostly new and of modern style, giving them facilities for grinding ten barrels of flour and five tons of feed daily.

N. & N. A. Gilbert's grist and saw-mill, located on Fairfield river, on road 41, does custom grinding and sawing. The grist-mill has three runs of stones, and does most of the grinding for the surrounding farmers. The saw-mill turns out about 100,000 feet of lumber annually.

Augustus Marcell's carriage shop is located on road 82, where he is engaged in the manufacture of all kinds of light and heavy carriages, wagons and sleighs.

Thomas Maloney's blacksmith shop, located about one and one-half miles northwest of Fairfield Center, turns out all kinds of general blacksmith work.

Horatio N. Burr's saw-mill, located at St. Rocks, does custom sawing for the farmers in that vicinity, cutting about 150,000 feet of lumber annually.

Patrick Rooney's blacksmith shop and carriage manufactory is located on the outlet of Fairfield pond, on road 18, where he does repairing and all kinds of new work in his line.

E. C. Colburn's shingle-mill, located at St. Rocks, manufactures about 300,000 shingles annually. Mr. Colburn also does planing, scroll-sawing, turning of wood and iron, does quite a business at manufacturing cider, in its season, and has also a blacksmith shop attached to his mill.

The East Fairfield Library Association was organized in 1881, with W. S. Soule, president and librarian, and E. S. Read, treasurer. The association, though but in its infancy, has a number of influential members, and a library of nearly one hundred valuable volumes.

The first settler in Fairfield was Joseph Wheeler, who located here in March, 1787. During the following year he was joined by John Sunderland, John Mitchell, Gabriel Sherwood, William Beaden, and James Hawley, from Huntington, Conn., and Ebenezer Lobdell and David and Nathan Hoyt, from Bridgefield, Conn., Samuel Roberts and John Leach, from New Fairfield, Conn., Lucius Hall, from New Milford, Levi Wakeman, from Norwalk, and Edmund Town and Joel Barber, from Simsbury. In 1789, Andrew Bradley, Hubbard Barlow and Clark Burlingame, from New Fairfield, Conn., and Jabez Burr, from Reading, Conn., settled here. In 1790, the population was increased by the advent of Samuel Hollister, Samuel Gilbert, Dimon Barlow, and Jehiel Smith. In 1791, Joseph Soule, with his sons, Timothy, Isaac Newton, Salmon, Joseph, Hiram, and Harry, from Dover, N. Y., came on; and, in 1792, Francis Story, Reuben Crow, and Isaac Luce took their residence here. Among the names of other early settlers were those of Joseph D. Farnsworth, Bates Turner, Solomon Bingham, John Chandler, Benjamin Wooster, John Sturtevant, Dyer Sherwood, Morse Warner, Ezra Sherman, Eli Sherman, Ezekiel Bradley, Nathan Lobdell, Sherwood Whitney, Amos Thompson, Abraham Northrop, Bradley Davis, Samuel and Ebenezer Barlow, Job Smith, Job Hulburt, Samuel Payne, Isaac Wakeman, Noah Diamond, Solomon Nelson, Ezra Sturges, Ezra, Samuel, and Nathan Gilbert, Abner Wright, Whittemore and Nathaniel Beardsley, William Morse, Benjamin and Andrew Kendrick, ——— Story, Martin Prince, Orange Hall, West-over Barber, Norman Barber, Benjamin Fairbanks, John Abotts, Joseph Bowditch, and Jehiel Hill.

The first meeting of the proprietors was held at Fairfield, Conn., February 16, 1774, at the house of Gershom Bradley. No business of importance seems to have been transacted. From this date until 1804, the proprietors met at intervals when the usual business of dividing the lands, laying out roads, etc., was voted upon; but in this year the proprietary government seems to have ended. The town was organized and the first town meeting held, March 30, 1791, at the house of Joseph Wheeler. Joseph Wheeler was chosen moderator; Edmund Town, town clerk; Levi Wakeman, constable; Edmund Town, Thomas Northrop, and Ralph Gregory, selectmen; Joseph Wheeler, town treasurer; Salmon Wheeler, Abram Northrop, and David Hoyt, listers; and Nathan Lobdell, collector. The first representative was Clark Burlingame, from the Smithfield part of the town, in 1791, and David Davis, from Fairfield, in 1792. The first justice was Hubbard Barlow, chosen in 1789. The first child born was Smithfield Beaden, in the Smithfield part.

The proprietors presented him with one hundred acres of land. The first physician was Joseph D. Farnsworth, and the first lawyer Bates Turner.

Francis Story, one of the earliest settlers in the town, was born at Bennington, Vt., in 1762. He first located in Fairfax, upon the farm now occupied by O. S. McGovern, whence, after two or three years' residence, he removed to this town, locating upon the farm now occupied by Mrs. Daniel Story, Frances Story, (his only surviving daughter-in-law,) and a grandson of Frances Story. At that early date the snow used to lie upon the ground to the depth of four or five feet in the winter, and the nearest neighbors were three or four miles distant, so that in case of illness it was almost impossible to procure medical assistance. For this reason the women were indefatigable in their efforts to assist at the bedside of sickness, and not behind the most zealous was Mrs. Story, as the anecdotes and incidents still related by her descendants will testify. To go to mill, the settler would put his grain upon an ox-sled and draw it through the forest to the lake shore, and thence transport it by boat to Plattsburgh. After the grinding was done they would return to where they had left their oxen to browse, search them out, and after many difficulties arrive home after a two or three days' journey. Mrs. Story is said to have often claimed that the country could not have been settled, in the face of so many difficulties, had it not been for the abundance of game and fish. But notwithstanding all these hardships, Mr. Story, with good management and the help of his hardy sons, succeeded in soon making a comfortable home, surrounded with orchards of apple, cherry, and plum trees, and laid aside, one by one, the primitive privations and inconveniences of the pioneer, together with a comfortable competence. He died on the old homestead, May 30, 1830, aged sixty-nine years. Mrs. Story died October 17, 1845, aged eighty years. Their family consisted of nine children,—seven sons and two daughters,—none of whom are now living. One son, Rev. Samuel Story, was settled as the pastor of the Baptist church of Plattsburgh, where he remained a long time, and one daughter settled in Cambridge, while all the others located in Fairfax and Fairfield, where many of their descendants now reside.

Josiah Briggs, an ex-lieutenant of the revolutionary army, from Shaftsbury, Vt., came to Fairfield at an early date, and located upon the farm now occupied by George Gould. Mr. Briggs made his journey thither on an ox-sled, following the trail of the few others who had preceded him. He became one of the esteemed citizens of the town, filled many of the town offices, and died here at an advanced age. Of his family of eight children, but one is now living, a son, eighty years of age, in Wisconsin. His only representative now in the town is a grandson, Joseph Briggs Webster, who is sixty-five years of age.

Andrew Bradley, another of the pioneers, came to Fairfield from New Fairfield, Conn., and located upon a farm in the northern part of the town, on which he continued to reside until his death, in 1830, aged over eighty years. He was much respected and filled several of the town trusts. Of his seven children, three married prominent men of the town, as follows: The oldest, Abel Northrop; the second, Solomon Soule; and the youngest, Ira Wheeler.

John Sturtevant, from Fairfield, Conn., came to this town at an early date and located upon the farm now occupied by Newell Coburn. In the war of 1812, he served for a short time as a fifer, and was stationed at Burlington. He was the father of eleven children, three of whom are now living, one in St. Albans, one in Ohio, and Josiah Sturtevant in this town, on road 63. Mr. Sturtevant was an industrious, enterprising citizen, and died here at the age of sixty-six years.

Stephen Fox, from Hartford, Conn., came to this town among the early settlers, and located in the northeastern part, near Fairfield pond. Here he remained until age incapacitated him from labor, after which he resided alternately with his children, and finally died at the residence of one of his daughters, in Montgomery, aged eighty-four years. It is somewhat remarkable that Mr. Fox was married five times, and was the father of twenty-one children.

Ezra Sherman, an early settler from Fairfield, Conn., located upon the farm now occupied by J. C. Abell. Here he built a log house which was used for a time, but which ultimately gave place to a comfortable framed house that is now occupied. He was a firm supporter of the Baptist church, of which he was a deacon for a long series of years, acting in that capacity under the pastorate of Elder William Arthur, father of the present President. He died at an advanced age, having reared a family of nine children, none of whom are now living.

John B. Mitchell served seven years in the revolutionary war, returned home to Hartford, Conn., and was married to a young lady sixteen years of age, and when the settlers first commenced to come into this town started on foot with his wife to make for himself a new home here. This they accomplished by locating upon the farm now owned by Samuel H. Soule. Their first house was built on the low bottom land along the creek, but the first overflow of the stream caused them to seek higher land as a site for their residence. Here they remained until their death, at an advanced age, Mrs. Mitchell attaining the great age of 106 years. They reared a family of eight children, none of whom are living, though the family is represented here by several grandchildren.

Thomas Northrop, from Sherman, Conn., came to the forests of Fairfield in 1790, and settled upon a farm of 140 acres which he had purchased from one of his brothers, an original proprietor of the town, paying therefor $100.00. Upon this he made a small clearing, planted some corn, and cut some hay from a beaver meadow, and also erected a small log cabin, then returned to Connecticut. In the following spring he started for his new home with a yoke of oxen and one horse hitched to a heavy sled, upon which was placed his household effects and provisions for his family, consisting of his wife and three children. After a long and tedious journey, he arrived here and commenced his useful life, remaining in this town until his death. He had a family of four sons and seven daughters, only one of whom, Harmon Northrop, is now living, at the age of eighty-seven years. Harmon has been a deacon of the Congregational church, to which he has been a pillar for the past fifty years. He has held nearly all the offices in the gift of the town, and has also held the office of county commissioner four years, and was president of the Franklin County Agricultural Society three years. The great regard felt for his opinion and advice is attested by the fact that he has assisted in the settlement of, or settled independently, sixty-one different estates.

Ezra Sturgis, a sea-faring man, came to Fairfield in 1790, and located upon a farm on road 12, where he resided many years.

Jabez Burr, from Reading, Conn., immigrated to Clarendon, Vt., in 1786, and, in 1792, removed to Fairfield and located upon the farm now owned by Michael Conley. Here he resided until his death, June 28, 1825, aged seventy-three years. His only child, Aaron, married Rebecca Cook, December 23, 1804, and remained on the homestead until 1839, when he sold the place and removed to St. Rocks. He was an active business man until his death, January 15, 1864. Of his family of eleven children eight are now living, Amasa and Horatio at St. Rocks, in this town.

He was twenty-two years of age when he settled in his wilderness home, and remained until his death, December 27, 1861, aged ninety-three years. His youngest child, James M., now resides on the old homestead. Salmon Soule, brother of Timothy, came to Fairfield a year or two after his father, and located upon the farm now occupied by his son, C. Rollin, where he carried on the business of blacksmithing, in addition to conducting his farm. As a blacksmith he made himself particularly useful to the early settlers, and was noted for the fine axes he forged. He died on the old farm, aged eighty-six years and six months. Joseph Field, Jr., came here with his father, and settled at what is now the village of Fairfield Center. He was a carpenter and joiner, and subsequently engaged in merchantile pursuits, and carried on a distillery and starch manufactory. In business he was quite successful, and succeeded in gaining the regard and esteem of his townsmen, whom he honorably represented in many offices of trust. He died in 1863, aged eighty-four years. Of his family of eleven children, only three, A. G., Samuel H., and Mrs. A. A. Farrand, are now living.

John Leach, Sr., was born at New Fairfield, Conn., in 1735, and came to Fairfield, Vt., in 1789, locating in the southern part of the town. He reared a family of fourteen children, all but two of whom settled in the town, and died in 1811. John Leach, Jr., born at New Fairfield, in 1761, came here in 1788, made some improvements on a farm, and returned to Fairfield, Connecticut. In the spring of 1789, he returned, bringing his wife and two children, and located permanently upon the farm now owned by Mr. Oliver, on road 21. During a portion of this time he was obliged to camp in the forest with no protection from the weather, and thereby had his feet frozen so badly that a portion of the right foot had to be amputated. He reared a family of four sons and three daughters, only one of whom, Horatio, residing at East Fairfield, is living.

He was elected chief selectman of the town nine successive terms; was town treasurer for many years, holding the office at the time of his death; was elected justice of the peace forty-nine consecutive years, and was eleven times elected to the general assembly. Sherman, a descendant.

Thomas Ryan came to Vermont from Ireland, about the year 1812, and worked at his trade of tailoring at Burlington for a time, then removed to this town and located upon the farm now owned by his son, John H. Soon after locating here he married Catharine Belfort, the union being blessed with six children, two only of whom are now living. Mr. Ryan was a man of intelligence, and much respected for his integrity and gentlemanly character. He died in 1872, aged seventy-two years.

Jesse Bush, a native of Greenfield, Mass., came to Fairfield in 1818, and engaged in the cloth dressing business and lumber sawing in the southern part of the town on Fairfield river, near where B. F. Stanley now resides. In time he added a shingle-mill and continued in business there until 1841, when he sold out and engaged in coopering and farming, continuing the same until he came to St. Rocks, about twelve years ago, where he died, April 13, 1882. He married Matilda Barnes, January 22, 1829, and became the father of eleven children, seven of whom are now living.

Elder William Arthur, the father of our President, was born in Ireland, finished his education at Edinburgh, Scotland, and soon after its completion came to America, and located at Dunham. He first took up the study of law; but after his marriage with Miss Stone, daughter of Rev. Washington Stone, he entered the ministry of the Free Will Baptist church, and shortly after united with the Baptist church. He taught school and preached in several localities throughout Chittenden and Franklin counties, and Canada. In 1829, he received a call from the Baptist church of North Fairfield, which he accepted, and removed to that village. He first occupied a portion of Jonathan Bailey's dwelling, where he remained until the church built a parsonage. The parsonage was located on a lonely by-road, some three-quarters of a mile from the church, a story and a half structure, about 18 by 24, and is still in existence, though it has been moved about one hundred rods down the hill and across the highway, where it is used as a hay-barn. In this unpretentious structure the Elder passed a few years of an uneventful life, and here was born his son, Chester A., the present chief magistrate of our nation. Young Arthur was named in honor of Dr. Chester Abell, long a friend and physician of the family, and who now peacefully rests in the little cemetery near the church where Elder Arthur officiated.

Fairfield has always borne her full share of the burden when the shadow of war overspread the land. In 1813, the following company, with Capt. George Kimball commanding, was stationed at Swanton: George Kimball, captain; Aaron Burr, lieutenant; William Felton, ensign; Daniel Morse, sergeant; and James Johnson, William Ovitt, Joseph M. Potter, Jerimah Meacham, Samuel Johnson, Samuel W. Morris, Eli W. Bush, Isaac Bigelow, Hiram Fassett, Zebulon Leach, John B. Mitchell, Samuel Alford, Brinton Freeman, William Sanders, Jabez Keep, David Jewett, Joseph Wright, Abial Hibbard, John Johnson, Matthew Beach, James Canvass, Benjamin F. Barnes, Josiah Sheldon, Eli G. Hemenway, Benjamin H. Farmer, Benjamin Ayers, Thomas Potter, Joseph Ladd, Reuben Brown, Abel Johnson, Warren Chafey, Warren Danforth, Allen Pratt, Philetus Sweetland, Samuel Hedge, Simeon Darling, Asa Ladd, Jr., John Follett, Wait Hopkins, Samuel Corliss, Nehemiah Phillips, Thomas Martin, Thomas Hall, David Mitchell, Nathaniel B. Beardsley, James Stone, Jr., George Peckham, John Bradley, L. Lockwood, Lyman Leach, and Hubbell Mitchell, privates. Of Capt. Wooster's company, which took part in the battle of Plattsburgh, the following names have been preserved: Joseph Soule, O. Sherwood, Luther Wright, Eli Sherwood, Thomas Taylor, Aaron Burr, John P. Wright, Anson Buck, Timothy Soule, Elias Sherwood, Salmon Soule, Joseph Soule, Daniel Read, Zotman Sherwood, and Samuel Payne.

The town furnished four commissioned officers and 193 enlisted men to the civil war of 1861, thirty-seven of whom died from wounds received, or from natural causes, before their term of service expired.

St. Patrick's Catholic Church, located at Fairfield.—There were a number of Catholic families in Fairfield when Rev. Y. O'Callaghan came to Vermont, in 1830, whom he visited there occasionally, and always notified them when he would be in St. Albans or any of the adjacent towns, and who attended upon his ministrations in considerable numbers. They were also visited at intervals by missionary priests from other quarters. In 1847, soon after Rev. G. A. Hamilton came to St. Albans, they built a church at Fairfield, there being about sixty subscribers to the fund, very few of whom are now living. Rev. G. A. Hamilton celebrated mass on alternate Sundays until Rev. H. Lennon came to assist him, when either one or the other officiated each Sabbath. In 1850, Rev. Y. M. McGowan came to St. Albans, and took charge of the Fairfield parish until 1855, when he left the diocese, and Rev. T. Riordan was placed in charge, and in 1858, was removed to Fairfield as resident pastor, and the society built the parsonage for him that is occupied by the present incumbent, and which he occupied until his death, October 4, 1861, aged twenty-nine years. Fairfield was then attended by Rev. Y. L. Cam, from Swanton, until December, 1862, when Rev. Y. Dughie, was placed in charge of the parish, and remained until June, 1864, at which time Rev. G. R. N. Caissey took his place, retaining it up to October, 1868. Rev. Father McAuley was then appointed parish priest, occupying the position until 1879. During Father McAuley's pastorate the present church was erected, as represented in the accompanying engraving, at a cost of $6,000.00. In 1879, the Father left Fairfield, and the parish then began to be attended by Rev. Father Michaud, from Burlington. In 1880, Rev. Dr.

ST. PATRICK'S CATHOLIC CHURCH, FAIRFIELD, VT.

Glynn, from Fairhaven, was appointed to the vacancy, remaining until October, 1881; then, for a period of three months, the parish was without a resident pastor, or until January, 1882, when the present incumbent, Rev. Francis Yoinec, from Milton, took it in charge. The parish of Fairfield comprises the towns of Fairfield and Fletcher, and that portion of Sheldon lying south of the Lamoille river, and includes a population of about 150 families.

The Church of Christ, Congregational, located at Fairfield Center, was organized September 22, 1800, with four members, by Rev. Daniel Turner, a missionary from Massachusetts. Rev. Benjamin Wooster, the first pastor, was installed July 24, 1805, and continued with the society until his death, February 18, 1840. The church building, a brick structure capable of seating 300 persons, was erected in 1839, at a cost of about $3,000.00, though the property is now valued at only about $1,000.00. The society has at present thirteen members, with no regular pastor.

The Trinity Episcopal Church, located at Fairfield Center, was organized in June, 1803, by the Rev. Russell Catlin, of Connecticut, when Nathan Lobdell and Hubbard Barlow were elected wardens, and Maj. Gen. Barlow, clerk. The Rev. Barzillai Buckley was the first rector who officiated regularly in the parish, in 1806. The first house of worship was built in 1818, and was succeeded by the present building in 1864, which is a moderate sized building valued at about $3,000.00, including grounds. The society now has 175 members, with Rev. A. H. Bailey, D. D., rector.

The East Fairfield Meeting-house Association was organized by Methodists and Universalists, June 2, 1866, with twenty-seven members, by choosing H. A. Fox, chairman; I. N. Pomeroy, secretary; and N. W. Isham, treasurer. During that summer they erected a neat edifice, capable of seating 300, at a cost of $2,100. Rev. Charles Ross is the present pastor.

The Evangelical Advent Church, located at North Fairfield, was originally organized about 1860, but was reorganized December 2, 1876, with eighteen members, by Rev. J. Somberger, the present pastor, and Rev. Othni Rockwell. The society now has nineteen members, and holds its meetings in the school-house, though they also own an interest in the union church at North Fairfield, and sometimes hold meetings there.

FLETCHER, a triangularly shaped town, located in the southeastern corner of the county, in lat. 44° 42', and long. 4° 7', is bounded north by Fairfield and Bakersfield, east by Waterville and Cambridge, in Lamoille county, and south and west by Fairfax. It was granted by Gov. Thomas Chittenden, November 7, 1780, and chartered to Nathaniel Brush, David Avery, Rufus Montague and others, to the number of sixty-nine, August 20, 1781. None of the original grantees, however, except Rufus Montague, ever settled in the town. The charter deed conveyed an area of 23,040 acres, a small portion of which was set off to Cambridge. November 1, 1841. Aside from this it retains the same area to-day.

The surface of Fletcher is broken and hilly, and even at some points mountainous, causing a considerable portion of land to be unfit for purposes of cultivation. These portions are in the minority, however, and even they are utilized as grazing land. Though there is much land that is capable of producing fine crops of grain, the principal industry of the inhabitants is devoted to dairying and stock raising. The soil, which is various, is watered by numerous streams, the principal ones of which are Lamoille river, which forms the southern boundary of the town, and Stone's brook, which rises in the northern part of the town and flows a southwesterly course into Fairfax. Metcalf pond, a pleasant little sheet of water, lies in the northern part of the town. It is about one mile in length, by a half mile in width, and in some parts very deep. Its outlet is at the southern end, forming Dead creek, which flows a southwesterly course into Lamoille county. About a mile northwest of Fletcher village is another body of water called Halfmoon pond, because of its crescent shape, about half a mile long by a quarter of a mile in width. Its waters are discharged into Stone's brook. A number of good mill-sites are afforded throughout the township, though but few have ever been utilized. The geological structure of the town comprises rocks mostly of the talcose schist formation, excepting the extreme western portion, which overlies a bed of talcose conglomerate. It also contains some beds of iron ore. The only notable natural curiosity of the territory is a large cave, with its entrance on a hillside just north of Metcalf pond. It has been penetrated to the depth of several hundred feet, though it has never been fully explored. Tradition has it that a fugitive from justice was once kept concealed in this cave for several weeks, being supplied with food daily by friends. The St. J. & L. C. R. R. extends across the eastern portion of the town, with a station at East Fletcher.

In 1880, Fletcher had a population of 868, was divided into nine school districts, and contained ten common schools, employing three male and sixteen female teachers to whom was paid an aggregate salary of $850.10. There were 190 pupils attending school, while the entire cost of the schools for the year ending October 31, was $1,059.00. I. R. Armstrong, was superintendent of schools.

FLETCHER, a post village located in the southern part of the town, contains one church (Union), two stores, a sap-bucket manufactory, and about fifteen dwellings.

EAST FLETCHER (p. o.), a hamlet and station on the St. J. & L. C. R. R., located in the eastern part of the town, contains two stores and about five dwellings.

BINGHAMVILLE, a hamlet located about three-quarters of a mile south from Fletcher, contains one church (Union), one saw-mill, a school-house and about twenty dwellings.

Sylvanus E. Chase's sap-bucket manufactory, located at Fletcher village, manufactures about 20,000 cedar sap-buckets per year.

R. T. Bingham's saw-mill, located at Binghamville, does custom work, being operated only a portion of the year. The first settlement in Fletcher was commenced by John Fullington, who started for here with his family from Deerfield, N. H., in the fall of 1788, intending to locate in the southern part of the town near the Lamoille. Mr. Fullington, had been here the season previous, however, and built a log house, made a small clearing, etc., for the reception of his family. They pursued their journey without mishap until just within the town of Johnson, where they encamped for the night. Here Mr. Fullington indulged himself in a meal of raw turnips, which brought on a violent fit of bilious colic, and there being no medical assistance to be had, he died in a few hours. Mrs. Fullington thus unexpectedly left a widow with four children dependent on her, proceeded to her new home in the wilderness, upon the farm now owned by Loren C. Lee, where she soon after gave birth to a daughter, the first child born in the town. She was named Lamoille, after the river upon whose banks she was born, and afterwards became the wife of Joseph H. Law, removed to Cambridge, and died there in July, 1880, aged ninety years. Mrs. Fullington subsequently married Elisha Woodworth, and lived to the age of ninety-five years, when she died of small-pox, in Fletcher.

The second person to settle in the town was Lemuel Scott, in 1789. He came on from Bennington, in the dead of winter, making his way, with his wife and one child, on a sled drawn by a yoke of steers. From Burlington there was no road, and he found his way by means of marked trees. His children were Jonathan, Lemuel, Jr., (the first male child born in the town,) Seth, Levi, Abigail, Anna, Emily, Jefferson, and Wait. The next settler was Dea. Peter Thurston, who settled south of Lamoille river on the land afterwards set off to Cambridge. He was joined soon after by Elijah Daily. In 1795, Daniel Baily, from Ware, N. H., settled with his family in the north-western part of the town. These men became prominent business men and large land owners, the said Daniel Bailey becoming the first town representative in the legislature. About this time, Elias Blair, Reuben Armstrong, John Kinsley, Samuel Church, Samuel Church, Jr., Joseph and James Robinson, Dewey Nichols and John Kinsley, all from Bennington, located here. Other families came soon after so that in 1800, the town had a population of 200.

The town was organized and the first town meeting held, March 16, 1790, when Elisha Woodworth was elected town clerk; Elijah Daily, constable; and Peter Thurston, Lemuel Scott and Elijah Daily, selectmen. The first justice of the peace was Levi Comstock, chosen in 1795. The first representative was Daniel Bailey. The first physician was Dr. Sanford Emery, who located at Fletcher village in 1827, and Guy Kinsley was his first patient. He made but a short stay, however, and removed to Rochester, N. Y. He was succeeded by Dr. Swain, whose stay was also short, since which time the changes have been many, the present physician being Dr. M. S. Briggs. The first particular demonstrations of a religious character were in 1817, when there was considerable interest manifested, and in the following spring a man named Joseph Wilcox, living in the southeastern part of Fairfax, established religious meetings, and preached in the school-house at Fletcher village once every two weeks for a year, during which time the Baptist church was organized. The first house of worship was erected upon the site of the present church at the village in 1830, and dedicated July 7, 1831, being built by the Methodist, Congregational and Baptist societies. The first store opened was in 1820, by Zerah Willoughby, in a portion of his dwelling in the southern part of the town. In 1825, Lucas Lathrop and Levi Carlton opened a store at Fletcher village, and were succeeded by Hiram Hopkins. The first saw-mill was built by Elisha Woodworth, upon the site now occupied by R. T. Bingham's mill. The first attempt toward starting a grist-mill was in 1831, when John and Jesse Carpenter erected one on Stone's brook; but the stream proved too small at that point to run a grist-mill, so the enterprise was given up as unpracticable. The first postoffice was located at Fletcher village in 1832, with Elias Blair, postmaster.

Joseph Robinson, born in Bennington, Vt., in November, 1776, came to Fletcher in 1795, and located upon the farm now owned by his son, Demas. He was twice married, having by his first wife one child, and by his second, nine, seven of whom are now residents of the town. His second wife was the daughter of Rufus Montague, the only one of the original proprietors who settled here. Mr. Montague had one right of land, consisting of three lots of one hundred acres each.

Daniel Bailey, from Ware, N. H., came to Fletcher in 1795, and located in the northwestern part of the town upon the farm now occupied by Ebenezer Bailey. Mr. Bailey took an active interest and prominent part in the business affairs of the town, which he represented for the first time in the legislature. He had a family of eight children, four sons and four daughters. The sons settled upon adjoining farms, presented to them by their father, while the daughters, all except one, married and located near by. Many descendants of the family still are residents of the town.

Daniel Kinsley, with his brother, Stephen, were the first settlers in Cambridge, Lamoille county, whence, after a few years' residence, they removed to this town. Daniel became the husband of Miss Lucy Montague, and died here in 1828. Lucy, his wife, died February 11, 1850, lacking one hour of being eighty-five years of age. Of their family of twelve children only one, Guy, now remains in this town, residing on road 40, at the age of eighty-one years.

Lemuel Chapman, from Rutland county, was an early settler in Fletcher, having located on road 33, just north of the farm now occupied by his son Horace. He had a family of nine children, of whom Horace is the only one left in the town.

Elias Blair was one of the early settlers in this town. He located on road 30, upon the farm now owned by his grandson, N. B. Blair, where he lived until his death. He was the husband of Sybil Parsons, and reared a family of seven children. Many of their descendants reside in this and adjoining towns.

Joseph Ellsworth, one of the early settlers of Fletcher, located in the western part of the town, on road 33. He had a family of seven children, though none of them now reside in the town. The family is represented here, however, by several grandchildren.

Samuel Church was an early settler here. He located upon the farm now owned by his grandson, Nelson Church, on road 26. He had two children, Hiram and Sally. Hiram married Lorinda McClure, and died here, leaving three children. Sally became the wife of Abial Weatherbee, and lived and died on a part of the old homestead. She left four children.

Ira Scott, the youngest of a large family of children, was born at Bennington, Vt., in 1783, and came to this town about the year 1800. He became possessed of a tract of 400 acres of land, a portion of which his son, Charles A., now occupies, on road 29. Mr. Scott had a family of eight children.

Elias Bingham, born at Windham, Conn., July 22, 1779, came to this town with his wife and three children, in August, 1809, and located near what has since been called Binghamville, upon the farm now occupied by Franklin Bingham. He was thrice married, and by his third wife had thirteen children. He was a strong minded, resolute man, possessed also of much physical strength. He early became a captain of militia, represented the town in the legislature, and was also town agent for several years.

Giles Taylor was born in Hartford, Conn., and at an early day settled in Middlebury, with his father. The father was killed while clearing land in that town, and Giles removed to Fairfield where he was married, and finally settled in this town, in 1810. He was a soldier during the war of 1812, and was present at the battle of Plattsburgh. Three of his children still reside here.

Judah Ellis, from New York, came to this town with his family in 1804, and located in the eastern part, upon the farm now owned by Harrison Cady, in Cambridge, the same having been set off to that town since. His son, C. N. Ellis, still resides here, on road 35.

James Lamb came to this town in 1820, on foot, with fifty cents in his pocket, his entire wealth. By hard labor he amassed enough to purchase the farm now occupied by his son, Andrew, and also accumulated considerable other property. He married Miss Cynthia French, of Westford, in September, 1823, and had a family of six children. His son Andrew now has in his possession a cane used by his father on his first journey to Fletcher.

Bradford Chase, born at Sutton, Mass., in July, 1783, married Polly Drury, of Walpole, N. H., removed to this town with his wife and six children in 1830, and located in the eastern part of the town, upon the farm now owned by his son, Stilman, who is seventy-three years of age.

Otis Sherman, born at Grafton, Mass., in 1788, came to this town with his family in 1833, and located upon the farm now occupied by his son, Dennis, on road 15. He had a family of seven children, only one of whom, Dennis, now resides here.

During the late war, Fletcher furnished three commissioned officers and sixty-seven enlisted men, thirteen of whom died in the service.

The Union Church, located at Fletcher village, was built by the Baptist, Congregational, and Universalist societies, in 1830, and rebuilt in 1870, though it is now used only by the Methodist and Universalist societies.

The Universalist Society, of Fletcher, was organized in 1870, with forty members, by Rev. S. Guernsey, the present pastor. The society now has about fifty members.

The Methodist Church, located at Binghamville, was organized in 1850. The building was erected in 1870, by the Baptist and Methodist societies. It will seat 250 persons, and is valued at about $4,000.00. The society now has forty members, with Rev. N. W. Wilder, pastor.

FRANKLIN, a township lying in the center of the northern boundary of the county, in lat. $44^{\circ} 58'$, and long. $4^{\circ} 2'$, bounded north by St. Armand, P. Q., east by Berkshire, south by Sheldon, and west by Highgate, was granted by the State of Vermont, October 24, 1787, and chartered March 19, 1789, to Jonathan Hunt and five others, under the name of Huntsburgh. The grant was to contain the usual thirty-six square miles, but as the surrounding towns were first surveyed, it left for this town a tract of only 19,040 acres. The charter of the town, which is now in the possession of the town clerk, reads as follows:—

“The Governor, Council, and General Assembly of the Freeman of the State of Vermont:—To all people to whom these presents shall come, greeting. Know ye that whereas the Honorable Jonathan Hunt, Esq., and his associates, our worthy friends, have by petition requested a grant of the land within this State for the purpose of settling a new plantation to be erected into a township; We have therefore thought fit for the due encouragement of their laudable designs, and for the other valuable causes and considerations us hereunto moving, do, by these presents, in name and by the authority of the Freeman of the State of Vermont, give and grant unto the said Jonathan Hunt and his associates and their heirs and assigns forever, the following tract of land hereinafter described and bounded, to be divided and holden by them respectively as follows: * * * * * That each proprietor shall cultivate five acres on each share, and shall build a house at least eighteen feet square on the floor, or have one family settled on each share within the time prescribed by the Statute laws of this State, or the land shall be forfeited and revert to the Freeman of the State. * * * * * In testimony whereof we have caused the seal of this State to be affixed this 19th day of March, A. D., 1789, in the thirteenth year of the Independence of this State.

“THOMAS CHITTENDEN.

“By His Excellency's Command,

“JOSEPH FAY, Sec'y.”

The town was divided into sixty-nine rights or shares, of which Jonathan Hunt received thirty-one; Samuel Hubbard, eighteen; Joseph Fay, seven; John Bridgeman, four; Hon. Ebenezer Walbridge, three; Ebenezer Marvin, one, and one share each for the following five objects: For a college within the State, for county grammar schools throughout the State, for the first settled minister, for the benefit and support of the ministry, and for the benefit and support of the schools within the town. The name of Huntsburgh was retained until October 25, 1817, when it was changed by the legislature to the one it now bears.

The surface of the land is uneven yet not abrupt, the only hills of any prominence being Bridgeman hill, west of the Center village, and Minister hill, lying about a mile north of the same. The soil is mostly a gravelly loam, with an occasional mixture of clay and sand. In the western part are a number of clay knolls, where brick was manufactured to some extent at one time. Taken all in all, the soil is generally good, though in most localities it is better adapted to grass than grain growing, so that many of the inhabitants are engaged in dairying and breeding grade cattle. The higher land was originally covered with a heavy growth of hardwood timber, mostly beech, birch and maple, while the low lands produced large quantities of hemlock and cedar. Much of this timber still remains, from the maple of which quantities of sugar is manufactured. Rock river, the principal stream, flows through the western part of the town, and together with several brooks, affords the only mill-power, and even this is meagre. Franklin pond, a small lake lying near the center of the town, has an average width of about one mile, and is three miles long. Its outlet, flowing northeasterly into Berkshire, affords a good water-power. Another small pond lies in the extreme eastern part of the town, surrounded by an extensive marsh. The geological structure of the territory is made up generally of two systems of rock,—talcose conglomerate and talcose schist, the former constituting the western, and the latter the eastern part of the town. Slate and limestone are occasionally found, and some small beds of quartz. Small quantities of hematite, a species of iron ore, have been discovered, and, in 1877, a small deposit of silver ore was found on the farm of L. Hefflon, in the northern part of the town. The deposit has never been thoroughly examined, however, so that its quality and quantity are not known.

In 1880, Franklin had a population of 1,439, was divided into ten school districts, and contained eleven common schools, employing three male and twenty female teachers, to whom was paid an aggregate salary of $1,137.81. There were 385 pupils attending common schools, while the entire cost of the schools for the year ending October 31st, was $1,289.56. A L. Galusha was school superintendent.

FRANKLIN, a post village located in the central part of the town, contains three churches, (Congregational, Methodist and Roman Catholic,) one hotel, six stores, marble works, a carriage manufactory, and about fifty dwellings.

EAST FRANKLIN, a post village located in the eastern part of the town, a station on the Canada Junction R. R., contains one church (Methodist), one store, a telegraph office, blacksmith shop and about fifteen dwellings.

W. B. Doolin's saw, planing and shingle-mill, located on road 22, employs five men, and has a capacity for cutting 8,000 feet of lumber per day.

J. L. Barker's blacksmith shop, is located on road 10½, where he does a general jobbing business.

C. H. Manley's cabinet shop, located at Franklin village, turns out all kinds of cabinet work.

J. W. Austin, located on road 19, has a blacksmith shop where he does all kinds of work in his line.

A. H. Shedd's saw-mill, located on road 16, has a capacity for cutting about 6,000 feet of lumber per day.

C. W. Bullice's saw and shingle-mill, located on Rock river, has the capacity for manufacturing 5,000 feet of lumber and 8,000 shingles per day.

C. W. Morgan's grist-mill, located in the northern part of the town, has a capacity for grinding about 300 bushels of grain per day.

The Franklin Academy was incorporated in 1849, and went into successful operation the following year. Mr. Smith was the first preceptor, since which time there have been many changes. The school is now under the able charge of Charles W. Gates.

The first meeting of the proprietors was held at Bennington, Vt., on the day previous to the granting of the charter, March 18, 1789, when Ebenezer Wallbridge was chosen moderator, and Joseph Fay, clerk. The division of the land was made according to law, and some other business transacted. On June 12, 1792, a warning was issued for a meeting to be held October 3, 1792, at the dwelling of Samuel Hubbard. In this meeting it was voted to make an allowance to those persons whose lots were covered by the pond, by allowing them a like quantity of land south and east of the pond. Jonathan Hunt, the principal grantee, and after whom the town was named, was a prominent man in the State, but never located in Franklin, he probably having entered the scheme as a mere speculation.

The first settler in Franklin, was Samuel Hubbard. He was born at Northfield, Mass., in 1765. In 1788, he came to Franklin with a surveying party, and the following year he and five others procured the charter of the town, he retaining eighteen of the sixty-nine shares into which the township was divided. He left Northfield in March, 1789, with three hired men, one yoke of oxen, and one cow, and came by the way of Skeensboro, down the lake to Missisquoi bay, where he found a few settlers, and then came ten miles east of there, in this town, and selected the site now occupied by his son, J. H. Hubbard, where he commenced a clearing, sowed ten acres to wheat, and then returned to Northfield. In the following spring he again returned to Missisquoi bay, this time accompanied by his wife, whom he had married during the winter, and John Webster and his wife. They left their wives at the Bay and came out to Hubbard's clearing, where they built a house and then returned for the women. Mr. Hubbard thus, with Mr. Webster's help, built the first house, he also subsequently built the first framed barn and first grist and saw-mill, and during his long life here won and retained the respect and confidence of all with whom he came in contact. He was blest with a family of six sons and four daughters, the ninth child being named Jonathan Hunt, after his uncle, the largest land holder in the town, and who was at that time Lieutenant-Governor of the State. J. H. was born in 1808, and now, at the age of seventy-four years, is the oldest native resident of the town. He relates with considerable pleasure the tale of a whipping he received when a boy, administered by his father with an elm switch, which now is a giant tree standing opposite the corner of roads 5 and 6. It appears that a small elm sapling had been set out by the elder Hubbard, and that Jonathan, in childish sport, had pulled it up and was making it serve him as a horse. His father, however, took it from him, and, after using it to "dust his jacket" with, ordered him to replace it in the earth. This he accordingly did, and it stands to-day sixteen feet in circumference, a sentinel that only the combined forces of the elements can move.

John Webster settled on land at the center of the town, where many of his descendants still resides. The settlement was soon increased by the advent of Samuel Peckham, David Sanders, John Bridgeman, and others, so that in 1800, the town had a population of 280.

The town was organized and the first town meeting held in 1793, Ebenezer Sanderson chosen clerk, and Paul Gates, treasurer. No town records are in existence previous to 1802, so that a full list of the first officers cannot be given. The first representative was Samuel Peckham, chosen in 1794. The first attorney was Ebenezer Marvin, Jr. The first birth was that of John, son of Samuel Hubbard, August 4, 1791. The first marriage, November 29, 1792, by Samuel Peckham, Miss Zeruah Spooner to Paul Gates. First death, Susannah, wife of Samuel Peckham, January 30, 1796. GEORGIA, a lake town in the southeastern corner of the county, lying in lat. $44^{\circ} 44'$ and long. $3^{\circ} 54'$, bounded north by St. Albans, east by Fairfax, south by Milton, in Chittenden county, and west by Lake Champlain, contains an area of thirty-six square miles, chartered by Governor Benning Wentworth, August 17, 1763, to Richard Emery and sixty-four associates, with all the privileges, reservations, and conditions common to the New Hampshire grants. The town still retains its original area and irregular trapezoid form, no changes ever having been made in its boundary lines. It was not long, however, before the original shares of the grantees began to change hands, and the usual land jobbing and jockeying began. Ten years after the charter was issued, in the autumn of 1773, Levi Allen, of Salisbury, Ct., bought the interests of most of the original grantees, his purchases amounting to over fifty of the sixty-seven shares; and at about the same time or during the next year, Heman Allen, Ethan Allen, and Remember Baker each bought a small interest. Ira Allen, however, subsequently became a principal proprietor, buying some part of Levi's interest and all of Heman's at private sale, but most of Levi's at public sale for taxes. There are on record in the town clerk's office over ninety deeds from Abraham Ives, a Rutland county collector, to Ira Allen, and at a later date Caleb Henderson, a Chittenden county collector, deeded at one time forty-five shares to Ira Allen. It is said that this last sale was permitted because of some irregularity in the Ives transaction, and to perfect the title; and, in proof of this, it is stated that at that time single lots were worth more than the forty-five shares bought at public sale, although there was not wanting a goodly number of residents who had the means to make the purchase, had there been free and open competition.

Georgia is one of the most beautiful towns in the county, having a gently rolling surface, with some prominent elevations from which a grand view of the fine surrounding country and a glimpse at the blue waters of the beauty-teeming champlain may be obtained. The soil is mostly rich and productive, being sandy, in the southern part and the timber is principally pine. In the northern part it is a gravelly loam, and the timber mostly hardwood, yet there are some tracts timbered with hemlock, and some cedar swamps near the lake. The territory is well watered by numerous streams which contain some excellent mill-sites. The only one of any considerable size, however, is the La-moille river, which flows a westerly course through the southern part of the town. In the northeastern part of the town there is a small body of water called Prospect pond, having an area of about forty acres. It is mostly surrounded by high lands, except a narrow outlet to the north. The rocks entering into the geological structure of the town are a bed of red sandrock in the western part along the lake shore, and a ledge of quartz rock in the eastern part, between which is an immense bed of Georgia slate. Iron ore has been discovered to some extent, and some ledges of Swanton marble. The industrial element of the town is almost entirely devoted to farming and grazing, to which a decided impetus was given by the building of the Central Vermont railroad, in 1847-'50, which passes through the town from north to south with stations at East and North Georgia.

In 1880, Georgia had a population of 1,504, was divided into fifteen school districts and contained fifteen common schools, employing two male and twenty-five female teachers, to whom was paid an aggregate salary of $1,735.22. There were 345 pupils attending common school, while the entire cost of the schools for the year ending October 31st, was 2,186.65, with J. G. Lorimer, superintendent.

GEORGIA, a small post village located in the central part of the town, contains one store, hotel, church (Congregational), and about a dozen dwellings.

GEORGIA PLAIN (p. o.), a hamlet located in the western part of the town, contains a store, postoffice, church (Baptist), and half a dozen dwellings.

Jewett's tile manufactory, located on road 1, was established by E. Jewett, in 1857, and purchased by the present proprietor, E. T. Jewett, in 1862. The works have the capacity for manufacturing 600,000 tiles per year, though but about 300,000 are made. Mr. Jewett has also a cider-mill attached to his works, which is operated by steam power and has a large capacity.

The Franklin County Creamery, located on road 38, was established by Edward J. Parker, in 1882. It has the capacity for receiving the milk from 2,000 cows. It is operated on the "cream gathering" plan, the first of the kind in the State.

North Georgia Cheese Factory was established in 1870, and is now leased by Gardner Murphy & Co., of Boston, Mass. It has a capacity of thirty-three cheeses per day, using 11,700 lbs. of milk, besides making 200 lbs. of butter.

William Farrand and family made the first permanent settlement in the town, though there had been many men without families here a portion of the year previous to that in which Farrand made his settlement, which is supposed to have been in the spring of 1785, though there is no positive evidence as to the date. At about the same time Andrew Van Guilder, from Egremont, Mass., came into town, and for many years was erroneously accredited with being the first settler. Farrand resides in the northwestern part of the town, and VanGuilder in the southeastern, ten miles apart. Farrand was present at the organization of the town, in 1788, and was elected to office on that occasion. He was also the first man in Georgia to take the oath of allegiance to the State, February 23, 1789, but left town soon after, and removed to Lachine, Canada. On February 5, 1801, he quit-claimed his right to his improvements here, in favor of Reuben Evarts, the deed being dated at Montreal. During his residence here, a son was born to Mr. Farrand, and named by Ira Allen, Georgia Farrand, Allen promising to give the boy one hundred acres of land in honor of the name, but it is believed he never kept his promise. VanGuilder, who is said to have been a very eccentric man of Indian extraction, settled upon the south side of Lamoille river, where he owned 400 acres of intervale land, a portion of which remained in the possession of his descendants for a great many years.

Whose was the third family that settled here is not known; but tradition has it that when Judge Frederick Bliss moved here, in the spring of 1786, there were three families in the town who remained through the winter. It was customary for men to spend the summer here, and return during the winter to their homes in the southern part of the State, or in Massachusetts or Connecticut, and some quite large openings in the forest had been made and several buildings erected. These buildings, however, were but rude log structures, as it is stated on undoubted authority that when Ruth Chaffee, wife of Solomon Goodrich, died, March 27, 1789, there were not boards enough in town to make a coffin, and no saw-mill to make them; so Thomas Terrence, a carpenter, felled a tree, split out suitable pieces, and with his broad-axe hewed them down into proper shape for a coffin. But about this time improvements began to be made very rapidly and immigration was lively, so that in 1791, at the taking of the first census, the town had a population of 340, and ten years later, in 1800, it had increased to 1,068. Notwithstanding this fact, however, the proprietors still continued to hold their meetings, loth to give up their control of the territory even though most of the land has passed out of their possession and the inhabitants were doing the town business and managing the public lands, in their corporate capacity, and strictly in accordance with the laws of the State. Their last meeting was held on the first Monday in March, 1807, and the record-book was deposited in the town clerk's office, January 14, 1808. The first meeting of the proprietors was held at Salisbury, Conn., the record of which is as follows:—

“Salisbury, March 23d, 1774.—Then the proprietors of the township of Georgia, a township lately granted under the great seal of the Province of New Hampshire, now in the Province of New York, met according to a legal warning in the Connecticut Courant, at the dwelling-house of Capt. Samuel Moor, Inn-holder in Salisbury, in Litchfield county, and Colony of Connecticut, in New England.

1. Voted—That Heman Allen shall be moderator for this meeting.
2. Voted—That Ira Allen shall be proprietors' clerk for said town.
3. Voted—That we will lay out said town, and that every proprietor or proprietors may, on his own cost and charges, lay out all his right or rights as soon as he or they shall think proper.
4. Voted—That the proprietors' clerk shall record all deeds of sales and survey bills in this book, when brought to hand, if paid a reasonable reward for the same, and all survey bills shall stand good that are first recorded or received to record without regard to the date of said survey bills.
5. Voted—That this meeting be adjourned to Fortfraderick, in Colchester, on Onion river, to be held on the third of October next—Test. I. Allen, Propr. Clk.”

The town was organized and the first town meeting held March 31, 1788. This meeting was warned by John White, assistant judge of Chittenden county, of which Georgia at that time formed a part. The warning was dated at Milton, March 12, 1788, although Judge White was at that time a resident of Georgia. James Evarts was chosen moderator; Reuben Evarts, clerk; Stephen Davis, Stephen Holmes, and Richard Sylvester, selectman; Frederick Bliss, constable; Solomon Goodrich, and Abel Pierce, haywards; and William Farrand, Noah Loomis, and Stephen Fairchild, surveyors of highways. Just enough business was transacted to organize the town—the town clerk took the oath of office nearly two months after, and the selectmen not until three months after the town meeting. At the second town meeting, held March 19, 1789, John White was chosen moderator; Reuben Evarts, town clerk; John White, Stephen Holmes, and Francis Davis, selectmen; John White, treasurer; Titus Bushnell, constable; Nathaniel Naramore, Abraham Hathaway, and John W. Southmayd, listers; Titus Bushnell, collector of town rates; Noah Loomis, grand juror; Stephen Holmes, pound-keeper; Solomon Goodrich, tithingman; and Daniel Stannard, hayward.

The first representative of the town in the general assembly was James Evarts, in 1788. The first physician was Dr. Nathaniel Naramore, who was much esteemed, both as a physician and citizen. The first lawyer was Levi House, who represented the town in 1793. Among the early merchants of Georgia we find the names of Samuel Stannard, Jr., Bohan Shepard, Bushnell B. Downs, Nathaniel B. and Nathaniel M. Torrey, Joseph and Joshua Doane, James S. Allen, and Hezekiah and Erbon Wead.

Several of the early settlers had fought in the war for Independence, and several had been actively engaged in the land title controversy. William Post was at the battle of Hubbardton, and Elisha Bartlett and Frederick Cushman were at the battle of Bennington. In the war of 1812, the town contributed its full proportion of men. A militia company of mounted men was called into service from this county at an early day, and went to Plattsburgh, where they were in active service some two or three months.

The following is a list of Georgia volunteers in 1814: Joseph Bowker, Jesse Post, Willard Baker, Jonathan Blake, Henry McLaughlin, Luberon Lewis, Eli Jerome, Levi Shepard, Jonah Loomis, Harvey Colron, Thomas Pierce, Asaph Wood, Levi B. During the Canadian Rebellion of 1837, a company of militia from this town was in service on the frontier a short time, under the command of Capt. Caldwell. The town also contributed 141 men for the suppression of the rebellion of 1861, and twenty-six of the first young men of the town were killed, or died in Southern prisons of wounds, or from diseases contracted while in the service. During the troubles attending the dissatisfaction felt relative to the then existing state of the revenue laws, in 1807, an incipient riot occurred here, which has since been known as the Georgia or Smuggler's Riot. About one hundred persons, from this and surrounding towns, met for the purpose of opposing the custom officers' attempt to capture a party of smugglers. A slight skirmish ensued, but no lives were lost, and the rioters dispersed to their homes, of their own accord.

Judge Frederick Bliss, from Williamstown, Mass., came to Georgia in 1786, and located at what is now Georgia Center. He married Polly, daughter of Stephen Davis, but died childless, November 8, 1827, aged sixty-five years. He was the first constable in the town, many years a selectman, and held at different periods nearly every town office. He was a representative in 1819, nine years a member of the governor's council, twelve years assistant judge of the county court, and one year judge of probate for the Georgia district. He was a very benevolent man and loved and deferred to by all. Abner, Solomon, Loomis, and Eli were brothers of Frederick, and came here at about the time he did. Abigail, a sister, married Hawley Witters, of the western part of the town, and was the grandmother of Counselor Witters, of Milton. Betsey, another sister, became the wife of Young Blair. Joseph occupies the old homestead, a prominent farmer and public-spirited man.

David Clark came to Georgia, from Middleborough, Mass., in 1795, and located in the northern part of the town. His son, David P., was born November 7, 1802, and resided here until his death, February 11, 1868. He was the father of Rev. Charles W. Clark, the present pastor of the Congregational church, and also father of the Rev. Geo. H. Clark, pastor of the Congregational church, of St. Johnsbury Center.

He opened a store near the lake, one of the first in town, and subsequently removed to Georgia Center, where he conducted business a long time, in company with his eldest son, Nathaniel B. Mr. Torrey reared a family of ten children, and died at Georgia Center quite aged, respected by all.

Rev. Alvah Sabin, who for a period of forty years was pastor of the Baptist church here, was born in this town in 1793, and removed to Illinois in 1880, where he now resides, aged eighty-nine years. Mr. Sabin was much beloved by the people of this and surrounding towns, to whom he had endeared himself by a long life of watchful care over them, both spiritually and temporally, having served them several years in the senate, as well as in the pulpit.

He married Polly Camp and reared a family of six children, three of whom are yet living, and died here in 1864. His wife died June 25, 1880.

James Hotchkiss came here from Hubbardton, Vt., in 1798, and located about half a mile south of the Center, where his son Cyrus was born. He removed to a farm in the southern part of the town, where his other children, Cyrus, Asenath, Hiram, Harriet, Charlotte and James M. were born.

Jacob Hyde, patriarch of the present family of Hydes in this town, came here from St. Albans, whither he had migrated from Bennington, Vt., in 1802. He was born at Norwich, Conn., August 1, 1730, and died at North Hero, whither he had gone on a visit, in February, 1815. The family claim descent from the Earl of Clarendon, prime minister under Charles I., and father-in-law to James II., of England. The first of the family in this country was William Hyde, a contemporary of Sir Robert Hyde and Edward, Earl of Clarendon, who came here in 1633, in company with Rev. Thomas Hooker, the first minister in Hartford, Conn. He owned land in Hartford as late as 1639, then removed to Saybrook, Conn., and later to Norwich, which was settled in 1660, he being one of the original proprietors of that town.

At the age of sixteen he entered the army of Washington, and shared the perils and privations of the Jersey campaign, was present at the execution of Andre, at Tarrytown, and also took part in the battles of Trenton and Princeton, continuing in the army until the close of the war, when he settled at Bennington, Vt. Here he married Lydia Wood, daughter of John Wood, of Bennington, and removed to North Island, and thence to Georgia, in 1802. He lived here a quiet, respectable life, until November 29, 1853, when, full of years and honors, at the ripe age of eighty-nine years, he departed for the other world. He had a family of eleven children, three of whom, Noah R., Mary and Elizabeth, are now living. Noah R., who lives about two miles west of Georgia Center, has upon his farm a ledge of rocks containing fossils of the Trilobite, an extinct family of crustaceans, peculiar to the paleozoic era, which Prof. Jewett, of Albany, N. Y., and Prof. Julius Marco, a companion and pupil of Aggassiz, pronounce the only ledge of the kind in the world, and the specimens it contains the most perfect.

Robert Wightman came to this town from Scotland in 1804, and married Martha Davis, daughter of Stephen Davis, by whom he had a family of nine children, three of whom, Moses, Mrs. Anna Harris, of Colchester, and Mrs. Pattie Gross, of Richford, are living. Moses resides on the old homestead, aged seventy-one years.

Roswell Mears, from Poultney, Vt., came to this town in 1803, and located about half a mile west of Georgia Center, and officiated as pastor of the Baptist church until about fifteen years previous to his death. He reared a family of seven children, of whom Lucy, now of Iowa, and Alburn, of this town, are living.

Henry Rankin emigrated from Ireland to Montreal, and from there came to Georgia, in 1827. He had a family of six children, many of whose descendants still reside here.

Samuel Carr, from Woodbury, Conn., settled in Milton in 1820, and from there removed to Georgia, in 1854, locating in the southwestern part of the town, where he died, in 1875, aged eighty-six years. He had a family of ten children, two of whom died in infancy, and one, Columbus N., died in the army, in 1862. The others were named Julia O., Alvira, Eveline L., Jane, Nelson, Delilah, and Judson A. Of these, Nelson, Eveline, and Alvira, reside on the home farm, and Judson A. resides in the southern part of the town.

Joseph Stickney came to Georgia at an early day, from New Hampshire, and subsequently married Jerusha Hubbell, and, in 1816, removed to Highgate. He reared a family of nine children,—six sons and three daughters.

His son, Barney H., was born in Highgate in 1826, married Mary S. Webber, removed to this town in 1855, and now resides on road 38, with a family of six children.

The Georgia Plain Baptist Church, located at Georgia Plain, was organized by the people of the town, October 21, 1793, with thirteen members, and with Rev. Roswell Mears, pastor. In 1800, the society erected a house of worship, a wooden structure, which did service until 1848, when the present brick edifice was built, at a cost of $3,000.00. It is a neat building, capable of seating 400 persons, and valued, including grounds, at $4,800.00. The church is at present in a flourishing condition, with a Sabbath school numbering 140 scholars, and an average attendance of sixty. It has had but four pastors since its organization, Revs. Roswell Mears, Alva Sabin, Rufus Smith, and Joseph G. Lorimer, the present incumbent. Among its members have been reckoned some of the most influential men of the town. The society took, at an early day, a decided stand against intemperance and slavery.

The Georgia Congregational Church, located at Georgia Center, was organized by Deacon Walter Colon, Bushnell B. Downs, Philo Fairchild, Ira Hinkley, Ira Hinkley, Jr., Joseph Doane, Samuel Laffin, Noah Loomis, Jr., William Ballard, Nathaniel M. Torrey, Jacob Goodwin, William Post, and Frederick Cushman, November 7, 1793. Rev. Decius R. Bogue was chosen their first pastor. In 1800, the first church building was erected, and was succeeded by the present edifice in 1832, a brick structure erected at a cost of about $2,000.00. It will accommodate 250 persons and is now valued, including grounds, at $2,500.00. The society, now has sixty-nine members, with Rev. Charles W. Clark, pastor, and sustains a flourishing Sabbath school.

The Methodist Episcopal Church of Georgia Center.—In the early days of Methodism in this locality, Georgia was one of the seven stations of the Milton circuit. The first minister who labored here was Rev. L. Hitchcock. A class was formed previous to, or during, the year 1838, at Georgia Plain, where services continued to be held until 1848, when the present brick church was built at the Center. The present name of the charge is the Georgia and North Fairfax circuit, the pastor residing at Georgia, but preaching in both places. The society now numbers sixty members, with Rev. William N. Roberts, pastor, and owns property to the value of $5,000.00.

The Emanuel Episcopal Church, located at East Georgia, was organized by its first rector, Rev. F. W. Smith, with ten members, in 1872. During that year the church building was erected, a wood structure capable of seating 125 persons, and valued at $6,000.00. The society now has twenty-one members, with Rev. Gemont Graves, rector.

HIGHGATE, one of the northern lake towns of the county, is situated in the northwestern corner of the same, in lat. 44° 58' and long. 3° 59', bounded north by the Canada line, east by Franklin, south by Sheldon and Swanton, and west by Missisquoi bay and Swanton. It was chartered as a township to contain 23,040 acres by New Hampshire, August 17, 1763, with all the restrictions and reservations common to these grants, which were to be complied with on penalty of forfeiture of the charter. The grantees, however, Samuel Hunt and sixty-three associates, never complied with these requirements, nor ever became residents of the town; still, there seems never to have any trouble grown out of their delinquency. The land laid for a number of years with no attempt made towards its settlement, in direct violation to one of the requirements of the charter and the whole tract was several times sold for taxes, Ira Allen, of Colchester, having at one time owned the whole township. Several changes have been made in its boundary lines, so that it now contains much more than its original limits: November 1, 1792, a part of Alburgh was annexed to it, and October 23, 1806, Marvin's Gore was annexed; but on November 3, 1836, a part of Highgate was in turn annexed to Swanton.

The surface of the township is decidedly uneven, making a very picturesque landscape, and contains some points of view that are grand in the extreme. Along the Missisquoi river the land is considerably cut by deep ravines, while the northern half abounds in low hills, swamps and valleys, and in other portions extensive sand plains exist. One point of view, from the farm of Col. Dunton, off road 54, is often visited. From here the beholder traces a magnificent scene of mingled mountains, rivers, lakes, and well-cultivated farms. Towards the east may be seen the grim old Camel's Hump, Jay's Peak, and Mansfield, while in the dim, distant west, the Adirondacks appear beyond the blue expanse of Lake Champlain; the course of the Missisquoi is traced for miles, until it is finally lost in a thread of silver veining the emerald land, while on a clear day the distant mount where lies the city of Montreal may be seen, forming in all a bird's-eye view that for beauty is rarely excelled. The soil is extremely varied, comprising nearly every variety. In one field there may sometimes be found sand, muck, marl or loam, and clay. In the center of the township, near the falls, the soil is largely composed of sand, the site of a once mighty pine forest. The original timber was mostly pine and hemlock, though the highlands contained some hard-wood varieties. All along the Missisquoi there existed immense forests of giant pines, perhaps the finest in the State, which, in times gone by, gave employment to large numbers in their manufacture into lumber. Nothing but the remnants of these forests are left now, however, marking the spot where their huge ancestors stood in years ago. The town is well watered by numerous streams, the principal ones being the Missisquoi and Rock rivers. The Missisquoi flows across a portion of the southern part of the town, turns south into Swanton, and finally turns north again and forms the western boundary line of the town. The falls on this river form one of the finest water-powers in the State. Rock river enters the northern part of the town from Canada, and flows a southwesterly course into Missisquoi bay. Eel brook rises in the southern part of the town and flows a northerly course into Missisquoi bay. Saxe river rises near the central part of the town and flows into Rock river. Numerous other brooks exist, while two small ponds are found a little north of the center of the town, Cutler's and Proper pond, lying about three-quarters of a mile apart.

The geological structure, like the soil, is extremely varied, the town having no less than seven distinct rock systems, or ledges, entering into its formation. These beds, like those of the whole State, lie parallel to each other, extending through the town in a general north and south direction. On the west, entering from Swanton, is a ledge of Hudson river slates, lying next to a deposit of Trenton limestone; then follows a range of Hudson river limestone, next to which is a bed of red sandrock, then a range of Georgia slates, followed by a large vein of talcose conglomerate, and finally, comprising the residue of the town, a bed of talcose schist. The numerous divisions of these systems are too extended to mention at this point. No minerals, except iron, which was formerly wrought to a considerable extent, have been discovered. Mineral springs abound in different parts of the town, whose waters contain medicinal qualities that have made them famous.

In 1880, Highgate had a population of 2,090, was divided into fourteen school districts, and contained fourteen common schools, employing six male and eighteen female teachers, to whom was paid an aggregate salary of $1,485.60. There were 511 pupils attending common schools, while the entire cost of the schools for the year ending October 31st, was $1,642.72, with Williams Keyes, superintendent.

HIGHGATE, a post village, is situated in the southern part of the town on the Missisquoi river. It contains one church (Episcopal), one store, and about forty dwellings. The natural advantages of this village are as good as any in the State. The falls at this point would afford power for numerous factories, and it seems strange that the village has not increased and become a thriving center. As it is, however, but little manufacturing is carried on.

HIGHGATE CENTER, a post village and station on the Missisquoi railroad, is situated in the southern part of the town. It contains three churches, (Meth., Cong., and Cath.,) one hotel, three stores, a public hall, three lawyers' offices, and nearly fifty dwellings.

EAST HIGHGATE (p. o.), a small village located in the southeastern part of the town, on the Missisquoi river, is a station on the St. J. & L. C. R. R. It has the command of a fine water-power, but contains comparatively few manufactories. The only ones of note are O. A. Rixford's scythe and axe works, Keenan's saw, shingle and cider-mill, and a sheepskin-leggins factory.

HIGHGATE SPRINGS (p. o.), a hamlet near the eastern shore of Missisquoi bay, contains but the hotel and the buildings connected therewith. The postoffice is located there for the convenience of those visiting the springs, and for the farmers in the vicinity. The Franklin hotel, located at this place, was originally built by S. S. & S. W. Keyes, nearly fifty years ago. In 1868, it was purchased by Judson L. Scott, and kept by him as a summer resort for about nine years, when, in 1877, it was purchased by Messrs Davis & Penfield, of Boston, and Mr. Spencer, of Burlington, and by them again leased to Mr. Scott. It has, in connection with the cottages adjoining it, accommodations for 125 guests.

Champlain Hall Academy, located at Highgate, was established in 1877, by Rev. Josiah Swett, D. D., rector of St. John's church. Here pupils are prepared for college or business, and instructed in the various branches of science, literature, and art.

J. H. Bolac's marble works, located at the Center, employs several men in the manufacture of all kinds of marble goods.

E. N. Sunderland's carriage and blacksmith shop, located at Highgate village, was established by the Messrs. Keyes nearly fifty years ago. Mr. Sunderland employs six workmen, in the manufacture of a full line of goods.

Horskins & Hinertli's foundry, located at Highgate village, employs twelve men in the manufacture of stoves and a general foundry business.

Charles C. Sheldon's sheepskin boot manufactory, located on road 51, was established in 1880. He employs several persons in the manufacture of these useful articles.

Bell & Keenan's saw, shingle, and cider-mill, located at East Highgate, has the capacity for manufacturing 3,000 feet of lumber and 6,000 shingles per day, in addition to a large amount of cider in its season.

W. B. Skeel's marble works, located at Highgate Center, employs three men in the manufacture of all kinds of marble work.

The first proprietors' meeting of which there is any record to be found, was forty-one years from the date of the grant, in 1804, at the dwelling of John Saxe, with Matthew Saxe, proprietors' clerk, and Shadrack Hathaway, moderator. After repeated adjournments from time to time, without accomplishing any important business, April 12, 1805, a committee of three were appointed to lay out, survey, and return a plan of the lots of 103 acres each, to each original share, in due form of law. Matthew Saxe, Levi Henderson and John Johnson were appointed that committee, and made their report at a subsequent meeting, having accomplished the business assigned them. Their charge for the survey of the first, second, and third divisions was $485.75, which was allowed by vote of the proprietors, no one opposing. A vote was also taken at this meeting to quiet the claims of the actual settlers. But few other proprietors' meetings were held, when the record ceases.

The first settlement of the town was commenced in 1786-'87, mostly by Dutch refugees who supposed they were settling in Canada, believing so until the establishment of the line between Canada and the United States. In 1786, Joseph Reycard settled on the Canada line, John Hilliker on the Missisquoi river, and Jeremiah Brewster and Thomas Butterfield on the west side of Rock river, near the lake shore. In 1787, they were joined by Conrad Barr, John Saxe, John Stinehour, John Sheltee, John Wilson, John Hogle, Michael and Peter Lampman, and Peter Wagoner. These were joined by others from time to time, so that in 1791, the town had a population of 103, which, nine years later, in 1800, had increased to 437. In 1805, the town was regularly surveyed, and from that time up to 1820, made rapid strides in population, wealth and improvement. Previous to 1805, the settlements were mainly in the northwestern part of the town, where the town meetings were mostly held up to 1820, when a town meeting was called "at the school-house near Arwin P. Herrick's at Allen's Falls." The central village growing up around this beautiful waterfall was just beginning to have its influence in town, and from this date the town clerk's office was mostly at the Falls. The town was organized and the first town meeting held, March 31, 1791, when John Wagoner was chosen moderator; Jonathan Butterfield, town clerk; Isaac Aseltine and Minard Teachout, constables; John Wagoner, Michael Lampman and John Hilliker, selectmen; and Jacob Hilliker and Peter Lampman, fence viewers.

The first children born in the town were Henry Stinehour, Abram Rey-card, and Catharine Sheltree, in 1787. The first grist-mill was built by John Saxe, in the northwestern part of the town, in 1787. The first death was that of Catharine, wife of John Saxe, in 1791. The first school was also established during this year, in a house on Conrad Barr's farm; Thomas Thorp, from Baltimore, Md., taught in 1792-'93. Andrew Potter built the first saw-mill in 1797, at Highgate Falls, and a grist-mill soon after. Conrad Barr, and W. Moulte built the first framed barns and Matthew Godfrey and Peter Saxe kept the first store, in 1801. The first framed houses were built in 1802, by Elijah Rood, on the Missisquoi river, — Newcomb, at Highgate Springs, and Conrad Barr, near Saxe's mills. The first physician was Dr. Joseph B. Cutler, who located here in 1806, and lived in the town until his death, in 1861. The first furnace was built by Abel Drury, in 1807. Thomas Best built the first brick house, in 1811. Jonathan London was the first tanner. Nehemiah Sabin and John Clough were the first blacksmiths. The first marriage on record was that of Isaac and Sally Aseltine, January 14, 1800, by Sylvester Cobb, justice of the peace. On March 19, of the same year, Andrew Wilson and Rachel Wilson were married by Matthew Saxe, justice of the peace. The first representative was John Knickerbocker, in 1792.

A militia company was early established in the town, over which the following named were respectively appointed as captain: Timothy Winter, Jacob Croy, Conrad Saxe, Luther Meigs, Lumas Meigs, Franklin Hollenbeck, William Hilliker, Jerahmill Cumins, Jacob McGowen, Elisha Barr, J. S. Jenison, Hannibal Sheltus, and Harvey Hyde, and Lorenzo G. Pomeroy, brigadier-general. During the war of 1812, Conrad Saxe was captain of the second company of the first regiment, and first brigade of detached militia. This second company was raised from the towns of Highgate, Swanton, St. Albans, Georgia, Milton, and Westford. The number from Highgate was eleven, as follows: Chester Miller, David Stickney, Samuel Hubbell, Moses Martindale, David Herrick, Nathaniel Johnson, John Carmon, Henry Chappell, David Moore, David Sagar, and Peter Brewer. This company were detached for six to nine months and served out their time at Swanton Falls in 1812. The commissioned officers of the company were Capt. Conrad Saxe, Lieut. Heman Hoyt, and Ensign Heman Blanchard. Capt. Saxe, at the time of the battle of Plattsburgh, raised a company of volunteers, principally from Highgate, and started for the battle-ground, but failed to get a passage from Grand Isle until after the battle was over. The quiet of the town has also been disturbed at several times by skirmishes with smugglers, and by troubles in Canada, but nothing to amount to anything. During the last great war, Highgate promptly and cheerfully furnished six commissioned officers and 187 enlisted men, thirty-two of whom were killed or died from wounds, or diseases contracted in the service.

John Saxe was born in Saxony, Germany, in 1733. He married Catharine Weaver, of Rhinebeck, N. Y., and settled in Highgate in 1787, where he raised a family of eight sons and one daughter. He built the first grist-mill, on a small stream since called Saxe's brook. It is said he intended to build it on the river, but there were not men enough in the county to dam the stream. The mill-stones were dressed from rough stones found in the vicinity. His sons, Matthew, Peter, and Jacob, opened a store near the mill, where they did a successful business for many years. A small settlement soon grew up about the locality, which received the name of Saxe's Mills, and here the first postoffice was established. Here, also, was born Charles J. Saxe, John G. Saxe, the poet, now residing at Albany, N. Y., Peter, Jr., now of San Francisco, Cal., and James Saxe, of St. Albans. John Saxe, the founder of the family, died in 1808, aged seventy-five years.

George Stinehour came to Highgate in 1787, and made a clearing in the northern part of the town. His family consisted of eight sons and eight daughters. His sixth child, Henry, learned the tanner's trade, at St. Albans, and then went into business at Swanton, where he remained about fifteen years, then returned to Highgate, and carried on a tannery here until 1833. He then gave up that business and carried on the hotel at Highgate for five years, then established the Stinehour Hotel at Highgate Center, which is now occupied by two of his daughters. His family consisted of one son and three daughters, all now residents of the town, where their father and grandfather labored and died. George, Jr., the second son, was born in 1778, and consequently was but nine years old when his father came to this town. He resided on the farm now owned by his son, George N., until his death, in 1855, leaving a family of four children. George N., who occupies the old home-stead, was born in 1812.

Conrad Barr came to Highgate in 1787, and, after a long, uninterrupted residence here, died at the age of ninety-two years. John Barr, his eldest son, was born at Albany, N. Y., in 1784. In the course of his long life here he filled most of the town offices of trust. He married Parmelia Drury, in October, 1815, by whom he had a family of seven sons and four daughters, and died in October, 1869, aged eighty-nine years. Conrad Barr, Jr., the youngest son of Conrad, is now living with his wife in the northern part of the town. He married Sarah Carman in 1825, with whom he has passed a happy wedded life of fifty-seven years, and has nine children now living. Myron E., the youngest son, with whom the aged couple find a home, resides on road 22.

John Stimets, from Frankfort, Germany, came to Highgate in 1787. His two sons, John and Jacob, were born about 1800, and early in life located near each other in the northern part of the town, where they lived throughout their lives.

Both John, Jr., and his wife died during the same month, in the fall of 1880. Jacob died in 1852, leaving a family of five sons and four daughters. His wife died in 1876. Charles C., the youngest of the family, owns the homestead, a farm of about 300 acres, but is himself occupied as the principal of the Hasbrouck Institute, Jersey City, N. J.

John Johnson, from Manchester, Vt., came to Highgate in 1789, and took up a farm of 400 acres on the northern line of the town, where he resided until his death, in 1850, aged ninety-six years. His family consisted of six sons and three daughters. John, the eighth child, was born in 1804, and has lived on the place he now occupies, since 1827. Mr. Best's only property, when he came here on foot through the forest, consisted of an axe and bundle of clothes tied up in a pocket handkerchief; his energy and perseverance, however, soon placed him in possession of a fine farm. He was a local Methodist preacher for many years, exerting a marked influence, though his education was self-acquired, his only time spent in school being a three months term. His family consisted of four sons and four daughters. The youngest children, Hiram and Truman, were twins, born in 1814. Hiram, who occupies the homestead, married Elizabeth Barr, in 1837.

He has one son, Edson D., and one daughter, Lucy A., the wife of A. W. Teachout.

Solomon Percy, from Hoosic, N. Y., came to Highgate, in 1790, and located in the western part of the town upon the farm now owned by his son, John, where he died in 1835, aged sixty-two years, leaving a family of two sons and four daughters. John, the eldest son, was born in 1801, and has resided on the homestead for eighty years, being now the oldest native resident of the town.

James Hogaboom emigrated to this country from Germany at an early date, locating in Hudson, N. Y., and thence removed to this town in 1792, and located upon the farm now owned by Thomas Cray. William, the fourth son, was born at Hudson, in 1787, making him five years of age when his parents came to this town. James, Jr., born in 1785, located on road 41, where he resided over forty years.

Minard Teachout came to Highgate about 1794, and settled in the western part of the town, where he engaged in his trade of shoemaking, and also conducted a farm. William Teachout, the fifth of thirteen children, was born in 1804, married Hannah Boyce in 1829, and in 1836, removed to the farm now owned by his son, Albert W., where he died, in 1847, aged seventy-six years.

Dr. Joseph B. Cutler was an early settler in the northern part of the town, he having come here from Plainfield, N. H. He resided upon the farm now owned by his son, Allen B., and practiced his profession until his death, in 1861. MONTGOMERY is a mountainous town lying in the extreme eastern part of the county, in lat. 44° 52', and long. 4° 23', bounded north by Richford, east by Westfield and Lowell, in Orleans county, south by Avery's Gore and a small portion of Eden and Belvidere, in Lamoille county, and west by Enosburgh and Avery's Gore. It originally contained an area of 23,040 acres, or a square whose sides were each six miles in length, and was granted by the State, March 13, 1780, to Stephen R. Bradley, Rev. Ezra Stiles, John Graham, and others to the number of sixty-four, though it did not receive its charter until October 8, 1789. Its area was changed, however, in 1859, by having annexed to it a tract of about 7,000 acres from Avery's Gore and Lowell.

The surface of Montgomery is wild and rugged in most parts, though it has some fine broad intervals along the several streams. The mountains do not rise to any considerable height except in the northeastern part of the town, where Jay Peak, lying partly in Jay and Westfield, pierces the clouds at an altitude of 4,018 feet, being the next in altitude to Camel's Hump. Notwithstanding the approach to the mountain is inconvenient and its ascent extremely difficult, many people visit its summit each season to obtain a glimpse of the magnificent view it affords. It does not give so grand a prospect of the Champlain valley as may be obtained from Camel's Hump, yet the observer is compensated for this deprivation in the more extended views afforded in the valleys of the St. Lawrence, Ottawa, and Lake Memphremagog. To the northwest lies the level and fertile country surrounding Montreal, contrasting beautifully with the wild and rugged scenery to the north and northeast, where are thickly-studded mountain peaks, prominent among which are Sutton and Orford mountains, Sugar Loaf, and Owl's Head. While between the beholder and Sutton Mountain, in Canada, is the deep valley of the Missisquoi, which, like the Winooski and Lamoille, winds its way through a valley about 3,500 feet below the summits of the mountains on either side. Nearer its base may be seen the beautiful villages of Montgomery, Richford, Berkshire, and those of other thriving towns. The soil of Montgomery varies, as is the case with that of all highland towns. The valleys and intervalles are rich and productive, while the mountains and hill-slopes afford pasturage for herds and flocks, making the town, therefore, valuable both as a farming and grazing territory. The town is well watered by numerous streams, yet the only one that flows from the town is Trout river, which is formed by the union of South and East branches, about half a mile west of the center of the town, and thence flows a northwesterly course into Enosburgh. It forms the river basin of the town, as all the other streams are tributary to it. Many excellent mill-sites are afforded, several of which are in use. The principal rock entering into the geological formation of the town is talcosc schist. This is cut, in the western part, by a long, narrow ledge of clay slate, extending the whole length of the town. In the eastern part of the territory is a large bed of gneiss, extending from Avery's Gore through into Richford. In the southern part of the town there is a considerable deposit of serpentine. No minerals of any value have been discovered.

In 1880, Montgomery had a population of 1,643, was divided into ten school districts and contained ten common schools, employing two male and fifteen female teachers, to whom was paid an aggregate salary of $1,206.35. There were 473 pupils attending common school, while the entire cost of the the schools for the year was $1,335.10, with W. B. Davis, superintendent.

Hutchins' saw-mill, butter-tub, and packing-box factory, located in the central part of the town on a branch of Trout river, is one of the largest mills in the county, the main building being 60x180 feet, with two lumber sheds, 20x225 feet, attached. The mill is operated by water-power and has the capacity for manufacturing 175,000 butter-tubs per year and cutting 12,000 feet of lumber per day.

The first permanent settlement in Montgomery was made by Joshua Clapp, in March, 1793. Mr. Clapp was a Revolutionary officer from Worcester county, Mass. He took up a large tract of land, lying on both sides of the river, in the northwestern part of the town. Here he built a log house upon the bank of the stream, which subsequently gave place to a more pretentious building, the first framed house built in the town, and which is still standing in a good state of preservation. Mr. Clapp had a family of eight children, six of whom arrived at the age of maturity. His son, Joel, was the first child born in the town, September 14, 1793. Only two of the children now are living, Joshua, Jr., and Mrs. Eliza Hamilton. Joshua, Jr., born in 1805, has been town clerk twenty-nine consecutive years, represented the town four times, and has been a member of the senate twice. He was the first native of the town sent to the general assembly. Clapp, with the exception of a man by the name of Collar, who settled for a short time on a rocky hill, still known as Collar Hill. The first justice of the peace was Samuel Barnard, chosen in 1800. The first representative was Joshua Clapp, elected in 1803. RICHFORD, located in the northeastern corner of the county, in lat. 44° 57', and long. 4° 24', bounded north by the Canada line, east by Jay, in Orleans county, south by Montgomery, and west by Berkshire, was chartered by Vermont, March 13, 1780, to Jonathan Wells and fifty-nine others. The tract was to contain an area of 23,040 acres, bounded as follows:—

“Beginning at the northeast corner of the township of Berkshire, being the north line of this State, then east in said line six miles; then southerly on such point as to gain six miles on a perpendicular from said line of the State; then west parallel with said State-line to the southeasterly corner of said Berkshire; then northerly in the eastern line of said Berkshire, to bounds begun at, and will contain the contents of six miles square and no more.”

This area, however, was somewhat increased, as the town was surveyed by General Whitelaw, of Ryegate, in 1795, who ran the town lines, and most of the ranges north and south, making corners from measurement. The south line varies from the charter, in following the Montgomery line to the corner, which is 150 rods south of Berkshire corner, thus making more than six miles square.

In surface, Richford is very mountainous and uneven, thus having a great deal of land that is unarable and not fit for purposes of cultivation, though even this seemingly waste land is valuable on account of the timber it contains. As a whole, however, the township is well adapted to agricultural purposes, having a large amount of land with a warm productive soil, the intervals along the Missisquoi river being especially productive. The soil is various, containing in different places clay, loam, muck and some sand and gravel. More attention is given to stock raising and dairying, than to grain raising. The timber is principally hemlock, spruce, beech, birch, basswood, ash and maple, from the latter of which a large amount of sugar is usually made. The hill-sides, from their numerous springs, give rise to several streams, affording a number of excellent mill-sites. The Missisquoi river, which flows across the northern part of the town from east to west, forms the principal water-course, and into it flow most of the smaller streams of the territory, none of which, however, are of large size. The South Eastern Township's railway passes through the northern part of the town, with stations at Richford village and East Richford, and at the former village is joined by the Missisquoi railroad, from St. Albans. The rocks of the town are principally of the talcose schist formation, though there are some small beds of limestone, and in the southern part some minor deposits of gneiss and clay slates. No minerals of any value, except copper, have been discovered.

In 1880, Richford had a population of 1,818, was divided into nine school districts, and contained twelve common schools, employing three male and twelve female teachers, to whom was paid an aggregate salary of $1,687.17. There were 424 pupils attending common schools, while the entire cost of the schools for the year ending October 31st, was $2,053.00, with J. H. Hamilton, superintendent.

RICHFORD, a post village and station on the South Eastern Townships railway, and the eastern terminus of the Missisquoi railroad, is located in the northeastern part of the county on the Missisquoi river. The village was incorporated by an act of the legislature, approved November 21, 1878, and was organized under said act in 1879. It contains four churches, (Methodist, Catholic, Baptist, and Advent,) a bank, four hotels, about twenty stores, a grist-mill, saw-mill, marble shop, two harness shops, three blacksmith shops, a tub factory, planing-mill, and about 750 inhabitants.

EAST RICHFORD (p. o.), a small post village and station on the South Eastern Townships railway, is located in the northeastern part of the town, on the Missisquoi river. During the war of 1812, fifty soldiers were stationed here for a time, to guard the Canadian frontier.

Gorham F. Smith's planing-mill, located near the province line, is operated by a seventy-five horse-power engine, and has three planers, two of which are planers and matchers combined, one re-sawing machine, and six saws for slitting, etc. It employs nineteen men and finishes 250,000 feet of lumber per week.

L. Baker & Co.'s steam grist and planing-mill, located at the village, handles about 6,000,000 feet of lumber per annum, and grinds 35,000 bushels of grain. They have one planing and matching machine, through which 15,000 feet of timber is dressed and matched daily, and one planer which planes 35,000 feet during the same time. The firm employs fourteen hands.

White, Clarkson & Co.'s steam saw-mill, located at East Richford, is operated by a 150 horse power engine, employs eighteen men, and manufactures 2,000,000 feet of lumber per annum, most of which is spruce and hemlock. The firm has also a timber yard located near the Province line, where about twenty men are employed in the shipment of lumber, 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 feet of which is handled annually.

C. W. Smith's tannery, located at the village, was built by O. J. Smith in 1859, and operated by him until 1878, when it came into the present owner's possession.

C. P. Stevens & Co.'s mill, located on road 16, is operated by water-power, has one large lumber saw, one planer, one matcher, one clapboard machine, and a complete set of box machinery. It employs thirty men and manufactures 4,000,000 feet of lumber annually.

Lewis & Colcord's steam saw-mill, located on road 25, is operated by a forty horse-power engine, employs twenty men and manufactures 2,000,000 feet of lumber per annum. They have also machinery for preparing the lumber for market, and also manufacture staves and shingles.

The first permanent settlers in Richford were Hugh Miller, who came here in 1795, and located upon the farm now owned by Cassius Miller, Capt. Barnett upon the farm now the property of S. P. Carpenter, and Joseph Stanhope upon the farm now owned by H. S. Stanhope. Hugh Miller came on, from Bradford, Vt., in March, 1795, with his wife, eight children, and three sons-in-law. Here, upon the farm mentioned, they camped, and soon after erected log cabins and began in earnest the life of pioneers. The sons-in-law were Robert Kennedy, Theophilus Hastings, and Benjamin Barnett, who married the three oldest girls, Hannah, Catharine, and Amy. The other children were three young men, James, Jacob, and Daniel, and two younger girls, Mary Ann, and Ruth. James Miller, sometime later, settled in Canada, about three miles up the river. Jacob married Saloma Nutting, daughter of Capt. Nutting, of Berkshire, and lived and died in this town. Daniel married Anna, daughter of Rowland Powell. He became a Custom House officer, and died from the effects of an affray in Hyde Park, in 1810, leaving a widow and five small children,—Patty, Anna, Fanny, Madison, and Marvin. Capt. Barnett and Robert Kennedy moved to Canada about the year 1812. Hugh Miller, on hearing of the death of Daniel, had a shock of paralysis and lived but twenty days. He was buried on the hill near which he lived and died. Theophilus Hastings, a strong and useful man, died of nose-bleed, leaving his widow with several small children. Mrs. Hugh Miller, a christian woman, possessed of great energy and endurance, had considerable skill as a doctress. She survived her husband ten years, living with her son Jacob, and died in 1820.

The first settlers in the southern part of the town were Asa Morris, Edward Morris, Rosel Allen, Nathan Allen, Ira Allen, Levi Allen, James Dwyer, and Hezekiah Dwyer. Among the early settlers in other parts of the town were the following: Jonathan Carpenter, Sr., Jonathan Carpenter, Jr., Stephen Carpenter, and Phineas and Roger Wright upon the farm now owned by Harlow Sears; Cyrus Davis, upon the farm now owned by Byron Davis; Ephraim Corliss, upon the farm now owned by William Puffer; William Gross, upon the farm occupied by Jason Gross; Jonathan Fletcher, from Troy, Vt., who settled upon the William Gross farm; Livi Gross, upon the present Gilbert R. Gross farm; Levi Webster, upon the farm now owned by the heirs of Levi Webster. In 1800, when the first census of the town was taken, it had a population of thirteen, and ten years later, at the taking of the next census its population had increased 440.

The proprietors met from time to time, and transacted the usual business of such bodies; but much trouble having arisen between them and the actual settlers, a final meeting was held at the house of Joseph Blaisdell, in 1822, the town having just received a re-survey by Joseph Beeman, of Fairfax, when matters were so arranged as to give good titles and quiet the settlers in possession of their lands. The town was organized and the first town meeting held, agreeable to a warning issued by Stephen Royce, of Berkshire, at the house of Jonathan Janes, March 30, 1799, when Stephen Royce was chosen moderator ; Charles Wells, town clerk ; Jonathan Janes, Daniel Janes, and Robert Kennedy, selectmen ; Stephen Carpenter, Jared Farnham, and Bradford Powell, listers ; and Theophilus Hastings, collector and constable. The first freemen's meeting was held on the first Tuesday in September, 1799, when the whole number of votes cast were eleven,—unanimous for Isaac Tichenor for governor, and for Paul Brigham, lieut.-governor. Jonathan Janes was also elected the first representative of the town at this meeting. Dr. John Huse was elected town clerk in 1830, which office he held until 1846, when his son-in-law, Silas P. Carpenter, was elected to the position, holding the office until 1879, when his son, J. H. Carpenter, the present incumbent, succeeded him, thus making fifty-two consecutive years that the office has been retained in the family. The first birth was that of Seymour, son of Theophilus Hastings. The first sermon preached in the town was delivered by Bishop Hedding, in 1802, at the residence of Mrs. Hugh Miller. The land upon which the old village cemetery is situated was given to the town by Stephen Blaisdell, and Hezekiah Goff, Jr., was the first person buried therein. The first framed barn was built by Joseph Stanhope, upon the farm now owned by H. S. Stanhope. The first store was kept by a Mr. Foote. The first settled minister was William Rogers, a Baptist clergyman, who drew the ministerial lot consisting of 350 acres, 250 of which he gave to the town towards supporting the common schools. The first saw-mill and grist-mill were built by Hezekiah Goff, on the stream just below the present McCarthy saw-mill.

Joseph Stanhope, from Guilford, Conn., came to this town in 1796, with his family, which consisted of a wife and six children, and made the first settlement on the farm now owned by H. S. Stanhope. The nearest mill was then at Fairfield, a distance of thirty miles. Joseph was a blacksmith, and a short time after his settlement he built a frame house in which he kept the first hotel in the town. On the inside of the cover of an old account book is the following verse written by him :—

“ Joseph Stanhope is my name,
And English is my nation ;
Sudbury is my native place,
And Christ is my salvation.”

Mrs. Stanhope died in 1829, and was buried on the old homestead, where, after a few years, her husband was laid beside her.

Joseph Parker, from Vergennes, is said to have driven the first yoke of oxen into the town, and located upon the farm now owned by A. M. Noyes. The only representative of the family now living here is a grandson, L. R. Parker. Sterling Parker, son of Joseph, kept a store a long time nearly opposite the site now occupied by J. S. Daley's store.

James Flint, of Canaan, N. H., settled just across the line in Canada, in 1800, where he died in 1811. In 1822, the family moved into Richford, where they have since resided. Freeman, son of James, resides on road 19.

Hezekiah Goff was a soldier during the Revolution, and after the war returned to Massachusetts, where he remained until 1803, then immigrated to this town and located upon the farm now owned by David Marcy. William Goff, son of Hezekiah, was born in Sunderland, Mass., September 15, 1783, married Abigail Blaisdell, of Richford, August 11, 1811, and located in Sheldon, remained there about thirteen years, then returned to Richford. Here he carried on a starch factory, grist and saw-mill, and carding and cloth dressing works. He was a man noted for his generosity and philanthropy. Jonathan and Seth, brothers of William, were soldiers in the war of 1812.

John Combs, from New Hampshire, came to this town in 1805, and located upon the farm now owned by the heirs of W. Y. Wightman. Of his seven sons, Lewis and Jonathan only attained the age of manhood. Lewis now resides in Ogdensburg, N. Y., and Jonathan still resides on road 31.

Caleb Royce, from Tinmouth, Vt., settled upon the farm now owned by Jesse Woodruff, in Berkshire, remained there about five years, then removed to this town, in 1812, and located upon the farm at present owned by Lewis Wright.

Benjamin Puffer, from Sutton, P. Q., came to this town in 1813, and settled upon the farm now owned by Isaac Wheeler.

Harvey D. Farrar was born at Enosburgh, Vt., August 19, 1814, and removed to South Richford with his father when three years old. He married Charlotte Allen, March 18, 1837, and purchased a farm upon which he lived until 1857, when he sold out and removed to Richford village, where he engaged in the produce business. He represented the town in 1861-'62, was elected State senator in 1867, and died September 25, 1877.

William Bliss came to this town from Hartland, Vt., in 1818, and purchased the farm now owned by his son, William G.

Caleb Willard, born at Hartland, Vt., February 29, 1796, enlisted in the war of 1812, at Tunbridge, Vt., when eighteen years of age, was at the battle Plattsburgh, and after the close of the war returned to Tunbridge, whence, in 1818, he came to this town and made the first settlement upon the farm now owned by his son, William B., with whom he now makes his home, being the only pensioner of 1812 living in the town.

Ebenezer Dunham was born at Plymouth, Mass. His parents both died when he was but four years old, and at the age of fourteen he entered the Continental army in the war of the Revolution, served eight years, and then settled in Royalton, Vt., where he remained until 1811, then removed to Enosburgh and remained until his death. His son, Ira, came to this town in 1829, and located upon the farm now owned by Sylvanus Dunham.

Joseph M. Smith was born at Broome, Can., and came to Richford in 1843, where he followed his occupation of shoemaking until his death, in November, 1881.

Dr. Benjamin B. Searles, a descendant of John Searles, one of the pilgrims of the "Mayflower," was a soldier in the war of 1776, and participated in the battle of Bennington. After the war closed he married a Miss Eunice Scott and settled in the town of Sheldon, where he kept a tavern, upon the site of the present Methodist church at East Sheldon, and practiced medicine at the same time, until 1800, when he located in Berkshire, the first settler on the farm now owned by Hanson Yaw. He had a family of five children, of whom Benjamin, of this town, and Mrs. Fanny McCarty, of Berkshire, are the only ones living in the county.

The following is the roll of Capt. Follett's company, of Richford, on duty upon the Canadian frontier in 1813: Martin D. Follett, captain; Benjamin Follett, lieutenant; John Lewis, ensign; Andrew Farnsworth, sergeant; and Josiah W. Potter, Thomas Hill, Nelson Brown, A. Fassett, John Stone, Benjamin Austin, A. F. Stone, B. Shaw, Josiah Randall, Anson Sherwood, Raymond Austin, William Colton, Anthony Bessey, James Brown, Salmon Dodge, Henry Follett, John Flint, Page Gould, Samuel Hall, Caleb Hill, Horace Gates, Barnabas Hedge, Nathan Hedge, Samuel Hedge, Talman Hendrick, John Lewis, J. Taylor, R. Essex, Aaron Martin, Chauncey Brown, Harris Streeter, John Miller, James Miller, Talman Miller, John Martin, William Martin, William Osborn, H. Palmer, Obadiah Sherwood, Luther Taylor, Job Thompson, Moses Wallace, Lyman West, John Wright, Martin D. Follett, Jr., Samuel Cooper, Robert Watson, Anson Curtis, Elijah Cooper, John Thompson, Sandford Fay, Aaron Jackson, and George Town, privates.

For the late war of 1861, the town furnished two commissioned officers and 129 enlisted men, twenty of whom were killed, or died from disease or wounds, before their terms of service expired.

Among those who were wounded during the Shenandoah Valley campaign, was Henry E. Bedell, who went out as second lieutenant of Co. D., 11th Regt. Mr. Bedell was then twenty-eight years of age, a man of splendid physique. He sustained the loss of a limb, from an unexploded shell crashing through it at the knee, necessitating amputation of the mangled member at the upper third. The army was obliged to advance, but the wounded officer was in too critical a condition to be moved, and consequently was obliged to remain, left to the tender mercies of the rebel population. When just upon the point of death, having been left in a garret upon a pile of straw for nearly a week, with no food or water, a rebel officer's wife learned of his pitiable condition, and with the noble-heartedness of her sex, resolved to do what she could to ameliorate his sufferings. She had him removed to her own house, gradually nursed him back to life, and, though struggling with poverty herself, managed, with the utmost heroism, to care for him until he was able to escape through the lines and start for his Vermont home. In the meantime, Bedell had promised to do his utmost to obtain the release of her husband, who was retained as a prisoner by the Union army at Johnson's Island. In company with the noble woman he sought and obtained an order for the release of the rebel officer. After much trouble and anxiety the husband was restored to the heroine and the whole party were soon resting in the dwelling of Bedell among the hills of Richford. The families, as may be believed, have since been the closest friends, and each year Mr. and Mrs. Van Metre leave their Southern home and spend a few weeks with Mr. Bedell, when the "veterans of the blue and the gray" live over again their mutual sufferings, trials, and escapes.

The Methodist Episcopal Church of Richford.—The First Methodist sermon preached in Richford was delivered by Elijah Hedding, afterwards Bishop Hedding. Twenty-three years later, in 1825, the Bishop held a series of revival meetings here and formed a class. This was connected with the Sheldon circuit for a time, and subsequently with the Franklin, Berkshire, and Montgomery circuits; but finally, in 1861, it was united with the East Berkshire circuit, and Rev. B. F. Livingston appointed pastor, with his home at Richford, and here a good parsonage was completed for him the following year. Up to this time the society had worshipped in the Union building. The present edifice, a neat structure capable of seating 350 persons, was commenced in 1871, and completed the following year, costing $8,144.53. The society now has a membership of 180, with Rev. Frank H. Roberts, pastor.

The Second Advent Millennial Association, or Advent Church, located at Richford village, was organized by Dea. Russell Smith and others, to the number of about sixty, in 1858, with Rev. S. S. Garvin as their first pastor. The church building, erected in 1871, will seat 400 persons, and cost $9,300.00. The society now numbers fifty members, with Rev. F. H. Peabody, pastor.

The Richford Village Baptist Church was organized by its first pastor, Rev. M. G. Smith, March 26, 1872, with twenty-three members. The church building, erected in 1871, is a wood structure, owned and used alternately by this church and the Advents. The society now has eighty-one members, with Rev. J. T. Buzzell, pastor.

All Saints Roman Catholic Church, located at Richford village, was organized in 1874, by the Rt. Rev. L. De Goesbriand, with 100 members, and Rev. J. Brelivet, the present incumbent, appointed pastor. The church building, which will seat 250 persons, and cost $1,264.00, was erected during the same year. The society now numbers about 300 members.

SHELDON is a pentagonal shaped town located in the central part of the county, in lat. 44° 54', and long. 4° 5', bounded north by Franklin and Highgate, east by Enosburgh, and south and west by Fairfield and Swanton. It contains an area of 23,040 acres, originally granted to Samuel Hungerford and sixty-four associates, under the name of Hungerford, by Benning Wentworth, the colonial governor of New Hampshire, August 18, 1763. Samuel Hungerford was a native of Connecticut, as was most of the other grantees, among whom was a Quaker family by the name of Field. In the course of time this family bought not only Hungerford's share, but the rights of most of the others, so that nearly the whole town belonged to "Daddy" Field, as the patriarch was called, and to Timothy Rogers, of Ferrisburgh, who was one of the town's first surveyors. From them it was purchased by Samuel, George, and Elisha Sheldon, and the name changed to the one it now bears, November 8, 1792.

The surface of the township is pleasantly diversified by broad valleys and gentle rolling uplands, while the scenery, both in and around it, is charming. The surrounding mountain view is varied and beautiful from all parts of the town. About fifteen miles distant to the northeast, in Canada, is the Pinnacle, a single bold spur of the Green Mountains, which is much visited, while Dunton's Hill, only two miles north of the springs, gives a view which for extent and interest is hardly surpassed. Montreal and the mountains beyond may be seen distinctly on a clear day, seventy to eighty church steeples counted, and the whole country from the Adirondacks round to the eastern range of the Green Mountains, with all of its variety of beautiful scenery, is spread out like a picture before the observer. The soil, too, of Sheldon, is unsurpassed. Along the streams and in the valleys are broad alluvial meadows, while the uplands have a fine soft loam, all capable of yielding crops of rare excellence. The higher lands are timbered with ash, beech, birch, maple, oak, etc. In the valleys and bordering upon the streams, where they remain uncleared, are tracts of valuable pine and hemlock, with a mixture of butternut, elm and other soft woods. The pine tract predominates in the western part of the town, where the soil is lighter and less productive. The principal streams of the town are Missisquoi River, Black creek, and Tyler's branch. The Missisquoi flows across the whole length of the town, from east to west. Black creek joins it from the south, near the central part of the town, and Tyler's branch unites with it in the eastern part of the town. There are other streams throughout the township, but of minor importance. Many excellent mill-sites are afforded, some of which have been improved.

Geologically, there are four distinct general formations of rock crossing the town from north to south, with strikes almost parallel. The most western of these is a range of Georgia slates, next to which is a bed of quartz rock, then a ledge of talcose conglomerate, while the rest of the town overlies an immense bed of talcose schist. In the western part marble formations exist, containing some quarries that bid fair to develop into considerable value. On the farm of S. S. F. Carlisle, on road 18, there is a quarry of beautiful pink and white marble, which is said to be equal to any found in Italy. In different parts of the town, mineral springs have been discovered, whose waters are said to be excellent for all cutaneous difficulties, and to be especially beneficial to those afflicted with cancer. The first of these was discovered by Moses Kimball and Eleazer Draper, about sixty years ago, and for many years was known as Kimball spring, but which is now known as Sheldon spring, and about which quite a village has grown up. In 1868, S. S. F. Carlisle and Dr. S. S. Fitch erected a fine hotel here, the Congress Hall, which was opened in 1869. The building is four stories in height, 123x96 feet, and furnished throughout in excellent style. The hotel is now under the management of Mr. A. E. McLean, a gentleman of large experience in this line of business. The house is a very popular resort. Iron ore in considerable quantities also exists in the town. As early as 1798, a furnace for smelting the ore was built here, by Israel and Alfred Keith, who came here for that purpose from Pittsford, Vt. It was located on the east side of Black creek, where it was operated until 1822 or '23, and then rebuilt on the opposite side of the stream. Here it was kept in operation for a number of years, but finally abandoned. The principal article manufactured here from the iron was potash kettles. And as this was one of the first furnaces enacted in the State, the demand for this ware became quite active, as at that time one chief industry throughout the country was the manufacture of potash. Men came to Sheldon, sometimes, from a distance of two hundred miles, for these kettles.

The Missisquoi railroad crosses the town from east to west, with stations at Sheldon Springs, Sheldon, Sheldon Junction, North Sheldon, and South Franklin. At Sheldon Junction the road is intersected by the S. J. & L. C. railway, with a station at the Junction and at Sheldon village. The Canada Junction road, now in process of construction, enters the town from Franklin and has its southern terminus at Sheldon Junction.

In 1880, Sheldon had a population of 1,529, was divided into thirteen school districts and contained thirteen common schools, employing four male and seventeen female teachers, to whom was paid an aggregate salary of $1,827.40. There were 385 pupils attending common school, while the entire cost of the schools for the year, ending October 31st, was $2,512.86. S. W. Langdon was superintendent.

SHELDON, a post village and station on the Lamoille railroad, is located in the southern part of the town on Black creek. It contains three churches, (Methodist, Episcopal and Congregational,) three stores, two hotels, two carriage shops, two blacksmith-shops, a grist and saw-mill, etc. It is very beautifully situated and was once a summer resort of considerable note, though it is not now as popular.

NORTH SHELDON, a post village and station on the Missisquoi railroad, is located north of the central part of the town, on the Missisquoi river.

EAST SHELDON (p. o.), is a hamlet located in the eastern part of the town.

SHELDON SPRINGS (Olmsted Falls p. o.), a station on the Missisquoi railroad, is located in the western part of the town on the river. It received its name from the noted springs found here, and contains a large hotel,—the Congress Hall,—one store, and a grist and saw-mill.

SOUTH FRANKLIN (p. o.), located in the northeastern part of the town, is a station on the Missisquoi railroad.

Samuel T. Bancroft's Carriage Factory, located at Sheldon village, was established by him in 1851. He manufactures all kinds of wagons, carriages and sleighs.

E. T. Holmes's carriage-shop, located at Sheldon village, has been operated by him since 1869. The shop is furnished with water-power and employs three men.

C. R. Keith's "Wildwood" gardens and nursery, located on road 38, were established by the present owner in 1860. They comprise an area of three acres, upon which Mr. Keith grows a great variety of ornamental and fruit trees.

Bush & Draper's saw-mill, located at Sheldon village, cuts annually about 500,000 feet of lumber.

J. S. & F. E. Dodge's grist and saw-mill, located at Sheldon Springs, were formerly known as the Olmsted mills, and were purchased by the present proprietors in November, 1881. The saw-mill has the capacity for cutting 15,000 feet of lumber per day, and also manufacturing 500,000 shingles per annum. The grist-mill has three runs of stones and does mostly custom work.

Sheldon grist-mill, operated by A. S. Olmsted, located at Sheldon village, has three runs of stones and does custom work.

The first account we have of any white man's visit to Sheldon, is that of Samuel Sheldon, in 1789. He ascended the Lamoille river to Cambridge, passed through Bakersfield, striking one of the tributaries of Tyler's branch, which he descended until he reached the point where the latter joins the Missisquoi, where, it being nightfall, he stopped until morning. A large elm log was long pointed out as the one beneath which he slept. In the spring of 1790, George, the youngest son of Col. Elisha Sheldon, in company with a Scotchman named McNamara and his wife, together with several negro servants, came to the town as the first settlers. Upon the north side of the river, opposite the mouth of Tyler's branch, and near the old elm beneath which Samuel had passed his first night in the town the year previous, they erected a log house, the first built in the town. After their small crop was harvested that fall, the negroes returned to Burlington to pass the winter, and George returned to his home in Connecticut, leaving the house and small clearing in charge of McNamara and his wife. Here they passed a lonely, and to the Scotchman an extremely sad winter. When George returned in spring, he found that Mrs. McNamara had died, and her husband had been obliged to bury her remains in a snow-bank. Thus occurred the first death in the town. Her body was afterwards buried upon a hemlock ridge, on the south side of the river, about a quarter of a mile distant from the mouth of the Branch.

Later in the spring, Col. Sheldon and his sons, Elisha, Jr., Samuel B., and son-in-law, Elnathan Keyes, together with their families and that of George Sheldon, with the negro servants, and James Herrick and James Hawley, arrived in town. While on their way thither, at the house of Daniel Stannard, in Georgia, the first town meeting was held, and Samuel B. Sheldon appointed town clerk; James Herrick, constable; and Col. Elisha Sheldon, James Hawley, and Elisha Sheldon, Jr., selectmen. Settling at different points, all parties began in earnest to clear the lands. Meanwhile other settlers were coming in, so that the settlement rapidly advanced, and, in 1800, the town had a population of 408.

The first representative and first justice of the peace was Samuel B. Sheldon, elected in 1791. The first freemen's meeting was held in 1793, when the whole number of votes cast was forty-five, as follows: For governor, Isaac Tichenor, forty-five; for lieutenant-governor, Jonathan Hunt, forty-one, and Peter Shott, four; for treasurer, Samuel Mattocks, forty-five. The first saw-mill was built by Samuel Sheldon, in 1792, at the lower falls, about two miles from the present Sheldon village. In 1797, he built a grist-mill on the west side of the creek. In 1799, Israel Keith built the furnace and forge, which for a long time employed one hundred men. In 1803, a carding-mill was built, and on the 15th of January, of the same year, a postoffice was established, and Dr. Hildreth appointed postmaster. Dr. Hildreth was also the first physician and first tavern-keeper. The first store was kept by Benjamin Clark, who afterwards sold out to Sheldon, Keith & Fitch. The first birth was that of a colored girl; her mother, "Old Mary," was a servant of Col. Sheldon, who bought her in Connecticut. The second child born was Harvey Deming, son of Frederick Deming. The third child born was Louisa Sheldon, daughter of George Sheldon. The first school-house was built by Samuel Sheldon, on the west side of Black creek, and the first school teacher was Miss Betsey Jennison, of Swanton. The first framed house was also built by Samuel Sheldon.

Samuel B. Herrick, son of James Herrick one of the first settlers of the town, was born here in 1808. He married Alma Hull, had a family of four children, and died December 10, 1874. One of his sons, Fay H., born in 1840, married Mary Duclos, and has two children, Earnest D., and Alma L. Samuel's other son, A. H., born here in 1837, died August 22, 1871.

Ceylon Deming, from Connecticut, was one of the early settlers of the town. He located near East Sheldon, upon the farm now owned by his grandson, William. Mr. Deming was three times married and had a family of four children, none of whom are now living.

J. C. Kittell came to Sheldon at an early date, and located upon the farm now owned by his son, Albert, on road 41. He became a large land-owner, and kept a hotel at Sheldon village for many years. He married Elizabeth Hawley, and had a family of twelve children, four of whom are now living.

John and Alanson Webster, brothers, came to this town at an early date, and located in the northwestern part upon the farm now owned by Truman Webster, a grandson of John. Levi, son of John, was born on this farm in 1802, and died here in 1851. He married Esther Birchard, who now resides here at the age of seventy-eight years, and had three sons, of whom Truman is the only one now living in the town.

Jonathan Rice, an early settler, came here from Danby, Conn., and located on road 5, upon the farm now owned by his daughter, Mrs. Eunice Leader, where he became a heavy land owner, and extensively engaged in the lumber business. He died here in 1863, aged eighty-three years. Jesse Rice, son of Jonathan, is one of the oldest inhabitants of the town, having been born here in 1812.

He married Lucy Richmond, reared a family of twelve children, and died August 24, 1854, aged eighty-four years. His wife died in 1852, aged seventy-eight years. J. W. Chadwick, son of Amos, born here in 1809, died April 23, 1882.

Thomas Marsh, from Rockingham, Vt., came to Sheldon in 1795, and located in the northeastern part of the town, upon the farm now owned by James Beatty, Jr. He was twice married, reared a family of eleven children, and died in 1842, aged sixty-six years.

Lemuel Adams was born in Plainfield, New Hampshire, March 10, 1803. Having received a good common school education he engaged in farming occupations, working with his father till the family removed to Highgate, in February, 1823. Here he bought a small farm, and on March 3, 1830, married Miss Sally Smalley, of Fairfax, Vt., who was his faithful helper and constant companion for upwards of fifty-one years, and who still survives him. Four sons were born to them, all now living. The eldest is a wealthy physician, Dr. John S. Adams, in Oakland, California; the second is in the same profession, Dr. Henry T., in Salem, Oregon; the third, Frank J., is superintendent of the Illinois State Temperance Union, in Springfield, Illinois; and the youngest, Deacon Edward Payson Adams, resides on the home farm, on road 16. In 1834, Mr. Adams removed to Sheldon, having purchased the well known "river farm," on which is situated the renowned Missisquoi Mineral Spring, and was ultimately successful in accumulating considerable wealth. Being a man of more than ordinary force of character, large intelligence and sound judgment, as well as integrity in all his business transactions, he was well qualified to discharge both faithfully and honorably various offices of trust in the community, especially as commissioner in the settlement of estates, having been frequently associated with Deacon Harmon Northrop, of Fairfield, in such important matters. About seven years ago he fell from a load of hay, and his health becoming impaired he retired from active labors and went to visit his son, in California, where he spent two years and a half, which he greatly enjoyed. After his return he resided with his youngest son, on the old homestead. On Monday, October 31st, 1881, he seemed to be feeling as well as usual, enjoyed his breakfast, and showed an interest in family worship. Soon after, while walking across the room, he was seen to stop, and partly turn around. When spoken to he made no reply, but immediately fell prostrate on the floor, and when his wife rushed to him it was found that the last step of his earthly pilgrimage had been taken. Life had fled. On Wednesday, November 2d, his funeral services were held in the Congregational church, at Sheldon village. Sheldon is to-day all the richer, not only in material, but in moral worth, for the life and example of Lemuel Adams.

Alfred Keith, who was prominently identified with the business interests of Sheldon for many years, came here from Pittsford, Vt. He was noted throughout the country as an iron manufacturer. Mr. Keith died in 1840, aged seventy-two years. He had a family of nine children, of whom only one, Alfred, Jr., is living.

Samuel Hulburt came to Sheldon in 1794, and located in the southeastern part of the town upon the farm at present the property of Colvin Abels. He remained on this place one year, then settled upon the farm now owned by his grandson, Samuel M., on road 43. His son, Chauncey, father of Samuel M., came here with him and remained until his death, in 1864, aged sixty-four years.

Daniel Fish, from Rhode Island, came to this town in 1798, and settled at North Sheldon, where he kept a tavern for twenty-five years, and died in 1843. Joseph Fairbank, from New Hampshire, came to this town in 1800, and located upon the farm now occupied by W. Kittell. In 1804, he married

John Sheldon came to this town, from Andover, Vt., in 1825, and located on road 5, upon the farm now owned by F. C. Sheldon. He was twice married and reared a family of eight children. Henry L., son of John, born here in 1835, is still a resident of the town.

James McFeeters, from the northern part of Ireland, came to Highgate in 1827, where he died, February 2, 1869. His son, James, came to Sheldon in 1837, and located on road 8, where he still resides. James married Isabella Riley, and had born to him nine children, five of whom are now living.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, located at Sheldon village, was organized by its first pastor, Rev. Isaac Hill, with seven members, in 1813. Their house of worship was erected in 1859. It will accommodate 250 persons, cost $2,500.00, and is now valued at $3,000.00. The society has ninety members, with Rev. Dennis Bicknell, pastor.

Grace Episcopal Church, located at Sheldon village, was organized in 1816, by Rev. Stephen Beach, who also acted as first rector. Their first house of worship was erected in 1825, a wood structure, and gave place to a brick building in 1853, which in turn was replaced by the present brick edifice in 1878. The building is a neat structure, capable of seating 150 persons, cost $5,000.00, though it is now valued, including grounds, at $6,000.00. The church now has seventy communicants, with Rev. A. H. Bailey, rector.

The Congregational Church, located at Sheldon village, was organized in 1816. Just at what date, however, is not known, as there are no records now in existence farther back than 1830. The society has fifty-three members, with Rev. Charles P. Watson, pastor.

ST. ALBANS, the shire town of Franklin county, lies in the western part of the same, in lat. 44° 49' and long. 3° 54', bounded north by Swanton, east by Fairfield, south by Georgia, and west by the waters of Lake Champlain. The tract was chartered, to contain an area of 23,040 acres, August 17, 1763, by Benning Wentworth, the royal governor of New Hampshire, to Stephen Pomeroy and sixty-three others, in seventy shares, and subject to all the restrictions, reservations, etc., incident to these grants. In outline, owing to the indenture of St. Albans bay, the town is extremely irregular, it being nearly nine miles from its eastern to its western limit, while from north to south it is but five miles. Several islands have been annexed to the territory since its charter was granted, the largest being Potter's Island, containing an area of 303 acres, annexed October 28, 1842, and Wood's Island, with an area of 115 acres, annexed October 27, 1845. Aside from these, both of which are inhabited, are Ball's Island, lying south of Potter's Island, Popasquash Island, lying off the northern limit of the town, and two small ones in the bay, called respectively Rock and Ram Islands.

No town in the State, probably, has so pleasing a surface contour, and at the same time commands as fine scenic prospects as St. Albans. Along the eastern border of the town there extends a range of hills, their southern terminus and highest point being an elevation called Bellevue, very happily named from the grand prospect it commands. Another hill near by, called Prospect, and Aldis Hill just north of the village, constitute the principal elevations, while the other portions of the town consist of high and verdant plateaus and broad, level meadow-lands. The lake shore is pleasingly indented by Lapan and St. Albans bays, the latter being the port-entry of the town. It is about two and one-half miles in length by from a half mile to a mile in width, and was originally given by the Indians the euphonious title of Bellamaqueam. Separating this bay from the main channel of the lake is St. Albans point, a neck of land about two and one-half miles in length by a half mile to two miles in width. From the summit of Bellevue a prospect of exquisitely blended scenery is presented, which only the hand of a skillful painter can fitly portray, embracing the beautiful and highly cultivated Champlain valley, with its numerous villages, bounded on the east by the blue, serrated peaks of the Green Mountains, grand in themselves, and grander still in historical lore, the view limited in the hazy west by the brown Adirondacks, between which and the beholder lie the silvery waters of Lake Champlain with its numerous verdant isles, while away to the north, where the British lion yet rests his paw, the mountains lying in the rear of Montreal and other points in Canada are in full view. The soil is principally a rich loam, well adapted to the growth of the several cereal crops indigenous to the latitude, and also producing abundant crops of grass. There is little waste land in the whole township, the hills being arable nearly to their summits, and thus affording sustenance to large herds and flocks, for which the town is noted. Though there are no streams of importance, the territory is well watered, the principal one being Tuller's brook, flowing into the head of St. Albans bay. The original forest trees were mostly maple, beech, birch, elm, ash and hemlock, with maple preponderating. Little, however, of the timber is now standing. Geologically, the formation of the town varies considerably, the several varieties or rocks, however, retaining the usual parallel ranges or veins common throughout the county. Near the lake shore, including the whole of that portion of the territory lying west of a line extending north from the head of St. Albans bay, is an immense bed of Hudson river slates, next to which is a narrow range of Hudson river limestone; next to this, extending to the western limit of the village, the rocks are of the Georgia slate formation, while the residue of the township overlies beds of quartz rock and tolose conglomerate. These several general divisions are composed of the usual great variety of formations entering into their composition, while some varieties are peculiar to this town. Among the latter are the celebrated St. Albans calico stone, a fine building material, variegated marble, and several grades of limestone suitable for lime manufacture and building purposes. No minerals of importance have been discovered.

In 1880, St. Albans had a population of 7,195, was divided into thirteen school districts, and contained twenty-one common schools, employing three male and thirty-two female teachers, to whom was paid an aggregate salary of $7,253.00. There were 1,626 pupils attending common school, while the entire cost of the schools for the year, ending October 31st., was $8,406.45, with S. W. Landon, superintendent.

ST. ALBANS, a post village and capital of the county, was incorporated by the legislature, November 18, 1859. It has an area of about two square miles, admirably located on a high and fertile plateau, 375 feet above, and three miles back from the lake shore, in nearly the center of the southern part of the town, on Steven's brook. A more healthful and pleasant location could scarcely be imagined, while the thrift, energy, economy and good taste of its seven thousand citizens, renders it one of the most prominent villages in the State. The highest point is reached in the eastern part, at the residence of Hon J. G. Smith, 215 feet above the court-house, and 590 feet above the level of the lake, from which a most charming view may be obtained. Sloping gently towards the lake the village lies at one's feet, remarkable for its neat, commodious, and in some instances elegant residences, beautiful gardens, fine rows of business blocks, several large manufactories, mammoth railroad buildings, fine churches and public structures, and near the center of all a large public park, having an area of fifty by twenty rods. The park was formerly known as the "Square" or "Common," but on June 11, 1870, it was named Taylor Park by the trustees of the village, in honor of Holloway Taylor, Esq., one of the early settlers of the town, who, on September 26, 1799, deeded the land that it contains to the town for the purpose for which it has since been used. In front of the park, having a width of six rods, is the principal street of the village, and upon which, and cross-streets adjacent to the park, are situated the principal business houses. North of the park it is called north Main street, and south of it South Main street. Parallel with Main street are several other broad, well-kept streets, which are crossed at right angles by numerous others, giving the village an exceedingly neat and uniform appearance. Gazing on beyond the village, one's eye takes in a broad, level tract of land reaching to the lake shore, where that beautiful picture begins, which, coupled with its historic associations, has made the name "Champlain" world-renowned. The most picturesque part of the lake is at this point, it being completely dotted over with verdant islands, and appearing from a distance to blend into alternate brakes of silver and emerald, beyond which the Adirondacks limit one's vision, forming in their grandeur a fitting object upon which to cast the last lingering gaze after so charming a vision. To the north, east and south, as one turns, is to behold but types of the same loveliness, until the admirer of the beautiful finds his senses ravished with the scene, and can only say with Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, in his first chapter of "Norwood," it is "a place in the midst of greater variety of scenic beauty than any other that I remember in America."

Not alone is St. Albans noted for its scenic beauty, however, for it is one of the largest railroad centers of the State, and contains the largest depot in New England, while its butter market shows the heaviest transactions of any in the country. Of its manufacturing interests, the following are the principal:—

St. Albans Foundry, located on Lake street, corner of Foundry street, was established in 1849, and the present works rank among the best establishments of the kind in the country. The works do a general business in machinery and foundry work, repairs and jobbing, in addition to which they manufacture many specialties, the chief of which is Olds' patent horse-powers, threshing machines, etc. Circular and drag saw-mills, agricultural implements of all kinds, stoves, light and heavy forgings, car-wheels, railroad castings, and hundreds of other articles which we have not space to mention, are also constructed, while the works furnish plans, specifications and estimates for every class of work, on application. About five years ago the establishment began the manufacture of Olds' patent horse-powers and threshing machines, not expecting a very extensive business in that direction, but the excellence of the apparatus at once created a healthy demand, until now it has the precedence over other manufactures at the works. Its sale is constantly increasing, and the machines are now shipped to all parts of the country. The foundry is located directly opposite the depot, and forms a group of half a dozen buildings, the grounds surrounding and upon which they stand amounting to between three and four acres. About seventy-five operatives are employed, and the number is increasing. The principal castings for the Central Vermont railroad are manufactured here, and the daily consumption of iron averages about seven tons. The proprietor of the works is Mr. W. C. Smith, while Mr. N. C. Hyde is general agent, and Amos W. Clark, superintendent.

The St. Albans Iron and Steel Works, engaged in the manufacture of car-rails, located on the south side of Welden street, were incorporated by a special act of the legislature in the autumn of 1873, the following named gentlemen forming the list of officers: Philo Remington, of Ilion, N. Y., president; Edward A. Smith, vice-president; John W. Newton, treasurer; and George G. Smith, secretary. During that winter the company erected the necessary buildings, and commenced active operations the following spring, though it was not until 1878, that the manufacture of steel was begun, nothing but iron having been used previous to that time. It was the original intention of the firm to supply but the moderate demands of local roads, but the business gradually extended, until now nearly one-half of their goods are shipped to western markets. The firm has a capital of $350,000.00, employs 175 men, and manufactures 20,000 tons of rails per annum, about three-quarters of the steel used being imported from England and Scotland, and the balance manufactured by themselves, with the open-hearth furnace—Seimens process. The present officers are: A. O. Brainerd, president; Edward A. Smith, vice-president and manager; and Herbert Brainerd, secretary and treasurer.

The National Car Company, with their office located at the depot in this village, own about four thousand railroad cars which they rent to different roads. The company was chartered by an act of the legislature, approved November 18, 1868, the capital to be $500,000.00, in shares of $100.00 each. This act, however, was amended November 21, 1870, so that the capital stock was unlimited, and it was immediately increased to $2,000,000.00, and again by a vote of February 16, 1882, this amount was increased to $3,000,000.00, a large proportion being owned by non-residents. Up to this time the company have owned no shops, and consequently have been obliged to pay out large sums for repairs ; but it is now contemplated by them to build large shops at this point, to cost not less than $50,000.00. Should this be done, as it doubtless will, it will add greatly to the manufacturing interests of the village. The present officers of the company are, Lansing Millis, of Boston, Mass., president ; John B. Fletcher, superintendent ; and F. Stewart Stranahan, secretary and treasurer.

Joseph H. Crosby's grist-mill, located on Market street, was established in 1879, with a small, twenty-inch Harrison mill, operated by a ten horse-power engine. It now requires a thirty-five horse-power engine and operates three runs of stones, and has ground fifty-four car-loads of grain during the past twelve months.

R. McDougall's carriage and sleigh factory, located on Kingman street, was established in 1870. Mr. McDougall now employs three men and manufactures all kinds of wagons, carriages and sleighs.

The St. Albans soap works, located on road 22, about a quarter of a mile outside of the corporation limits, were established by the present proprietor, Mr. F. C. Prentiss, in 1880. He manufactures all kinds of soap, turning out about 2,000 pounds per month.

The Glens Falls Shirt Company.—This factory was removed to St. Albans, from Glens Falls, N. Y., February 15, 1881, a few weeks subsequent to a destructive fire which ruined nearly all of the machinery in use at the factory in Glens Falls. It was not, however, until July that the factory began operations, and soon had a number of persons employed. The factory is located at 90, 92, 94 and 96 Main street, the building being the old Tremont House, an imposing structure 120x80 feet, five stories in height. The first, or basement floor, is devoted to a wash-room for laundry and supply purposes ; the second contains offices, shipping rooms and an ironing room ; the third, finishing room, store room for unlaundried shirts, dampening, starch and dry rooms for laundry and ironing machines ; the fourth, stitching room ; the fifth, cutting room and storage of patterns and stock. An engine room is added to the building, steam being generated in a forty horse-power boiler, supplying an engine of twenty-five horse capacity. The capitalists of the concern are O. A. Burton, of Burlington, and Edward A. Sowles, of St. Albans, while Mr. James MacDonald is manager of the business.

Frederick Dutcher's fly-paper manufactory, located on Pearl, corner of Water streets, was established by L. L. Dutcher & Son in 1850. Mr. Dutcher now employs twelve hands and manufactures 2,000 reams of fly-paper per annum.

The Naramore Power Company, W. T. Smith, secretary and treasurer, and T. C. Naramore, superintendent, was lately organized for the purpose of manufacturing a power for raising buildings, pressing hay, cotton, cider, hops etc., and for lifting stones, pulling stumps, etc. The works are located in connection with the St. Albans Foundry.

The International Hay and Cotton Press Company was incorporated with a capital of $300,000.00, at the legislative session of 1882. The officers are Guy C. Noble, president; D. D. Ranlett, vice-president; William H. Dubois, treasurer; E. J. Chamberlain, secretary; and G. W. Batchelder, of Boston, general superintendent. The office is on Railroad Square.

This completes the list of the principal manufactories. St. Albans should and must be a large manufacturing village, situated as it is with the navigable waters of the lake only three miles distant, and with the railroads branching from it in all directions, until it resembles a huge spider. There probably is no place in the State where manufacturing interests could be more advantageously conducted than here, and mechanics and capitalists are gradually awakening to a knowledge of this fact.

BANKS.

The first bank in the town was a branch of the old State Bank, about 1807, and was located in the wooden building now standing on the southeast corner of Main and Congress streets. In 1826, a bank was incorporated by the legislature as "The President, Directors and Company of the Bank of St. Albans," with a capital of $50,000.00. This institution first did business in a building occupying the present site of Clark & Hatch's store, and afterwards erected a banking house where the Welden House now stands. The charter was renewed once, and finally expired about 1856.

The Franklin County Bank was next organized, chartered in 1849, with a capital of $100,000.00, and commenced business in the spring of 1850, at St. Albans Bay. In 1853, the bank erected the building at the village now occupied by the First National Bank. O. A. Burton was the first president, and Edward W. Parker, cashier. The bank suffered from the raid of 1864, losing about $75,000.00, mostly their own bills. Immediately after the raid, the bank went into liquidation, paying all honest debts, but refusing to redeem its bills where a satisfactory account of proper possession could not be proven.

The St. Albans Bank, chartered in 1853, was organized in 1854, with a capital of $150,000.00. It began business in the Brainerd Block, and a year or so later moved into the building formerly occupied by the Bank of St. Albans. Hiram B. Sowles was elected president, and Henry Sowles, cashier. This bank was also raided in 1864, and lost heavily, but continued business up to 1866.

The First National Bank of St. Albans was chartered February 8, 1864, and commenced operations the following May, with a capital of $100,000.00 and the privilege of increasing the same to $500,000.00. The first officers were Hiram Bellows, president; and Albert Sowles, cashier. The present officers are Edward A. Sowles, president; Albert Sowles, cashier; and Charles

A Weeks, teller. During the Canadian raid of 1864, the bank lost $60,000.00, though the Canadian government refunded $28,000.00, and the United States about the same amount.

The Vermont National Bank of St. Albans was chartered in October, 1865, and began business June 1, 1866, with a capital of $200,000.00. The first officers were Douglass E. Smith, president, and Bradley Barlow, cashier. The present officers are Bradley Barlow, president, and Cyrus N. Bishop, cashier.

The St. Albans Trust Company was chartered November 18, 1868, and commenced business in August of the following year, with a capital of $100,000.00. The institution has done a safe and successful business from the first, and now has 2,500 depositors, with a total deposit of $500,000.00. At its organization, Giles Merrill was chosen president, and Martin A. Seymour, treasurer. The present officers are Lawrence Brainerd, president, and Heber E. Burgess, treasurer.

HOTELS.

The American House, occupying a central position on the west side of the park, is the oldest of the present hotels in the village. It is a large, four-story brick structure, capable of accommodating 150 guests. The house is well appointed throughout, furnishes excellent board, and has long been a favorite hotel with the traveling public, a reputation that the present proprietor, Mr. S. I. Stroud, endeavors to maintain.

The St. Albans House, located on Lake street, nearer the depot, is not so large as the others, but well-kept, and has an abundance of patronage. The building is of brick, three and one-half stories in height, well furnished, and modern in all its appointments. The proprietor, Mr. J. D. Shedd, came into possession in January, 1881, and immediately caused the hotel to show the effects of his long experience and adaptability to the business. Under his management it is daily becoming more popular.

The Welden House, located at the head of the park, is one of the largest and best appointed hotels in New England. It is a five-story brick structure, with a Mansard roof, and contains 200 high, well-ventilated, and luxuriously furnished rooms, many of which are arranged in suits of three or four for the accommodation of families. The dining-room is situated on the second floor, a spacious and convenient apartment. There are several large parlors, elegantly furnished with black walnut furniture and body Brussels carpeting, a counterpart of the furnishing throughout the house, while the cuisine is all that the most fastidious could desire. Mr. Thomas Lavender, the gentlemanly proprietor, by his courtesy and kindness to guests, has made himself extremely popular with the traveling public. As a summer resort, the house is widely known and is increasing in favor each year, for here one can enjoy all the luxury of the cool, country air, and sacrifice none of the comforts of city life. Banks, the postoffice, and business houses of all kinds, are close at hand, churches within easy distance, while charming drives and rambles can be taken in every direction. A fifteen minutes walk will take one to Aldis Hill, from whence a charming panoramic view surprises and delights the beholder. The best fishing grounds on Lake Champlain are but three miles distant, while Missisquoi, Sheldon, Highgate, and Alburgh springs, possessing wonderful curative properties, are not far distant, all of which, united with a cool and most healthful climate, exquisite scenery and quiet repose, renders the Welden a miniature paradise. On arrival at the house, the guest is met by the chief clerk, Mr. A. A. Merrifield, who has been connected with the hotel about six years, and the first sight of his genial countenance and affable manners will immediately cause the most diffident stranger to feel perfectly at home.

The other hotels are smaller, and chiefly sustained by local patronage.

FIRES.

Few disastrous fires have occurred in the village, and no conflagration that would tend to seriously retard the progress of the place has ever been visited upon it. A serious loss, in one sense, was sustained June 6, 1869, when the building in which the village records were kept was destroyed, so that the early proceedings cannot be gotten at with any degree of certainty. The most disastrous loss by fire the village ever sustained was on the morning of Sunday, September 17, 1871. At about three o'clock, fire was discovered in the rear of Johnson & Dinsmore's store, on the south side of Lake street. The flames spread rapidly along that side of the street, and though there was but little wind, they soon gained such headway that the fire department, supplied only with hand-engines and no hooks or ladders, could make little progress against them. Twenty-five buildings were destroyed before the fire was subdued. The total loss to all parties was estimated at about $100,000.00, the heaviest losers being George W. Barnes, John G. Driscoll, and the St. Albans Foundry Company. Previous to this date, the village had had no water-supply, except that of family wells and about twenty town cisterns, and the great loss attending this fire, with the possibility of a repetition of the same at any time, led to the serious entertainment of an often agitated subject,—an adequate

WATER SUPPLY.

Two days after the fire, September 19th, a special meeting of the voters of the village was warned to meet on the 29th inst., "to see what measures, if any, the corporation will take to secure a supply of water for the use of said village." Pursuant to this warning the meeting was held, and upon motion of Edward A. Smith, it was

Resolved, That it is expedient to draft measures to secure at an early day such a supply of water as the wants of the village require for domestic purposes and fire protection. And the trustees of the village are hereby authorized and instructed to take the matter into consideration, and report at a future meeting the best and most economical plan by which this object may be accomplished."

Various meetings were held from this time forward, until finally, on the 22d of April, 1872, a contract was directed to be entered into with the St. Albans Aqueduct Co., which was accordingly effected the following day. This company had been chartered several years previous, but had never acted under their charter, as the village had as yet no power to acquire property outside of the corporation limits. Edward A. Smith organized the company under the charter, and contracted with the village for building the works, to be completed and delivered at a future time. At the session of the legislature during that fall, the necessary amendment to the village charter was enacted, whereby it might hold property outside of its limits, and a transfer of the works was effected March 12, 1874, by the Aqueduct Company, represented by its directors, Lawrence Brainerd, Edward A. Smith, George G. Hunt, James M. Foss, and Reuben C. Benton, to the village of St. Albans, represented by its trustees, Matthew G. Elliott, Guy C. Noble, F. Stewart Stranahan, Henry C. Adams, and Stebbins A. Smith. The total cost of the works was $150,000.00. The reservoir, situated on the Porter Danforth farm, at North Fairfax, covers an area of about twenty-three acres, has an average depth of about thirteen feet, and a head of 330 feet, the water being conducted to the village, a distance of four miles, by a twelve-inch main, whence it is distributed to the desired localities. Numerous fire hydrants have been erected throughout the village, so that with the force afforded by the height of the reservoir, comparative security is felt in regard to fires.

In the spring of 1880, the fire department was re-organized, so that instead of three small companies, the village now has one large company, the Washington Hose No. 1, with fifty members, who are paid for actual services. A hose attached to a hydrant will throw a stream over any building in the village, and with an efficient company, three hose carts, one hook and ladder cart, 2,000 feet of hose, and a hand-engine for especial purposes, St. Albans may be said to have a very efficient department. The company has a neatly furnished house on Center street, in which they take commendable pride. The present officers are as follows: B. F. Kelley, chief engineer; H. C. Sperry, foreman; William Lacour, first assistant; William Ryan, second assistant; Chas. Bordo, secretary; and George Lacour, treasurer.

GAS LIGHT.

The St. Albans Gas Light Co. was incorporated in November, 1859, with a capital of $50,000.00. Coal gas was manufactured until November, 1880, when the company put in Hanlen's patent retorts and benches, since which time gas has been made from crude petrolium, with which the village is well lighted.

THE TELEPHONE.

The St. Albans Telephone Exchange was established October 1, 1881, erected about forty miles of wire, and connected the village with St. Albans Bay, and the village of Swanton; but in the month of November, 1882, the business and its appurtenances was sold to a Boston syndicate, who now control the wires.

OLD HOUSES.

Old houses have a peculiar interest to most people, and there are few who once under the old roof-tree, do not allow the imagination to run riot—to conjure up scenes in the old building that might have transpired far back in the track of Father Time, or, to recall faces that still haunt many a familiar and once favorite nook. Few villages there are that cannot boast their "haunted house," or that have no quaint, old-fashioned dwellings which are pointed out to the stranger with no slight degree of commendable pride, as the birth-place of "Hon. So-and-so," the house in which "Parson Blank preached his first sermon;" or, "the building from which was borne all that was mortal of good old Uncle John, the first settler in the town." A few of these old land-marks are left in St. Albans, though they are fast giving place to modern structures, and one by one are crumbling into the dust that long ago received those who erected them.

The first frame house built in the town was that now occupied by Romeo H. Hoyt. It was built by Silas Hathaway, in 1794, and was occupied by him as a tavern. The courts of the newly organized county were held in its hall, and religious services also were occasionally held there. The two-story frame house occupied by George W. Kendall and Jeremiah Scofield, on North Main street, was built by Alfred Hathaway previous to the year 1800. The wood house occupied by the widow and family of the late Abel Houghton, on South Main street, was built about the year 1800, by John Corliss. The house and barn on South Main street, near the hill, built by Job Greene in 1801, is still standing. The small frame house located on the corner of Main and Congress streets, was built by Joseph Griswold previous to 1803, and has at different periods been occupied as a store, dwelling, a branch of the old State Bank, and now serves as a millinery store and shoe shop. Thaddeus Rice built a house on the west side of Main street previous to 1803, which is now occupied as a tenement. Sylvester Noble's house, on the west side of North Main street, was owned by Joseph Mussey in 1803, and was erected some years previous. Previous to the year 1803, Capt. John Gilman built a large house on the east side of Main street, which took several days to raise, and the settlers came from the adjoining towns to assist. This house is now endeared by associations to the third generation of the Blaisdell family, three heads of that family having breathed their last there,—Major Morrill, Capt. John Gilman, and J. M. Blaisdell, it now being occupied by W. H. and G. G. Blaisdell, with their families.

At this time, 1803, the whole of the village was located on Main street, except one or two houses on Congress street, and the court-house, academy, and Holloway Taylor's house on the east side of the park. The merchants were Daniel Ryan, Curtis & Foot, and Carter Hickok. Ryan occupied the yellow house on the east side of Main street, now the dwelling of Horace Weeks. Curtis & Foot had their store in the present dwelling of Dr. Dunsmore, it having then stood on the site now occupied by the Farrar Block, and Carter Hickok was located in a building where Harvey's furniture store now is.

CEMETERIES.

A suitable place for the interment of the dead was early sought after by the inhabitants of the town, and at a meeting held on the first Tuesday in June, 1802, a committee consisting of Joseph Carter, Amos Morrill, and Seth Pomeroy was appointed to inquire into the subject and report at an adjourned meeting. At the next regular meeting, during the same month, the committee report was adopted, and the town purchased of William Nason one and one-quarter acres of land on Main street, paying $70.00 per acre. Three-quarters of an acre on the Lake road was also purchased, of Chester Fuller, at $33.33 per acre, which was added to at different times, being the same now in use in that locality. Here, on Main street, about half a mile from the center of the village, are the three St. Albans cemeteries, the "old," the "new," and the "Catholic," two in front and one in the back-ground. The old cemetery is upon the upper hand and the new upon the lower, the grounds being divided from each other and from the Catholic yard only by a fence. The spot might almost be styled the old St. Albans, for upon the marble shafts we find the names of Seth Wetmore, Silas Hathaway, Hon. Benjamin Swift, Judge Bates Turner, Hon. John Smith and others, who once constituted the village. In 1852, the St. Albans Cemetery Association was chartered by the legislature, the charter being made in favor of Hon. Asa Aldis, Hon. Lawrence Brainerd, and William H. Hoyt, and their associates and successors. Since that time the association has succeeded in creating a most beautiful spot, to which they are constantly adding improvements, having planted 250 trees during the past season, and expended during the past three years about $3,000.00 on embellishments. The association elects six trustees annually, who in turn elect their own officers. The present list is, H. G. Edson, president, and E. G. Greene, secretary and treasurer.

HOME FOR LITTLE WANDERERS.

The Warner Home for Little Wanderers is situated on High street, upon the side of Aldis Hill. In 1881, Mr. Chauncey Warner, of Cambridge, Lamoille county, offered to give the ladies of St. Albans $25,000.00 towards establishing this home, providing the ladies would buy the present site for its location. This offer the ladies accepted, formed themselves into an association, and elected the following officers, in December of that year: Mrs. J. G. Smith, president; Mrs. E. D. Fuller, vice-president; Mrs. Henry Watson, secretary; Mrs. F. S. Stranahan, treasurer; and Mrs. M. A. Warren, matron. The grounds were purchased at a cost of $5,000.00, and the buildings now have a beautiful, healthful location, commanding a fine view of the lake. The object of the institution, as the name implies, is to care for and furnish a home for destitute children, and though the good work is but in its infancy, many little homeless waifs already have cause to bless the name of its generous founder, and the noble ladies who have it in charge. The trustees of the institution are, D. D. Ranlet, H. M. Stevens, and F. S. Stranahan.

LIBRARIES.

The St. Albans Public Library is mainly indebted for its existence to the late Henry J. Hunt, of Boston, once a resident of this village. He bequeathed by his last will and testament, to the town of St. Albans, the sum of $1,000.00 for the establishment of a public library, providing an equal amount should be raised, for the same purpose, by the people of the town. Mr. Hunt died October 4, 1861, and his executor, the conditions having been complied with, paid over the amount of the bequest to the selectmen. The library, located on Kingman street, now has 2,200 volumes, under the charge of Miss Carrie Jennison, librarian.

The Vermont Central Railroad Library Association was organized by the railroad men, at Northfield, Vt., in 1855. In 1859, it was removed to St. Albans, where it is now located in a room on the main lower floor of the general offices building. The association at present is in a flourishing financial condition, and has over 2,000 volumes in its library, and additions are intended to be made yearly. The library is opened each Saturday afternoon and evening, when all railroad men who subscribe towards its support are entitled to draw books therefrom, and is also open to all others who pay for the privilege.

FRANKLIN COUNTY GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

The Franklin County Grammar School was established at St. Albans, by an act of the general assembly of Vermont, passed November 9, 1799. Board of trustees named in the charter: Silas Hathaway, Levi House, Joseph Jones, Nathan Greene, Seth Pomeroy, Jonathan Hoit, Elisha Sheldon and Joseph Robinson. The first building erected at St. Albans for the use of the school, was a spacious and tasteful wooden one, with a large hall in the second story, built under the direction of Joseph Jones, Levi House and Jonathan Hoit, a committee appointed by the trustees. It stood near the site of the present Union School house, and after several years was removed upon Taylor Park, where it remained several months, and then was removed to Main street, having been, in recent times, furnished with a brick front, and converted into stores, and occupied until burnt, in January, 1865. In place of the wooden building so removed, the trustees erected a two-story brick building, in the year 1828, which was used until 1860, when it was sold to Benjamin F. Rugg, who removed it to Lake street, and converted it into a building to be occupied as a store and a billiard saloon. In 1861, the premises having been leased by the Franklin County Grammar School, to Union School District No. 4, in St. Albans, a committee of said district, consisting of Bradley Barlow, John Gregory Smith and William W. White, erected the large building now standing thereon. By the terms of said lease, the Union School District is bound to provide, free of rent, on one of the floors, in said building, a capacious and convenient furnished room or rooms, to accommodate at least one hundred students for the exclusive use, occupancy and control, at all times, of the trustees of the Grammar School, and their successors in office, and subject to the further proviso, that said district shall not use or occupy any portion of said premises for other than school purposes. The school is now under the charge of C. H. Goldthwaite, principal, who lately succeeded Mr. S. W. Landon. Mr. Landon, who is now connected with the public schools of Burlington, was principal of the school here for a number of years, proving himself an efficient educator, and raising the standard of the institution much during his principalship.

The original town charters granted by the Vermont legislature, contained a clause, reserving one share of land in each town for the support of a county grammar school. Of the reservations thus made in this county, the respective towns wherein they are situated, pay an annual rent to Franklin County Grammar School, as follows: Berkshire, $20.50; Enosburgh, $25.42; Fletcher, $6.00; Franklin, $27.80; Montgomery, $25.20; Richford, $30.00, amounting in all to $135.02.

MEDICAL ASSOCIATION.

The St. Albans Village Medical Association was organized in April, 1871, by the physicians of this village, who convened at the office of Dr. O. F. Fassett, for that purpose. They adopted the constitution of the State Medical Society, and the code of ethics of the American Medical Association, and also agreed to meet on the first Monday evening of each month, at eight o'clock. Dr. John Branch was elected president, and Dr. S. S. Clark, secretary. Dr. Branch delivered his inaugural address, upon the benefits of association, which was well received by the members who voted to have it published. The society received all the physicians of the village at that time, who were in regular standing in the profession, and has also those who have since taken up a residence here. Three members are deceased,—R. C. M. Woodward, R. R. Sherman, and John Branch. Eighteen members are living, including the honorary members, who reside in the adjoining towns and are frequently present and engage in the discussions. This society has been of much service to the local physicians, in keeping them informed upon all medical subjects, and in sustaining harmony among themselves. They each take such an interest in their meetings that they have seldom missed holding a session during the past eleven and a half years. The present officers are, H. P. Hall, president, and R. Sherwood, secretary.

The village supports six churches, all of handsome style of architecture, presided over by able pastors, and well attended. They will be spoken of in detail farther on.

ST. ALBANS BAY, a post village located on the bay of that name, about two and one-half miles from St. Albans village, contains a church (Methodist Episcopal,) two stores, two blacksmith shops, a wagon shop, steamboat landing, and about fifty dwellings.

Fonda's lime kilns, located just over the line in Swanton, about three miles from St. Albans village, employ thirty-five men, and manufacture from 60,000 to 70,000 barrels of St. Albans bleaching lime per year. Mr. W. B. Fonda, the proprietor, has been engaged in this branch of manufacture since 1872, and also deals largely in lumber, coal and wood.

The St. Albans Point Creamery was established by a stock company in 1882, and commenced business on the 23d of May, with a capital of $4,000.00, J. S. Morrell, president; J. H. Brooks, treasurer and superintendent; and J. S. Morrell, of Swanton, J. H. Brooks, F. E. Bell, and Edward C. Smith, directors. The factory manufactures both butter and cheese, with the capacity for handling the milk from 800 cows.

The Lake View House, a very handsome summer resort located on the shore of the lake, about five miles from the village, was built by Mr. H. S. Samson, the present proprietor, in 1870. During the following year he sold the place to Charles E. Wilson, who retained it until 1877, when it was repurchased by Mr. Samson. He immediately instituted extensive repairs, beautified the grounds and built a pavilion 1,200 square feet in extent, until the hotel and surroundings now present an exceedingly handsome appearance. Not alone were the improvements made upon the outside, however, for upon the inside it is as finely appointed and conveniently arranged as any hotel of the kind in the State. The locality is very attractive as a summer resort, as an excellent view of the lake and surrounding well-known beautiful scenery is afforded, good boating privileges furnished, and one of the best fishing grounds on the lake near at hand.

(LAKE VIEW HOUSE AND GROUNDS.)

EARLY SETTLEMENT.

The first settler in St. Albans was Jesse Welden, who came here previous to the Revolution, from Sunderland, Vt., and built a log cabin a few rods south of the meeting-house at the Bay. He was followed soon after by Duncan Dunn, a Mr. Dorsey, and Mr. Spafford, all of whom were driven off their possessions by the events of the war. Mr. Welden is said to have been taken prisoner by the British, and to have made his escape. Little, however, is known of the man, not even his birthplace having been ascertained, though he is said to have been of Indian extraction. After the close of the war, in 1785, he returned to the town and again located at the Bay, on what has since been known as the Brackett place, and from there removed to what is now the village, building a log cabin about ten rods southwest of the present residence of Mrs. Abel Houghton. Here he cleared seventy acres of land, planted an orchard, held in possession three lots on the south side of Main street, and shortly before his death erected a hewed log house near the present residence of Henry M. Stevens. He became one of the leading citizens of the town, and his name is yet held in venerated remembrance by the street and magnificent hotel named in his honor. He was accidentally drowned off Isle LaMotte, in October, 1795, while returning from St. Johns in a skiff laden with salt. His body was not found until the following spring, when it was brought to St. Albans for interment.

During the year of Welden's return to the town, in 1785, a number of men came to look over the territory with a view to settlement, and in 1786, Daniel B. Meigs, Amos Morrill, Andrew, Noel and Freeborn Potter, Job and Nathan Greene, Daniel Baker, Thomas Gibbs and several others came on with their families. In 1787, these were followed by others, among whom was Silas Hathaway, from Bennington, who was largely interested in lands in St. Albans, and did much to promote immigration. In 1794, he built the first frame house in the town, which is now occupied by Romeo H. Hoyt. Although Mr. Hathaway held so much land in his name as to be facetiously called "Baron Hathaway," many of his titles proved defective, and he died comparatively poor, in November, 1831, aged sixty-seven years. Several of his descendants, however, are now among the wealthiest families in the State. Among others who came at this time was Levi Allen, a brother to Ethan and Ira Allen, who laid claim to a large portion of the land in the whole township.

The population of the town gradually increased, until at the taking of the first census, in 1791, it had 256 inhabitants. The early settlers suffered the usual privations of pioneer life—scarcity of provisions, rude habitations, and excessive toil, the nearest flouring mill being at Plattsburgh, N. Y. But immigration soon became so rapid that these privations were limited to a very few years. The organization of Franklin county and the establishment of St. Albans as the shire town, in 1793, lent a great impetus to the advancement of the town, and extensive improvements were at once instituted. Much attention was given to the working of roads, and the fine broad highway known as Main street, and Taylor Park, now the chief beauties of the village, were laid out at that time. In 1800, the population had increased to 901, an increase of nearly 400 per cent in ten years.

The first town meeting was warned by John White, of Georgia, in 1788, the warning reading as follows:—

“WHEREAS, More than four of the principal inhabitants of the town of St. Albans, in the county of Chittenden, have made application to me to warn a town meeting for said town, for the privileges of incorporation and representation, also for regulating the internal town police, the doings of which meeting to be confirmed by the general assembly.

“Therefore, These are to warn the freemen and other inhabitants of St. Albans who by law are qualified to vote in town meeting, to meet at the dwelling of Jesse Weldon, in said town, on Monday, the 28th day of July, 1788, at ten o'clock A. M., then and there to choose a moderator to govern said meeting. Second, to choose a town clerk, and other town officers for the year ensuing.

“Dated at Georgia, July 12, 1788, and signed JOHN WHITE, Ass't Judge.”

Pursuant to this warning, the meeting was called on the time specified, when the following officers were elected: Silas Hathaway, moderator; Jonathan Hoit, town clerk; Jesse Welden, David Odel, and Andrew Potter, selectmen; and Daniel Meigs, constable. At the State election, held on the second of the following month, September, the freeman's oath was taken by Daniel Meigs, Hananiah Brooks, Ichabod Randal, Simeon Spencer, Jonathan Colvin, Job Greene, Solomon Hinds, David Welden, James Tracy, James Thorington, William Abby, and William Griffin. An official list of the polls and ratable estate of the town for that year was as follows:—

Eliphalet Edmunds.....	£ 8	os.	David Odell.....	£ 8	os.
Job Greene.....	8	o	James Chadey.....	8	o
Hananiah Brooks.....	11	o	Jonathan Hoit.....	8	o

As these were the old colonial pounds, one can easily compute the wealth of the town in dollars and cents by multiplying by four. In 1789, the grand list had increased to £540; to £636 5s., in 1790; and £924 in 1791, while in 1792, the whole number of tax payers was sixty, and the list aggregated £1,178.

At the next town election, in 1789, the first full board of officers were elected, as follows, the meeting being again held at Welden's house: Silas Hathaway, moderator; Jonathan Hoit, town clerk; Andrew Potter, David Powers, and Silas Hathaway, selectmen; Alfred Hathaway, town treasurer;

RESIDENCE OF WILLIAM O. GADCOMB, NORTH MAIN STREET.—Erected in 1830.

Daniel B. Meigs, constable ; Jonathan Hoit, Alfred Hathaway, and David Powers, listers ; Samuel B. Meigs, collector ; David Campbell, grand juror ; Jesse Welden pound-keeper ; Andrew Potter, tithingman ; Silas Hathaway, hog hayward ; Jesse Welden, fence-viewer ; Andrew Potter, Jesse Welden, and Benjamin Bradley, surveyors of highways ; and Noel Potter, Benjamin Bradley, and Timothy Winter, petit jurors. The first justice of the peace was Jonathan Hoit, chosen in 1786, and who was also elected first representative, in 1788. The first birth in the town was that of Limna Potter, who became Mrs. Limna Wead. The first males born were John Meigs and Heman Greene, though the date of their birth we are unable to state.

The first record of a store is that of "Capt. Whitney's," probably in 1792. A Mr. Jackson is said to have had a store here about that time, and afterwards came Daniel Ryan, Prince B. Hall, Azro Crane, Seth Pomeroy, John Curtis, Anthony Rhodes, Joseph H. Munson, William Foote, and Carter Hickok. The first tannery was built by Christopher Dutcher, who located at the Bay in 1790. On the location of the county seat at St. Albans, he purchased a farm about a mile south of the village, now the property of Benjamin F. Rugg, upon which he built a tannery, on what has since been known as Dutcher's brook. He was a prominent business man of the town until his death, February 4, 1814. The first physician was Dr. John Warner, who came here from Bennington, Vt., in 1793. He possessed great knowledge of the medicinal qualities of the indigenous plants of Vermont, and was exceedingly successful in treating the diseases incident to a new country. The first settled minister was Rev. Jonathan Nye, who was ordained pastor of the Congregational church, March 5, 1805. The Methodist church was built in 1820. The first Episcopal church in 1825. The one now in use in 1858. The first Congregational church was built in 1826, the second, being the one now occupied, was finished in 1862. The first academy was built in 1800, the second in 1828, and the third and present spacious and commodious building in 1858. The grounds on which the public buildings of the town were to be erected, was selected by the voters in town meeting, assembled June 12, 1792. Col. Robert Cochran, Capt. Ford, and Stephen Pearl were appointed a committee "to set the stake for the center," which was done a few days afterward.

The few settlers who located here previous to the Revolution, left with the commencement of that war, and, it is believed, took an active part therein. Many of those who came in after the troubles were settled had fought in its battles, and were thus well qualified to take an active part a few years later when the war of 1812, was brought upon the country. The trade and business of the town was considerably retarded during the existence of the embargo, and non-intercourse laws ; but during the war that followed, however, the growth and prosperity of the township were advanced rather than impeded. Smuggling was pursued with considerable activity, the extreme scarcity and high prices of all foreign goods being such as to justify great risk. Collisions between the revenue officers and the smugglers occurred frequently along the frontier, and in several cases with fatal results. On Sunday, November 3, 1811, Harrington Brooks, of St. Albans, a young man twenty-four years of age, was shot and instantly killed, while attempting to escape from the custom-house officials with a skiff-load of salt. The excitement which followed this event, aggravated by the extreme party virulence which at times prevailed was very great, and continued for a long time. Mr. Walker, who fired the fatal shot, although in obedience to the commands of his superior officer, greatly regretted the act, and it cast a shadow over his entire after life.

In 1813, the third brigade of the third division of the militia of Vermont, which included the entire county of Franklin, was called into the active service of the general government, marched out of the State, and was stationed at Champlain, N. Y. This act was greatly censured by all parties, as it left forty miles of the Vermont frontier denuded of its military force. This general dissatisfaction, together with the thought of the crops they were losing at home, caused many of the soldiers to desert. To such an extent did this proceed, that only a few over three hundred men were left in the camp. Among those who left for their homes was Silas Gates, of this town, a young man about twenty years of age, and both physically and morally a splendid type of manhood. Sergeant Henry Gibbs and private Alvah Sabin, of Capt. Asabel Langworthy's rifle company, were sent by their commanding officers to St. Albans to bring back deserters, including young Gates. On the evening of November 4th, they called upon him at his father's house, and after some conversation he agreed to accompany them. The three started from the house, and had proceeded but a short distance, when Gates went back for something which he said he had forgotten, but, instead of returning, he raised a window, passed through, and started off on a run through an orchard on the north side of the house. Sabin, being at the corner of the house, discovered him escaping, and called to him twice to stop, and as he did not obey, Sabin finally fired upon him, the ball taking effect above the hip and near the spine. He lingered five days and five hours, when he died. Sabin was twice tried for murder, but was finally acquitted of all blame.

The soldiers from Franklin county, however, acquitted themselves with honor during the war, and bore an especially honorable part in the great battle of Plattsburgh. This battle, which began on Sabbath morning, September 11, 1814, was in sight from St. Albans, and was watched with intense interest by many whose sons, husbands, or brothers were enshrouded in the deep cloud that overhung Plattsburgh Bay. The wind blew fresh from the north in the morning, and about seven o'clock the town was startled by a tremendous cannonade directly west. This was conjectured to be a signal of the approach of the fleet, to the army at Plattsburgh, to commence the anticipated action. A general movement of the people to the hill-tops then commenced, from which heights the British war-vessels were distinctly seen, bearing a southerly course, and at length rounding Cumberland Head. Shortly after nine o'clock the action commenced, and Plattsburgh bay was soon covered with a dense canopy of smoke. The earth trembled under the thunder of the broadsides, while the result of the distant battle was awaited with intense anxiety. That result, and the consequent glory which has since surrounded the name of McDonough, are facts familiar to the general reader.

From the close of this war, except the excitement attending the rebellion of the "Patriots" of Canada against England, in 1837, no military troubles disturbed the peace of the town until the breaking out of the late rebellion, in 1861. St. Albans did her full share in this trouble, and furnished her full quota, both of men and money, with alacrity. On the 19th of October, 1864, occurred what has since been known as the St. Albans raid. A band of rebels, twenty-two in number, came into the village, robbed the banks in open day-light, killed one man, and escaped with their plunder into Canada. The entire amount taken by the robbers was $208,000.00. They were arrested in Canada, examined, and discharged by the magistrates, on the ground that it was out of their jurisdiction to hold them, it being in time of war. The Canadian government, however, did not sympathize with the magistrates in their decision. The governor-general, Lord Monck, recommended to the Provincial Parliament that they appropriate $50,000.00 in gold to be paid to the banks as an equivalent for the money found upon the captured robbers, and which had been restored to them by the order of Justice Coursel. This was voted by the parliament and paid to the banks, being equivalent to $88,000.00 in currency, so that the banks lost but about $120,000.00. Many shots were fired by the raiders, and it seems almost a miracle that a number of the citizens were not killed or wounded. Elinus J. Morrison, the only victim, was a resident of Manchester, N. H., and was engaged as a contractor in erecting the brick work of the Welden House. Morrison was in the street, and the firing becoming general in his vicinity, he undertook to escape into Miss Beattie's millinery store, and had his hand upon the door-knob, when one of the robbers, named Young, fired at him, the shot passing through his hand into the abdomen. He was taken into the drug store of L. L. Dutcher & Son, laid upon a bed, and cared for an hour or so, when he was taken to his lodgings at the American Hotel, at which place he died, October 21st. Mr. Collins H. Huntington, an old and highly respected citizen, was also wounded, a ball striking a rib on the left of the spine, following it six and one-half inches, leaving a flesh wound only, from which he recovered in a few days.

In June, 1866, St. Albans was again the scene of considerable interest and excitement, by the concentration here "of the right wing of the army of Ireland," more commonly known as the Fenian organization for the invasion of Canada. On the 6th of the month they gathered at Franklin, and on the 7th, their commanding officer, Gen. Spear, ordered an advance, and they crossed the line into Canada, where the "head-quarters of the army of Ireland" was located, the force amounting to about 1,200 men. The project of invading Canada, however, was given up by them a few days after, and the men returned to their homes.

The town has at present two military organizations of which she is justly proud,—the “Ransom Guards,” and the “Barlow Grays.” The Ransom Guards were originally organized in 1856, and, in 1861, went out with the three month’s men in the cause of the Union. After this term of service expired, most of the men re-enlisted, and the organization was broken up. In 1872, the Guards were re-organized as Co. D, of the National Guard of Vermont, with F. Stewart Stranahan, captain; S. H. Wood, first lieutenant; and W. H. Farrar, second lieutenant. The company has fifty-one members, and has a regular muster annually. The “Barlow Grays” were also organized in 1872, and belong to the First Regiment of the National Guard of Vermont. The company adopted its title in honor of Hon. Bradley Barlow, who took an active interest in the organization, and fitted out one of the finest armory’s in the State, which the company now occupies, in the Barnes Block, on Lake street. The company consists of fifty-one members, according to the laws of the State, with Hiram E. Perkins, captain; Matt. Gilder, first lieutenant; and William E. Clark, second lieutenant.

Daniel B. Meigs came to this town in 1785, and, having selected a farm, brought his family on the next year. He was the first constable of the town, and an active and influential citizen for many years, or until his death, about 1850. His son, John, is said to have been the first child born of civilized parents in St. Albans, while several of his descendants still reside here.

Capt. Freeborn Potter, from Bennington county, came to St. Albans in 1786, and located upon the farm now owned by Hon. J. Gregory Smith. He married Dolly Irish, of Milton, Vt., and reared a family of eleven children, two of whom, Mirand Irish, of Fairfax, and Daniel R. Potter, are living. His death occurred August 9, 1845. Mosley Potter, son of Freeborn, was born in St. Albans, and died in Franklin county, N. Y., April 17, 1865. He had a family of seven children, one of whom, William M., now resides here.

Silas Hathaway, from Bennington, Vt., came to St. Albans to look out a place for settlement, in March, 1788, and in 1789, he moved with his family to the farm now owned by Romeo H. Hoyt, and at one time owned a large tract of land here. He died November 24, 1831, aged sixty-seven years. His son, Hiram, was born in this town May 24, 1799, and located on road 42, upon what is known as Hathaway’s Point, in 1838, and has since resided there, engaged in farming. His son, Hiram, Jr., was born in 1845, and is now proprietor of Hathaway’s Point, a summer resort for picnic and excursion parties. The grounds are nicely situated for the purpose, lying about three miles from St. Albans Bay, and six miles from the village.

Josiah Coloney, from New Hampshire, came to St. Albans at an early date and located in the southern part of the town. His son, Hiram, was born here in 1795, married Eunice Sabin, of Burlington, and reared a family of six children, one of whom, Hiram E., is now a house painter of this town.

Nathan Greene, from Rhode Island, came to this town at an early date, and during his long life here was known as an active, influential citizen, and held many of the town offices. He reared a family of fourteen children, and, it is said, used to brag that he had the choice of the town when he selected his wife. The humor of the conceit is apparent when it is known that there were but two unmarried females in the town at the time, one of whom was a half-breed squaw. He rejected the squaw, however, and married the white girl, a Miss Susan Alfred, and could not have made a better choice had there been many others to choose from. Col. Heman Greene, Nathan's oldest son, died at the age of seventy-three or seventy-four, and his funeral was attended by his mother. Orrin Greene, son of Job, was born in 1795, on the farm now owned by his son, W. H. H. Greene, on road 35, which was purchased by Job, February 19, 1788, and has never since been sold out of the family.

John Bell was one of the early settlers of the town, having located on the farm now owned by Nelson Laselle, on road 5, in company with his brother-in-law, Lyman Weed. He reared a large family of children, and now has many descendants residing here.

Eleazer Brooks settled in St. Albans in 1785. He married Olive Weed, reared twelve children, four of whom are now living, and died November, 25, 1847. Eleazer, Jr., was born in 1813, and now resides on the farm upon which he was born. He married Catharine Babbitt, and has a family of eight children.

Adonijah Brooks, from Poultney, Vt., came to St. Albans in 1790, and located upon the farm now occupied by Willie Bascomb, on road 42. He married Hannah Harrington, and reared a family of seven children. Asahel Brooks, born in 1781, came here with his father and subsequently located on road 42, where he resided until his death, in 1836. He married Polly Todd, by whom he had nine children.

Amos Morrill, an ex-major of the revolutionary army, came here in 1795, and located in the western part of the town, having purchased the Governor's rights of Georgia and St. Albans, consisting of 1,000 acres. He made his purchase in 1794, moved his family in 1795, and continued to reside here until his death at an advanced age. He was a blacksmith by trade, though a wealthy man, and the house he built, previous to the year 1800, using nails of his own manufacture, is yet standing.

David Clark was born in Connecticut, in 1768, and came to St. Albans, from Bennington, Vt., in 1795, and located in the southern part of the town, where he resided until his death, June 10, 1860, aged ninety-two years. He reared a family of thirteen children, five of whom, Amos, William C., Hiram, David, and Mrs. Phoebe Greene, are now living. Amos and Hiram served in the war of 1812, and now draw pensions. Mrs. Greene also draws a pension, as her husband served in that war.

Richard Whittemore, from Lynn, Mass., settled in the southern part of St. Albans in 1798, locating on road 35. He married Mary Martin, had a family of four children, and died January 4, 1804. His wife survived his death until April, 1855. John Whittemore, born February 5, 1796, came here with his father, in 1798, and has been a resident since. He married Aluna¹ Kingsbury, of Fairfax, who died in 1836, leaving a family of five children. Mr. Whittemore is now eighty-six years of age, one of the most venerable and respected men of the town. He has been an active member of the Congregational church for fifty-six years, and also an active temperance worker. Rodney, son of John, was born in 1820, married Maria West, by whom he had two sons, and for his second wife, Miss Cora Thorp. He has been county commissioner three times, holding the office from 1872, to 1875, and was assistant judge from 1878, to 1880.

Capt. John Gates was born in Marlboro, Mass., in 1765, and came to St. Albans in February, 1800. When sixteen years of age he enlisted in the Continental army, serving under Gen. Paul Brigham came to this town from Marlboro, Mass., in 1800, and located on road 19, upon the farm now owned by his grandson, S. J. Brigham. William D., son of Paul, was born on the old homestead in 1805, and died in 1875. He married Lucy Doane, and reared a family of five children. W. O. Gadscomb married Thankful Irish, who died in 1850, and reared a family of six children, three of whom are living. For his second wife, he married Eliza Perry, by whom he had two children. Arthur Laselle, a brother of Nelson, married Alvira Popple and had two children, of whom the son, Arthur, Jr., now resides on Hathaway's Point.

Samuel Mitchell came to St. Albans, from New Hampshire, in 1801, and located in the western part of the town near the present site of the Lake View House. Samuel, Jr., came here with his father at the age of twelve years, and subsequently married Nancy Neil. He reared a family of six children, four of whom are now living, and died in 1869. Henry S., son of Samuel, Jr., married Aurora, daughter of Charles Stephens, and now occupies the Stilfin homestead, on road 15.

William O. Gadcomb was born in Rhode Island, in 1791, and at the age of twelve years removed with his step-father, Judge Aldis, to St. Albans. In 1811, he commenced the mercantile business, which he continued, with an interruption during the war of 1812, until 1850. His first place of business was located a little north of his present residence on Main street, and, in 1830, he erected the building he now occupies. In 1824, he built the store standing just north of the Brainerd Block, which he still owns. He is now, at the great age of ninety-two years, the oldest resident of St. Albans. His wife, Lydia (Smith) Gadcomb, a native of Hadley, Mass., is an extremely clear-minded old lady, and Mr. Gadcomb himself has an unusually bright and unclouded intellect for one of his age. Their union has been blessed with three children, though none are living. To Mr. Gadcomb we are greatly indebted for many interesting incidents connected with the early history of the town.

John Haynes, from New Hampshire, came to this town in 1807, and located at St. Albans Point, on road 2. He reared a family of five children, and died in 1867. His son, James M., born here in 1815, married Esther Tuller, and had a family of three sons, Theron, Volney, and Alfred, all of whom are now dead. He built the first sash and blind factory in this part of the State, nearly forty years ago, on the place he still occupies, on road 43, where he did an extensive business for twenty years.

James Davis, a lawyer of ability, came to this county from Rhode Island, in 1808. He became well known for his legal knowledge, was judge of probate several years, and died in 1868. His son, Wilber P., has been county clerk for the past ten years, and was at one time connected with the publication of the Messenger.

Asahel S. Hyde was born in Georgia, Vt., June 23, 1809. During the years 1828 to 1833, inclusive, he was engaged in the postoffice at Burlington. He then spent several years in Canada, and in 1837-'38, was at Mount Hope furnace, Washington county, N. Y., and in 1839, finally settled in St. Albans, and engaged in mercantile pursuits until 1848, when he returned to New York and took charge of an ore bed, remaining until 1850. He then returned to

St. Albans, and resumed his business here, being now located on North Main street. In June, 1881, his son, Frederick W., was taken into partnership with him, and the firm name changed to A. S. Hyde & Son.

Henry Seymour was born in New Haven, Vt., March 23, 1787, and located at St. Albans, in 1813, where he continued to reside for half a century, a life remarkably industrious and frugal, and at the time of his death was one of the wealthiest, and also one of the most hospitable and exemplary citizens of the town. He was noted as a man of the strictest integrity in all dealings, and for his thorough domestic tastes and habits. He died March 27, 1865, aged ninety-eight years. He was a son of William Seymour, who was born at Norwalk, Conn., in 1760. Henry E. Seymour, now residing on North Main street, at the age of sixty-six years, is a son of Henry, and continues the descent of the long line of his most respectable ancestors, the first of whom, Richard Seymour, came to this country from England, in 1635.

Cornelius Stilphen, from New Hampshire, located at Swanton about the year 1810, and after a few years residence there removed to St. Albans, locating in the western part of the town, near the present residence of George and Warren Stilphen. Charles, son of Cornelius, came here with his father at the age of seventeen years, married Laura Warren, reared a family of nine children, and died November 11, 1878. Four of the children are now living, as follows: John, Laura, wife of William M. Potter, Aurora, wife of Henry Mitchell, and Carrie, widow of Charles Hayward.

Myron W. Bailey was born at Waterville, Vt., in 1837, studied law with Homer E. Royce, at Berkshire, and graduated at the Albany Law School in 1858. He practiced law at Richford, Vt., until 1861, when he entered the army in the 3d Vermont Infantry, remaining until February, 1862. In 1867, he was elected judge of probate, and has held the office since that time.

Benjamin Swift was born in Amenia, N. Y., April 5, 1781. He received an academic education, studied law, and was admitted to practice at Bennington, in 1806. He then settled for a time in Manchester, and subsequently removed to St. Albans, where he rose to eminence in his profession. In 1813, and 1814, and in 1825, and 1826, he was a representative to the general assembly, and a representative in congress, from Vermont, from 1827 to 1831. He received the degree of A. M. from Middlebury college in 1820, and was a member of the corporation of that institution from 1830, to 1839. In 1833, he was elected to the senate of the United States for six years, after which he retired to private life. While in apparent good health he died suddenly, in an open field on his farm, November 11, 1847. His son, Charles B. Swift, is a prominent merchant on Main street.

L. Baird

Hon. Lawrence Brainerd, for many years a prominent railroad and anti-slavery man of St. Albans, was a descendant of William Brainerd, an early missionary to the Indians. He was born at East Hartford, Conn., March 16, 1794, and when nine years of age went to Troy, N. Y., to reside with an uncle, and, in 1808, came with him to St. Albans. Here he attended and taught school for a time, then engaged as clerk for the late N. W. Kingman, several years, at the expiration of which time, in 1816, he commenced a mercantile business on his own account, building up a large trade. He also became prominently identified with the navigation enterprises on Lake Champlain, building in 1847, the first upper cabin steamer on the lake—the well known “United States;” was president of the first bank of St. Albans, and with Messrs. John Smith and Joseph Clark, succeeded in pushing through the enterprise of building the Vermont and Canada railroad, which marked an era in the progress of St. Albans from which she reckons her present prosperity.

Previous to 1840, Mr. Brainerd was a Whig in politics, though he had, however, an inborn dislike for American slavery, and no sooner did an opportunity offer for the expression of his views by ballot, than he availed himself of it. He became an adherent of the Liberty party from its start, and was one of the despised 319 of Vermont, who voted for Birney in 1840.

In 1854, after the death of William Upham, then U. S. senator from Vermont, he was unanimously chosen by the State legislature, to serve out the deceased member's term, being the first senator ever sent on the anti-slavery issue. He subsequently received a unanimous nomination for governor, but declined the honor. He also served as chairman of the national delegation that nominated President Lincoln, there being not a dissenting vote from Vermont, and was also at one time president of the American Missionary Association. Mr. Brainerd's wedded life was most felicitous. He was married January 16, 1819, to Miss Fidelia Barnett Gadcomb, a lady of an unusually lovely, Christian character, who died October 18, 1852, after rearing a Macedonian family of twelve children, six of whom are now living,—four sons and two daughters. His long and useful life was brought to a close May 9, 1870, and his dust now honors with its long repose the sleeping ones of St. Albans cemetery. He was for many years an active member of the Congregational church, and the beauty of his Christian sentiments and character cannot, perhaps, be more aptly expressed than by quoting the following words, found written upon a paper in his pocket, after his death: “Evil exists in the world that men may grow strong by wrestling with it.”

John W. Hobart, general superintendent of the Central Vermont railroad, has for many years been a trusted servant of that corporation, during which time he has succeeded not only in building up an excellent reputation with the company, but, in serving them faithfully has faithfully served his fellow citizens. Mr. Hobart was born at Randolph, Vt., in 1829, and in 1848, began clerking for the C. V. R., continuing in that capacity about one year, when he was appointed station agent at Montpelier, remaining there ten years. In 1859, he was appointed general freight agent, and in 1874, placed in the important position he still occupies.

Capt. John Gilman, who took a prominent part in local military affairs during the first quarter of the present century, came to St. Albans, from Epsom, N. H., during the year 1793, in company with his wife and young daughter, and his father-in-law, Major Morrill. Margaret Morrill was his second wife, by whom he had one son, having had three daughters and three sons by a previous marriage. Capt. Gilman was an industrious man of religious tendencies, and became a well-to-do farmer, also carrying on a blacksmith business for many years. He built the large house on Main street, now occupied by his descendants, mentioned on a previous page. Capt. Gilman died August 31, 1845, aged seventy-six years, having lived a life that endeared him to many, and brightened his pathway to the other world.

Jonathan M. Blaisdell, the eleventh child of Harvey and Elizabeth Blaisdell, was born at London, N. H., March 30, 1789, and came to St. Albans at the age of twenty years, in company with Smith Morrill. Here he was soon engaged in building houses, having learned the carpenter and joiner trade. He was occupied in the lumbering business one year, which, owing to losses, did not prove lucrative. In 1812, he was a volunteer, and went to Plattsburgh; being anxious, with some others, to cross the sand-bar to the island, he attempted to do so before the moon was up, and came near being drowned. At the age of thirty-three years he married Margaret Gilman, youngest daughter of Capt. John Gilman, and died in his seventy-seventh year, leaving a widow, two daughters and two sons. The following account of the incident at the sand-bar was related by him to Miss Hemenway, editor of the Vermont Historical Magazine, a number of years ago:—

“September 14, 1814.—The day of the election at St. Albans, after the election, Sanford Gadcomb, Solomon Walbridge, son of the old sheriff of St. Albans, and myself, started to go to Plattsburgh, as soldiers, on horseback, through Georgia and Milton. At the sand-bar there (at Milton) we attempted to cross over, having stopped a few moments at Fox's tavern, this side of the lake. It was a mile across the bar, dark—or only star-light, and I told Gadcomb it looked too much like going to sea horse-back in the night, and I did not like to cross. The wind blew strong from the north, but Gadcomb thought he could cross without difficulty, though the swells ran so high and dashed so upon the shore. We urged our horses in with difficulty, but we proceeded till we saw a light upon the opposite shore, which we supposed had been lighted to pilot us across, and we advanced till about half way over, when the water began to deepen, the swells from the north rolling hard against us, till our horses drifting off the north side of the bar, were afloat. Gadcomb was forward, I in the middle, Walbridge behind, each about 3 rods distant. Gadcomb undertook to swim his horse forward to shore, Walbridge behind, said his horse wanted to turn round and go back. My horse stood right up and down—in no swimming condition. In about two minutes Walbridge cried out, 'My horse touches bottom,' and my horse at once righted in a swimming condition and pursued his horse. Meantime I had climbed up on the saddle from which I slid when my horse lost bottom, and we were soon back on the bar again where the water was not more than knee-deep to our horses. Gadcomb was out of sight and I cried out, 'We are on good ground,' but he understood us to cry we were in trouble. Walbridge and I came out on shore where we entered, when we repeatedly halloed, and receiving no answer from any quarter, supposed Gadcomb was drowned and started to go back to Fox's tavern, but on our way through the swamp, moving along slowly near the shore, we heard somebody halloo, and answered. The halloo was kept up back and forth till we found it was Gadcomb, who had swam ashore, on the Point, north, below us, and landed on the most dismal part of the swamp. We waited till he came up to us, when we all returned to the tavern wet as water could make us, and remained about two hours, till the moon was up, and about a hundred had collected to cross; so that when we crossed, which at length was nicely done, the line of them reached clear across the bar. After we got over the bar, we went up to the old landlord's who kept tavern on South Island, where we stayed the remainder of the night. While here, the landlord stated that he hoped we should get whipped by the British, and that all would get off from the bar who attempted to cross. This raised my ideas, and I told him we should hear no such talk on our route, that we were going to Plattsburgh to fight for our country, and we could fight before we got there, if necessary, and the effect was sufficient to stop that tory's noise.

We went down the next morning and waited for a sloop to take us across. About 2 o'clock P. M., the sloop arrived and took us over to Plattsburgh. This was Wednesday. We remained there 'in battle' till Sunday night. Sunday, the last day of the battle, the British forded the river against what is called Pike's old encampment, with their whole force, 13,000 strong. They forded the river, and advanced into the pine plains, where the Vermont and New York volunteers were distant 80 or 100 rods. The woods were full of Vermont and New York volunteers, every man fighting for himself, all on the Irishman's own hook, and we were so hard upon them that they were compelled to retreat, and we pursued them like a band of bloodhounds back to the river, their dead and wounded scattered along the way. In crossing the river they lost many guns and some of the men floated down stream,—retreating up the river, the enemy were soon, however, out of our sight.

That night they retreated back to Canada, leaving a good many deserters in the village of Plattsburgh. On their camp-ground their supplies were many of them left. On Sunday, the winding up battle-day, about 200 of us went down from Pike's encampment toward our fort, and when we could see a picket guard on the other side of the river, we would fire at him, and when we could not see a redcoat to fire at, still we would all fire, so as to have the enemy understand the woods were all full of soldiers for two miles in length along the shore, and when we got opposite Plattsburgh village and attempted to cross the bridge, the British poured in a volley upon us. Only one was wounded, the bullets passing directly over our heads, one bullet passing within 12 inches of me, cutting off a little twig so I could see where the little fellow had tripped along. We returned up the river the same way as we came down."

Hon. Bradley Barlow, one of St. Albans' most prominent citizens, was born in Fairfield, Vt., May 12, 1814, and until 1858 was engaged in agricultural and mercantile pursuits, when he removed to St. Albans, where he has since been engaged in banking and other large business pursuits; is now president of the Vermont National Bank, of St. Albans, and of the South Eastern Townships railway, of Canada, and is also pushing rapidly towards completion the Canada Junction railway, connecting Sheldon Junction with the former road at West Farnham, P. Q.; he has been six times elected to the State house of representatives, and twice elected a State senator; has been twice elected a member of State constitutional conventions—of one of which he was assistant secretary; was for several years county treasurer, and was elected to the forty-sixth congress. His residence and grounds on North Main street are among the finest in St. Albans.

Seth Wetmore, a native of Massachusetts, studied law at Middlebury, and came to St. Albans to commence practice about the year 1800. After coming here he married a daughter of Gen. Shepard, of Massachusetts, who survived her wedding but a comparatively short time, leaving one son, William Shepard Wetmore, who became a wealthy citizen of Newport, R. I. For his second wife, he married a sister of Hon. John Smith. Mr. Wetmore was two or three times elected a member of the general assembly, and sometime previous to 1810, was elected sheriff of the county, in which official capacity he was peculiarly unfortunate, and became a defaulter on an execution for a large amount in favor of the Vermont State Bank. By this means he became embarrassed in his financial affairs, remaining so the rest of his life. He again turned his attention to the practice of law, and in 1817, was appointed judge of probate, a position he retained until his death. He was also a member of the executive council for Franklin county, for a number of years in succession. Mr. Wetmore was reputed to be a sound lawyer, and was a respectable member of the Methodist church. He died in August, 1830, after a lingering illness of a pulmonary character, aged about sixty-five years.

Gen. Levi House, a contemporary of Wetmore, came to St. Albans about the time the county was organized, and became a very successful attorney. His legal knowledge, however, is said to have been limited, his success being attributable more to a rough, aggressive force, than to a talent for the profession. At one time he was reported to be quite wealthy, and he built one of the finest residences in the county at that date, which was destroyed by fire in 1821; but becoming somewhat dissolute in his habits, he lost all he had, including his reputation as a lawyer, and about the year 1810, removed to Canada. He returned subsequently, and died here in 1813. His title of General was derived from his being elected Brigadier-General of Militia, a position he retained for several years.

Dr. Hiram Fairchild Stevens was born at St. Albans, August 3, 1825, the eldest son of David and Rachel (Fairchild) Stevens. His father died while he was attending the Franklin County Grammar School, and at the age of fifteen years, by request of his parent, he became a private pupil of Rev. Dr. Smith. In August, 1842, he entered the University of Vermont, in the sophomore class, but owing to ill health he was obliged to give up the course in his senior year. In 1849, he entered the office of Dr. John L. Chandler, and commenced the study of medicine. During his course of study, he attended lectures at Pittsfield, Mass., Woodstock, Vt., and at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, in the city of New York, whence he took the degree of Doctor of Medicine, in March, 1850. In 1852, his health again began to fail, and in the autumn of that year he went to Florida. The winter following he spent in Charleston, S. C., where his health became so much improved that he returned in the spring of 1854, and commenced the practice of medicine in his native town. This he continued with remarkable success until his death, of typhoid fever, January 15, 1866.

Nathaniel B. Eldridge, a native of Connecticut, came to St. Albans in 1811, and during the winter of that year was admitted to the bar of Franklin county, and commenced practice at St. Albans. In 1816, he married Eliza, daughter of Joseph Jones, who survived her husband's death many years. Mr. Eldridge's health began to fail, and in 1819, he sailed for France, hoping its climate would benefit him, which it seemed to do for a time, but about a year after his return, in the summer of 1821, he died of consumption.

Joshua K. Smedley was born in Georgia, Vt., about the year 1784. He studied law with Benjamin Swift, and was admitted to the bar in 1809. During the winter of the following year, he entered into partnership with Gen. Elias Fassett, of this town, and removed to the village, where he and his partner continued in practice for several years, or until the partnership was dissolved by the removal of Mr. Fassett to Chittenden county. Mr. Smedley continued in business here afterwards for a considerable time, first alone, and then in connection with Henry Adams until the summer of 1828, when he was attacked with a violent fever, of which he died. Mr. Smedley represented the town in the legislature in 1817, and was never married.

Dea. Horace Janes, son of Jonathan and Martha Janes, was born at Brimfield, Mass., September 18, 1781, and came to St. Albans early in the present century. He was postmaster of the town from 1807 to 1829, and clerk of the court from 1816, to the close of his life. August 30, 1827, he was elected one of the deacons of the Congregational church, and afterwards continued active and faithful in the duties pertaining to that office. Dea. Janes was noted for his Christian benevolence and generosity, and died truly lamented, March 15, 1834.

Hon. Bates Turner, a native of Canaan, Conn., was born in October, 1760. At the age of sixteen years he entered the army of the Revolution, where he was exposed to many hardships and dangers. After the close of the war he entered upon a course preparatory to the profession of law. He entered the celebrated law school of Judges Reeves and Gould, of Litchfield, and after the usual course of study was admitted to the bar. Soon after his admission, he removed to Vermont, locating in Fairfield in 1796. In 1798, he removed to St. Albans, and, in 1804, formed a co-partnership with Asa Aldis, which continued but a few years, when Mr. Turner returned to Fairfield. He here established a law school which became quite popular. In 1812, he moved to Middlebury, Vt., intending to establish a school there, but not meeting with sufficient encouragement, he returned to Fairfield, remaining until 1815, when he again took up his residence in St. Albans. In 1827, and again in 1828, he was elected a judge of the supreme court. At the expiration of the second term he returned to his profession again and never left it until the close of his life. He died April 30, 1847. Mr. Turner was twice married, his first wife, Mrs. Persis Humphry, of Providence, R. I., dying in 1814. In 1815, he married Mrs. Sarah Webb, of North Hero, who died in August, 1839.

Hon. John Smith, the youngest son of Dea. Samuel and Mrs. Patience Smith, and father of John G. and Worthington C. Smith, of St. Albans, was born at Barre, Mass., August 12, 1789. When John was eleven years of age, his father purchased a farm in the southeastern part of St. Albans, and immigrating thither from Massachusetts, settled thereon. Land titles in the northern part of the State were at that time decidedly insecure, and through some flaw Dea. Smith was deprived of his. After losing his property he removed to the village. Here John was allowed the slender educational advantages the place at that time afforded, after which he entered upon the study of the law in the office of his brother-in-law, Roswell Hutchins. His subsequent legal studies, however, were mainly prosecuted in the office of Hon. Benjamin Swift. In 1810, he was admitted to the bar, and soon after entered into a copartnership with Judge Swift. The firm thus existed for a period of seventeen years, during which time it gained an extended reputation for legal soundness and ability, and did a large amount of remunerative business. At the expiration of this time, Mr. Smith having entered quite extensively into politics, the partnership was dissolved. In the meantime he had represented St. Albans in the legislature nine successive years, and, in 1826, was elected State's attorney, in which capacity he served six years. In 1831, 1832, and 1833, he was speaker in the general assembly, and from 1839 to 1841, was a representative to Congress from Vermont, after which, until 1846, he resumed his legal pursuits. In this latter year began the labor that was continued to the end of his life, and which, as a climax to what he had already done, has caused the people of Franklin county to revere his memory as one of their greatest benefactors,—indeed, the whole State will always be indebted to him and his colleagues, (see page 30,) for the active employment of their time, money and influence for a series of years while achieving a connecting link between the great roads of the West, and the Vermont Central on the East, while the county is indebted to his forecast and sagacity for the stimulus given to the development of her agricultural and manufacturing resources. The old Vermont and Canada railroad should now stand as a monument to his earnest struggles and ultimate triumph, for the exhaustive and perplexing labors of which that road was the fruit, caused his sudden death, in 1858. A beautiful memorial-stone of white marble, in the St. Albans cemetery, indicates the spot where the mortal remains of this public benefactor repose, upon which is inscribed the following epitaph:—

IN MEMORY OF

JOHN SMITH.

Born at Barre, Mass., August 12, 1789.

Died at St. Albans, Vt., November 20, 1858.

His private virtues, and the graces of a well ordered Christian life, endeared him to his family and friends, and qualified him for the distinguished position which he occupied at the Bar, and for the many offices of public and political trust which were bestowed upon him.

Mr. Smith was married September 18, 1814, to Miss Maria W. Curtis, of Troy, N. Y., with whom he passed a most happy wedded life, and the following year, December 31st, he united with the Congregational church, remaining an active member and warm friend of that society until his death.

Nehemiah W. Kingman, a native of Canaan, N. Y., came to St. Albans soon after the year 1800. Mr. Kingman was a hatter by trade, and for a considerable time worked at his trade here, but finally gave up that business and devoted his attention to mercantile pursuits, acquiring thereby an ample fortune. In 1805, he married Miss Almira Humphrey a step-daughter of Judge Turner, who died in 1816. In 1820, he was again married, to Miss Thankful Stone, who died in 1855. Mr. Kingman died in 1845, aged about sixty-five years.

Dr. Julius Hoyt, father of Hon. Romeo H. Hoyt, of St. Albans, and son of Samuel Hoyt, of Guilford, Conn., was born at Sunderland, Vt., November 26, 1778. When seventeen years of age he went to live with his brother Joseph, who had settled in Westford, Vt., in which place he taught school. From Westford he went to Arlington, where he studied medicine with Dr. Todd. After he had completed his studies he entered into partnership with his cousin, John Wilcox, in the druggist business, and removed to Vergennes. In July, 1802, he came to St. Albans and established himself as a physician and druggist, on the corner of South Main and Nason streets. The practice of medicine was soon relinquished, and his stock of goods was extended to the usual assortment of a country store. On September 15, 1805, he was united in marriage with Miss Jemima Taylor, daughter of Col. Holloway Taylor. He died November 14, 1852, ending an honorable, Christian life. Hon. Romeo H. Hoyt, one of St. Albans most venerable citizens, was born in 1810, graduated from Middlebury College in 1830, and subsequently from the New Haven Law School, commencing the practice of law soon after, following the profession with great success for many years. He was elected to the State senate in 1853-'54, has been judge of the county court, and held many other offices of honor and trust, honoring the positions as the positions have honored him. He now resides in modest retirement on North Main street, aged over three-score years and ten.

Hon. John Gregory Smith seems to have received his father's fallen mantle of untiring energy and far-reaching forecast. Like his father he too adopted the profession of law, being admitted to the bar in 1841, and like the father he also relinquished its practice to launch into extensive railroad enterprises. The great power exerted and the many millions of dollars invested by the Central Vermont Railroad Co., of which Mr. Smith is president, is largely owing to his great executive ability. Few there are who could have built up such an enterprise. That Mr. Smith also shares the public confidence that was bestowed upon his father, is attested by the many positions of honor he has enjoyed, having been raised to the highest office in the gift of his native State,—the gubernatorial chair. In his private life, Governor Smith is a most courteous and kindly gentleman, the admired center of a host of friends. His house and grounds, located on the corner of Smith and Congress streets, are among the finest in the State, while they afford a view of the surrounding lake and mountain scenery that is probably surpassed by none in the country.

Hon. Worthington C. Smith, another son of John, is one of the prominent citizens of St. Albans, being proprietor of the St. Albans foundry, manager of the Missisquoi railroad, president of the Vermont Atwood Merino Sheep Club, etc. He was born in this village, April 23, 1823, graduated from the University of Vermont in 1843, studied law, but abandoned the profession and became an iron merchant and manufacturer. In 1863, he was sent as representative to the legislature of the State; in 1864-'65, to the State Senate, officiating during the last session as president of the senate; and, in 1866, he was elected a representative from Vermont, to the fortieth congress, serving on the committees on manufactures and on weights and measures.

Benjamin Franklin Rugg, son of Capt. Alexander Rugg, of Fairfax, was born in that town June 8, 1820. In early life he followed the occupation of farming, though he was a cripple for many years, from the effects of a scald received during boyhood. In 1852, he came to St. Albans, and in company with A. G. Soule, of Fairfield, commenced buying butter, and became one of the principal founders of the St. Albans butter market, which has since become so noted. During the same year, Hiram B. Soule joined the firm, which existed about three years, when the partnership was dissolved. During this time, however, Mr. Rugg had displayed so much sagacity and ability as a buyer, that Mr. O. A. Burton, then president of the Franklin County Bank, offered him all the financial assistance he required to prosecute an extensive business. Soon after this he began to deal largely in cattle, horses, sheep, wool, produce, and real estate, his transactions during some seasons averaging $6,000.00 per day. He often engaged in large ventures in joint account with firms in the cities. In 1864, he formed a co-partnership with M. G. Elliott, and his son-in-law, R. B. Kennison, in a general mercantile business, the partnership existing about ten years. Since 1875, in connection with his nephew, J. E. Rugg, he has owned and operated a sheep ranch in Wyoming Territory. His flock has increased rapidly, and notwithstanding the loss of 4,000 sheep and one man, perishing in a snow storm, he has sold during the past year $18,000.00 worth of sheep, and during two years $20,000.00 worth of wool. He also deals largely in cattle, but gave up the butter trade some time ago. Mr. Rugg has done much towards building up the village of St. Albans, having erected about fifty dwellings and two stores, one of the latter being the first built on Lake street, in 1860, and at that time thought by many to be a wild scheme. During that year he also opened and built up the street that bears his name. Our engraving represents Mr. Rugg at fifty years of age.

Joshua Montefiore was born in England, graduated from Oxford college, and adopted the profession of law, in which he became quite learned, and wrote several works on the subject. In early life he entered the English army as captain of the 17th Light Infantry, and subsequently came to this country, and in 1827, removed to St. Albans, from New York city. He was twice married, his first wife being a sister of Sir John Russell, Bart., while he was a brother of the English philanthropist, Sir Moses Montefiore, who is now living. Mr. Montefiore died at an advanced age, on the farm now occupied by his widow, leaving several children, among whom were H. Montefiore, a farmer, J. H. Montefiore, an attorney-at-law of St. Albans, Mrs. White Cleveland, of Georgia, and Mrs. C. V. Ross, of Moriah, N. Y.

William Fuller, born at Reading, N. H., in 1798, came to St. Albans when a young man, learned the harness maker's trade, married Eliza, daughter of Nathan Greene, and kept the hotel known as the Danforth Hotel. About the year 1830, he moved into the house number 102 Main street, and opened a harness shop at 104 Main street, and commenced keeping a livery stable the same year, it being the first livery kept in town. He continued in the livery business until his death, which occurred in April, 1875. His son, E. D. Fuller, born in 1833, always lived at home, with the exception of four years spent in the West, 1854, to 1859, but was engaged in the same business while away, so in fact has always been in the livery business. He entered into partnership with William Fuller, in 1854, keeping two stables at that time, one at 104 Main street, and the other at the American House. The business increased rapidly, so that at one time, in 1870, and 1871, he kept seventy-two horses. He is now alone in the business, keeping from thirty-five to fifty horses, though he makes a specialty of keeping horses for sale, disposing of from seventy-five to eighty-five per year, fine bred stock.

William Wright was born in Scotland in 1814, and came to this country in 1829. He located for a time in Montreal, where he learned the molder's trade, and from there came to this State, finally locating at St. Albans in 1842, where he has since resided, following his trade. He has been married three times and reared a family of eleven children.

John Locke Chandler was born March 4, 1793, at Pawlet, Vt., the eldest son of Benjamin Chandler, a very eminent physician and surgeon, the most distinguished of any in Northern Vermont. He was a pioneer who has left his impress upon many institutions of the State,—its colleges and medical societies especially. John's mother was Caroline Bushnell, daughter of Benajah Bushnell, who came from Norwich, Conn., to Pawlet the same year of John's birth. His parents brought him into the woods of Fairfield, where his father had decided to settle, thinking it would become the county-seat of Franklin county. They lived at first in a blacksmith shop, until they could build a log house, and afterwards built a better house in which they lived until 1807, when they removed to St. Albans, where the father died, December 14, 1818, at the age of forty-six years, and where Dr. J. L. Chandler still resides. Previous to this removal to St. Albans, John had studied with the well-known Father Wooster, an eccentric, but thoroughly educated man. He had also studied the classics under Charles Adams, a teacher from Burlington. On arriving at St. Albans, fourteen years of age, he attended the academy, becoming a good Latin scholar, with a slight knowledge of Greek. At the age of nineteen he was sent to Burlington, under the care of Rev. Dr. Saunders, the first president of the University of Vermont, as his private pupil. After a course of study for six months, he had an inclination to study law, and went to Vergennes and read some law books, but soon returned to his father's office and read medicine. He commenced practice in St. Albans, but after one year removed to Pawlet, his native town, where he remained four years, then returned to St. Albans, in 1823, where he has since resided. He has been one of the most eminent physicians of Vermont, a man of solid attainments and sterling integrity. He has also been known as a man of correct literary taste. He wrote much for medical journals, and often upon other than medical subjects. He was fond of poetry, and many poems of his are well worthy of preservation. He married in early life Sabina Curtis, a most estimable woman, sister of the mother of Hon. J. G. and W. C. Smith. They had several children, only two of whom are now living, Mrs. C. N. Bishop and Mrs. George Farrar. Dr. Chandler is now eighty-nine years of age, and has been honored during his active life with many positions of trust and responsibility, and well has he performed his life duties. Old age finds him enjoying the gratitude of his fellow citizens and the consciousness of a life well spent.

Rev. Worthington Smith, D. D., son of Deacon Seth and Lydia Smith, was born at Hadley, Mass., October 11, 1795. His ancestors had lived upon the farm where he was born from the first settlement of that town, in 1659, and it still remains in the possession of members of the family. He entered Williams College in the year 1813, graduated in 1816, and during the same year made a profession of religion by joining the Congregational church of Hadley. Having decided to become a minister, he entered the theological seminary at Andover, in the autumn of 1816, where he completed the course in 1819. After filling the office of principal of the academy at Hadley, for one year, he came to St. Albans, in the month of August, 1822, and on June 4, 1823, was ordained pastor of the Congregational church here. He married Miss Mary Ann Little, July 1, 1823. In August, 1845, he received the degree of Doctor of Divinity, and in 1849, was appointed president of the University of Vermont, entering upon the duties of the charge in August of that year. In 1853, his health began to fail, and in 1855, he resigned the presidency. His death occurred soon after his leaving the college, February 13, 1856, aged sixty-one years. Dr. Smith left a more decided and enduring impression on the public mind, probably, than any other man who ever lived in St. Albans. His ministry covered a period of twenty-seven years, during which time, with a few exceptions only, he produced two finished sermons each week, which he delivered to his people.

Hon. Homer E. Royce, the present chief justice of the State, a nephew and heir of the late Ex-Gov. Stephen Royce, of Berkshire, was born in Berkshire, Vt., 1819, received a common school education, studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1842. He was a member of the State legislature in 1846 and 1847, was prosecuting attorney for the State in 1848, State senator in 1849, 1850 and 1851, and elected a representative from Vermont to the thirty-fifth congress, serving as a member of the committee on foreign affairs. He was re-elected to the thirty-sixth congress, serving as a member of the same committee, and was a delegate to the Philadelphia "Loyalist's Convention" of 1866. Upon the death of Chief Justice Pierpont, January 7, 1882, he was elevated to the chief justiceship, which office he still retains.

Judge Asa Aldis was born in the town of Franklin, Norfolk county, Mass., in 1770. His father died when Asa was but five years of age, leaving him to the care of a maternal aunt, in whose family he lived until fourteen years old. In 1792, he entered Rhode Island College, now called Brown University, and graduated therefrom in 1796. He then commenced the study of law in the office of Judge Howell, of Providence, R. I. After his admission to the bar, he practiced his profession in the village of Chepachet, two or three years, and in the mean time married a daughter of Lieut. Governor Owen, she being then the widow of a Mr. Gadcomb, (father of W. O. Gadcomb,) who had died some years previous. In 1802, he came to this town, and soon after formed a partnership with Bates Turner, though the partnership lasted but a short time, when Mr. Turner removed to Fairfield. In 1815, he was elected chief justice of the supreme court. In 1832, he took his son Asa O. Aldis, into partnership with him. Gradually, however, Judge Aldis grew weary of the profession, and several years previous to his death turned the whole business over to his son. He died October 16, 1847, after a somewhat lingering illness, in the seventy-eighth year of his age. Judge Aldis was a most exemplary citizen, and possessed a powerful intellect, so that his opinion and judgment in litigated questions always had great weight with his associate counsel, as well as with the litigant parties.

The Congregational Church of St. Albans, located on Church street, corner of Bank, was organized January 2, 1803, and consisted of the following named persons: Samuel Smith, Patience Smith, Paul Brigham, Fanny Brigham, Antipas Brigham, John Hastings, Samuel Sumner, Lucy Farrar, and Noah Ripley. The first pastor, Rev. Jonathan Nye, was ordained March 5, 1805. The society is at present very large and in a flourishing condition, with Rev. Charles Van Norden, pastor. The present church edifice, a fine brick building capable of seating 750 persons, was built in 1863, at a cost of $30,000.00.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, located on Church street, was organized by Elder Henry Stead and Rev. Almond Dunbar, in 1815, and consisted of about seventy-five members. The first church building was erected in 1819, a brick structure, which through various remodellings did service until 1875, when the present edifice was constructed, at a cost of $30,000.00. It will accommodate 500 persons and is now valued at $35,000.00. The society has at present 300 members, with Rev. N. F. Perry, pastor.

St. Luke's Parish Protestant Episcopal Church, located on the corner of Church, Fairfield, and Bishop streets, was organized by Mr. Ashbel Smith and others, to the number of fifteen, August 26, 1816, Rev. Stephen Beach being the first rector. The first church building was erected in 1825, a wood structure, which gave place to the present beautiful stone building in 1860, which will seat 400 persons, cost $14,000.00, and is now valued at $15,000.00. The society has 320 members, with Rev. Thomas Burgess, rector.

The St. Albans Bay Methodist Episcopal Church was organized by its pastor, Rev. Simeon Gardner, with twelve members, in 1856. A church building was erected the following year, of wood, and gave place to the present brick structure in 1874, which will seat 300 persons, cost $2,000.00, and is now valued at $3,500.00. The society has at present eighty-two members, with Rev. A. W. Ford, pastor.

The Holy Guardian Angels' Catholic Church, located on Lake street, corner of Eden, was organized by its present pastor, Rev. George N. Caissy, in 1872. Their church building, a large brick structure capable of seating 1,100 persons, was erected during the same year, costing $7,000.00, and is now valued at $13,500.00. The parish now has about 400 families.

The Church of the Immaculate Conception, (Roman Catholic), located on Fairfield street, corner of Thomas, has about 900 communicants. It has also under its charge a convent, where a school is taught by eight sisters from the congregation of Notre Dame, of Montreal. Both French and English branches are taught, the school having about twenty-five boarders and 150 day scholars. The beautiful grounds whereon the convent is situated, comprising about two acres, were bought of Hon. Bradley Barlow, September 10, 1869, costing $20,000.00; the buildings cost $8,000.00; a school-house for boys, erected in 1874, cost $2,500.00, and a parsonage, built in 1866, cost an additional $5,000.00, all of which are paid for, excepting $6,800.00, yet due. The society is under the charge of the Very Rev. Z. Druon, Vicar-General.

The First Universalist Church, located on Bishop street, although it has not been formally organized as a church society, has in process of erection a fine brick edifice, which will soon be completed, and is intended to cost $10,000.00.

The First Baptist Church, located on Congress street, was organized with twenty-one members, in 1868. Rev. D. M. Bigelow was the first pastor. The society now has 150 members, with Rev. G. S. Pratt, pastor. The church building, a handsome brick structure capable of seating 450 persons, was built in 1874, at a cost of $36,000.00.

SWANTON, one of the most important towns of the county, lies in the northwestern part, in lat. $44^{\circ} 53'$, and long. $3^{\circ} 54'$, bounded on the north by Highgate, east by Sheldon and Fairfield, south by St. Albans, and west by the waters of Lake Champlain. It was granted by the Province of New Hampshire, to Isaiah Goodrich and sixty-three associates, August 17, 1763, as a township of 26,040 acres, intended, evidently, to be square in outline, but which in reality is exceedingly irregular. On November 3, 1836, a portion of Highgate was annexed to the town, since which time no change has been made in its area. The town is said to have received its name in honor of Capt. William Swanton, an officer in the British service during the French and Indian war. He took an active part in the reduction of Louisburgh, in 1758, and after the war, in 1762, took up his residence at Bath, Me., where he remained until his death.

In surface, Swanton is varied, some portions being broken and rocky, while others are depressed into low, marshy swamp-land. In the southeastern part of the town, there is a high elevation known as Swanton Hill, the lower lands to the north and south of which are designated as East Swanton. About two miles west of this hill, near the center of the town, there is another ridge, or elevation of land, called Swanton Center. The whole of the extreme western part of the territory is a delta, formed between Maquam bay and the Missisquoi river. This portion of land, called West Swanton, was formerly an island, formed by Maquam creek flowing from the bay to the river. A sand-bar, however, has formed at the mouth of the creek, so that the land is completely surrounded by water only a small part of the year. West Swanton was formerly called Hog Island, so named, it is said, from the fact that at an early day it was customary to drive hogs there, and let them remain during a full season or more to fatten upon the butternuts, beechnuts, walnuts and acorns, all of which were very plentiful. The name is a vulgar one, however, and that of West Swanton, which has been adopted in its stead, is far more agreeable to sensitive ears.

Several streams, or brooks, are distributed over the surface of the territory, but the only water-course of importance is the Missisquoi river. It enters Swanton from the east, about two miles from the village, and, after making a detour called the Bow, encircling three or four square miles, including Swanton village on its east bank, it strikes the line of Highgate again, about two miles from the village, whence it separates Swanton from Highgate. It empties into Missisquoi bay, having three principal mouths, called the South, Middle, and East Branches, through which the water flows at all times, while there are three or four other outlets during high water, at which times it usually overflows its banks. Some three or four miles from its mouth, the waters from the western bank find their way into Missisquoi bay, by way of the creek of that name, and also into Charcoal creek, which is some three-quarters of a mile south of, and flowing nearly parallel with, the river. The waters from the eastern bank find their way through the Dead creek into Goose bay. The river is navigable for canal boats and sloops during the early part of the season, when the waters of the lake set back to the falls, where the village is situated. At low-water the sand-bar at the mouth of the river prevents navigation by large crafts.

The soil of the town is generally good, though considerable swamp-land is encountered, especially in West Swanton. In the central and southern portions it is gravelly. Fair crops of the cereals incident to the latitude are grown. The original timber is mostly beech, birch, pine, hemlock, hickory, and cedar.

Geologically, the formation of the town varies considerably. The whole of the western portion, from the lake to Swanton village, overlies an immense bed of Hudson river slates. This formation is followed by a parallel range of Hudson river limestone, containing some excellent varieties of marble and an abundant supply of excellent material for the manufacture of lime. Then comes a range of red sandrock, next a bed of Georgia slates, followed by a vein of quartz rock, and finally a formation of talcose conglomerate, underlying the extreme eastern portion of the town. Iron ore has been discovered in some portions of the town, and the mines were formerly worked to some extent.

Excellent facilities for the transportation of products are afforded, as the town is traversed by four railroad lines: The Missisquoi, passing across the eastern portion; the Vermont & Canada, entering St. Albans from the south, and crossing from West Swanton into Alburgh; the Montreal & Vermont Junction line, extending north into Highgate, from Swanton Junction; and the St. Johnsbury & Lake Champlain road, extending from Maquam bay, east, through Swanton village into Highgate. A brief sketch of all these railroads is given on page 30, so we will omit their further mention here.

In 1880, Swanton had a population of 3,083, was divided into seventeen school districts, and contained eighteen common schools, employing four male and twenty female teachers, to whom was paid an aggregate salary of $2,880.60. There were 620 pupils attending common school, while the entire cost of the schools for the year, ending October 31st, was $3,294.94, with Henry A. Burt, Jr., superintendent.

SWANTON, a post village located in the northern part of the town, on the Missisquoi river, and also a station on the Vermont & Canada, and St. Johnsbury & Lake Champlain railroads, has an excellent mill privilege afforded by the falls in the river at this point. The village is second in size only to St. Albans, and contains five churches, (M. E., Baptist, Episcopal, Congregational, and Catholic,) a Custom House, public hall, bank, graded school, Catholic convent, two marble manufactures, two planing-mills and sash manufactories, two grist-mills, three saw-mills, two spring-bed factories, two hotels a tannery, plaster-mill, suspender manufactory, two hardware stores, two clothing stores, a jewelry store, two meat markets, a harness shop, four blacksmith shops, three dry goods stores, two drug stores, four grocery stores, two barber shops, two fancy goods stores, two tailor shops, two furniture stores, and one photograph gallery, and also supports two newspapers and three lawyers.

EAST SWANTON, (p. o.) a hamlet and station on the Missisquoi railroad, in the eastern part of the town, contains a church (Baptist,) postoffice, and half a dozen dwellings.

SWANTON CENTER, (p. o.) a hamlet located a little east of the center of the town, contains a carriage shop, blacksmith shop, and half a dozen dwellings.

SWANTON JUNCTION, (p. o.) a hamlet and station on the V. & C. R. R., located in the southern part of the town, contains about a dozen dwellings and the lime kilns of C. H. Rich and W. B. Fonda.

MAQUAM, a hamlet located on the lake shore, is the western terminus of the S. J. & L. C. R. R., and the port-entry of the town. It contains the wharves and railroad buildings, a hotel, and a few dwellings.

George and R. Lester Barney's marble mills, located on Barney street, at Swanton village, were established by George Barney, the senior partner of the present firm, in 1840. Mr. Barney conducted the business until 1854, and then took William H. Blake into partnership, under the firm name of Blake & Barney. From 1859 to 1865, the business was entirely in the hands of Mr. Barney, as manager, with A. M. Clark, as partner; but from that date to 1873, Mr. Barney was sole proprietor. His son and son-in-law, R. Lester Barney and E. P. Parsons, then became connected with the business, under the firm name of George Barney & Sons. This partnership was continued only two years, when Mr. Barney again assumed entire control, retaining the same until 1879, at which time the present firm was established. The mills are operated by water-power, and have had their capacity increased from time to time until they now furnish employment to about thirty men. The special manufacture of the firm is flooring tile, from black, white, French-gray, dove, red-variegated, Le Panto, Lyonnaise, and American-Italian marble, though monumental and other cemetery work is manufactured, amounting to about $25,000.00 per annum.

Calvin R. Hogle's marble and granite works, located at Swanton village, were established by J. D. Perry, in the autumn of 1860. After the death of Mr. Perry, in 1867, R. L. Barney assumed the control of the business, which he continued until June, 1881, when the present proprietor took the property. He employs four men and manufactures $6,000.00 worth of monuments and headstones annually.

Atwood & Willard's suspender manufactory, located on Merchants' Row, at Swanton village, was established in January, 1882. The firm employs about sixty hands in the manufacture of Eclipse suspenders, shoulder braces, and hose and skirt supporters.

James Bullard's carriage shop and undertaking rooms were established by Daniel Bullard, Jr., and his sons, George and James, in 1852. They continued the business in partnership about six years, when the firm was changed to G. & J. Bullard, remaining thus about twelve years, since which time the business has been conducted by the present proprietor.

The Champlain Marble Lime Company, located at Swanton village, have a side track running from their works to the St. J. & L. C. R. R., which are arranged with every convenience for prosecuting the business. The business is managed by E. W. Jewett, and operates four kilns, with a capacity of 200 casks of lime per day, made from dove-colored marble. The firm is at present doing a business of about 30,000 casks per annum.

William O. Smith's sash, blind and door manufactory, located at Swanton village, was established in 1873. Mr. Smith employs six men, and does a business of from $10,000.00 to $12,000.00 per annum.

Clark H. Butterfield's sash, door and blind manufactory, located at Swanton village, is one of the oldest established manufactories in Swanton. Mr. Clark employs four men, and does a business of about $10,000.00 per year.

The Blake Block, an ornament to the town, was built by William H. Blake, in 1877, replacing an old wooden structure then destroyed by fire.

The block is a handsome, durable structure, divided on the ground floor into three commodious stores. Mr. Blake, the builder of the block, occupies the south store with a full line of heavy and shelf hardware, stoves, etc. He has in his trade the advantage gained from years of experience. Mr. B. B. Blake has the center store filled with dry goods, groceries, boots and shoes, etc. Mr. S. S. Morey occupies the north store with a full line of ladies' furnishing goods. He has been engaged in business at Swanton for a period of twenty-five years, and since 1877, in the store he now occupies.

Asahel A. Brooks commenced the manufacture of rubber-bucket chain pumps, at Swanton village, in 1875, using the Cooper bucket, with side leak, of which Mr. Brooks owns the patent for eight counties in the State.

Charles W. Rich's lime manufactory, located at Swanton Junction, employs twenty-five men and manufactures 30,000 barrels of lime per year.

The National Union Bank was chartered, as the Union Bank, in 1850, with a capital of $75,000.00, and went into operation in 1851. The first president was George W. Green, who soon after resigned. Joseph Blake succeeded him, and continued to hold the office until February 15, 1866, at which time the name of the bank was changed to the one it now bears. Upon the resignation of Mr. Blake, Hon. William L. Sowles was chosen president, and Albert Sowles, of St. Albans, now fills the office. The cashiers have been, E. A. Kendrick, from 1851 to '53; V. P. Noyes, '53 to '54; Thomas M. Benton, '54 to '55; N. A. Lasell, from July 29, '55, to January 12, 1869, when E. M. Sowles was appointed and held the office until January, 1872, after which G. W. Beebe was chosen, and continues to hold the office at the present time.

That the banks of the Missisquoi were settled upon by Jesuit missionaries at a very early date, not far from 1730, is proven by facts indubitable, and there is evidence to show that the region was visited by the Anglo-Saxon away back among the centuries to the year 1564. In December, 1853, while Mr. Orlando Green was engaged in excavating sand from the left bank of the Missisquoi, about half a mile south of the village, he discovered a piece of lead tube about five inches in length imbedded in the earth, which, upon investigation, proved to contain a very interesting document. It was a record written upon paper such as was used for commercial purposes in the sixteenth century, and of which the following is an exact copy:—

“ Nov. 29 A D 1564

“ This is the solme day I must now die this is the 90th day since we lef the Ship all have Parished and on the Banks of this River I die to farewelle may future Posterity know our end JOHNE GRAYE.”

Many doubted the authenticity of the document, but Rev. J. B. Perry, the thorough scholar who assisted in writing the history of Swanton for Miss Hemenway's work, investigated the matter thoroughly, and pronounced it no hoax. A very interesting article on the subject, written by Mr. Perry, may be found in the above mentioned work. If the record was really written by John Graye then, so many years ago, it establishes at once, not only who the discoverer of Swanton was, but that Samuel De Champlain was not the first to discover the territory of Vermont, as the death of this unfortunate English sailor antedates Champlain's voyage up the lake by nearly half a century. A certainty of the authenticity of this ancient document, however, will probably never be arrived at.

The aboriginal occupants of Swanton were the St. Francis tribe of Indians. It is known that they existed in considerable numbers and had at one time quite a thriving settlement on the banks of the Missisquoi. Their occupation of the territory, however, dates only, as far as can be ascertained, from 1650. During most of the preceding hundred years, or from the supposed visit of John Graye, in 1564, down to about the middle of the seventeenth century, it is presumed that the lands in this vicinity were unoccupied; but from that time until the middle of the eighteenth century, the St. Francis Indians occupied the land, and took an active part in many of the incursions against the whites.

When the French mission was established here is not known exactly, but it was several, and perhaps many, years subsequent to 1730. A French settlement then gathered about the mission, a fact to which Indian tradition bears ample testimony. It is also confirmed by the accounts of the early settlers, who received their information from those who were well acquainted with the efforts of the French in this vicinity, and by the reports of soldiers who passed through here during the old French and Indian war. About the year 1730, a plague broke out among the people, and both the Indians and the French left the territory for Canada. Not long subsequent to 1741, the Indians returned to the territory, and with them a few of the French. Two settlements seem to have been commenced here, one at the falls, and one some two miles down the river, on the east bank, and probably not far from the old Indian Castle. The French, however, for the most part, if not entirely, took their departure from the locality shortly after 1760, though their improvements were not all removed, and many of the Indians remained behind. The church, which had been erected long before, was still standing, and undoubtedly some of the cabins put up by the French inhabitants remained.

In 1765, the St. Francis Indians leased a large tract of land in this vicinity to James Robertson, a wealthy merchant of St. Johns, who soon after came on to the territory in company with Thomas Metcalf, who subsequently acted as his agent. Metcalf erected a saw-mill at the falls, and a comparatively extensive lumber trade was commenced, while the fur trade was also quite extensively prosecuted. Mr. Robertson erected a house, and came with his family to reside at the falls. At one time, previous to the breaking out of hostilities against England, in 1776, there were some fifty lumbermen employed by him, most of whom were of French descent, and probably many of them had their families settled in the neighborhood. The mill erected by Metcalf probably occupied about the same site of an old one erected by the French, which was destroyed during the French and Indian war. Metcalf's mill was burned soon after the revolution broke out, and with its destruction, if tradition may be trusted, ended the first settlement, under English auspices, on the Missisquoi river.

The first settler in the town, and probably in the county, after the beginning of the revolution, was John Hilliker, a native of White Plains, N. Y., who came here about the year 1779, and continued to reside here until his death, leaving behind him a posterity, a portion of which may still be found in the neighborhood. For several years after he located here, no additional families came on, and for a long time the only tenement between his home and Burlington was at Colchester Point.

The war of the Revolution at length drew to a close, and with the abatement of the troubles to early settlers attending it, pioneers soon began to look with favorable glances upon the territory of Swanton. Most of the land of the township had become the property of Ira Allen, that insatiate real estate manipulator. In 1786, he employed Thomas Butterfield as his agent, to come to the town and make an effort towards the improvement of the mill-power at the falls. During the latter part of that year or early part of the next, Butterfield brought his family to the town. This was no easy task at that day, there being no roads. He performed the journey on foot, while his wife rode on horseback, with their earthly possessions lashed to the saddle, or otherwise fastened to the horse. Not far from this time Jonathan Butterfield, brother to Thomas, made his way through the woods and settled at the falls. In 1787, William Coit surveyed the town, employed by Ira Allen. From this time forward the settlement rapidly increased.

According to Mr. Barney, in his town history, settlers began to locate and make claims for themselves at four or five different points in Swanton, previous to 1790. The first was along the river, in the neighborhood of the old Indian settlement; the second in West Swanton, known as Hog Island; the third at the falls; and the fourth near the geographical center of the town, on the direct road from the falls to St. Albans. He also says these early settlers were composed of two classes of persons, differing somewhat in race, manners, and customs, and whose antecedents had been very unlike. The most of those in the west part of the town were of Dutch descent, and it has been said, and probably with more or less truth, that the most of them had, during our Revolutionary war, been loyal to the British, and at its close found their location somewhat uncomfortable, and they therefore left with the view of making their future home in the King's dominions, and that nearly all of that class who settled in this town and Highgate, supposed they had gotten north of latitude 45°; but on finding their mistake concluded to remain where they were, inasmuch as they found themselves, not badly treated. Those who settled about the falls and easterly therefrom were mostly of the Yankee type, firm believers in popular government and democratic in their political views.

In the beginning of the year 1790, the subject of the organization of the town was much agitated, it being deemed desirable and important on many accounts. To effect this result, the following warning was issued, which may be found recorded in the first volume and first page of the town records:—

“Whereas, Application has been made to me by a number of the inhabitants of the Township of Swanton to warn a Town Meeting; These are, therefore, to warn those of said town who have a right by law to vote in Town Meeting to meet at the dwelling-house of Jonathan Butterfield, in said Swanton, on the 23d of inst. March, at 10 o'clock in the morning, then and there first to choose a moderator to govern said meeting; secondly, to choose a town clerk and all other officers necessary for the ensuing year as the law directs.

“Dated at Georgia, this fifth day of March, A. D., 1790.

“DANIEL STANNARD, Justice of the Peace.”

The meeting was held, pursuant to the said warning, when Jonathan Butterfield was chosen moderator; Thomas Butterfield, town clerk; John Aseltine, constable; Conrad Aseltine, John Knox, and Jonathan Butterfield, selectmen. The first justice of the peace was Thomas Butterfield, chosen in 1788. The first representative, Daniel Stannard, in 1790. The first grist-mill at the falls was erected by Ira Allen, in 1791. It stood directly below and on the opposite side of the bridge from the present large grist-mill. About the year 1804, or '05, another grist-mill was built, by Isaac Hull, on the west side of the river, a few rods below Ballard's wagon shop. This mill was carried off by a flood, about the year 1813. The first to keep goods for sale at the falls was Alexander Ferguson, who commenced business in the latter part of the year 1800, at his residence, a small framed house near the hollow east of the village. John Brown located as a merchant at East Swanton, in 1800, and Ora Willard, at Swanton Center in 1812. The first house for the accommodation of travelers was kept by Asa Holgate, at the falls, and stood where L. Laselle now resides. It was opened for the reception of guests in 1793. His barn, it is said, stood not far from the center of the present park at the village.

During the war of 1812, Swanton did her full share in sustaining the American cause. The following is a list of volunteers who served in the battle of Plattsburgh: Amasa J. Brown, captain; Enos E. Brown, L. Barnes, Oliver Potter, Leonard Cummings, Jeremiah Potter, John Denio, Burton Freeman, George W. Foster, and Jules Keep, privates. When the war of the Union came upon us, Swanton was the first of the county to come to the rescue. With a few others of the State this town had kept alive the military spirit of the people of earlier days, and the Rebellion found the "Green Mountain Guards" an independent company, well organized and disciplined for the contest. Two hundred and eighty-seven recruits were sent from the town, thirteen of whom were killed in battle, twenty-eight died of wounds and disease, thirty-four were discharged for wounds, disabilities, etc., six (officers) resigned, fourteen re-enlisted, twenty-eight deserted, eight were not fully accounted for, twenty-two were not accounted for at all, and 131 were mustered out of service.

In memory of the soldiers from Swanton who laid down their lives in this great civil war, the town, in accordance with the decision of a large majority of voters, has erected a beautiful monument, at a cost of $2,000.00. The original appropriation was $1,500.00, and Hon. William H. Blake, one of the selectmen, was authorized to make the purchase. A committee, consisting of Dr. G. M. Hall, Hon. William H. Blake, and C. W. Rich, was appointed by the town to accept and locate the monument, and the site selected was the park at Swanton village. The monument was placed in position during the autumn of 1868. The design is a Grecian figure representing the Goddess of Liberty, the style of the dress being also Grecian. She stands in a contemplative mood, her countenance representing an expression subdued and sad, yet at the same time one of exultation over the great results of the sacrifice to Liberty. The base upon which the whole rests is a large block of marble taken from the quarries of Messrs. Fisk, of Isle La Motte, and dressed with great care; it is five feet six inches square, and two feet six inches high. Upon this base rests the sub-base, a stone taken from the same quarry and made more ornamental, and upon the sub-base rests the die. The sub-base is four feet six inches square, and eighteen inches high. The die was taken from the Isle La Motte polishing marble quarry, and is highly wrought and elaborately finished; it measures two feet eight inches on either face, and is four feet high. Upon the sides of the die facing the north, south, and east, are sculptured the names of the twenty-nine resident soldiers from Swanton who died in the service of the United States. Their names appear according to rank, also the number of the regiment in which they were serving at the time of their death, whether killed upon the battle-field or died of wounds, or disease in hospital or otherwise, together with the name of the battle-field or hospital, and the date of their death. On the west face of the die is the following inscription:—

“ERECTED BY THE TOWN OF SWANTON, IN MEMORY OF HER PATRIOT SOLDIERS WHO FELL IN THE WAR OF THE REBELLION.”

Upon the die rests the cap, or capital, wrought in Grecian moulding, and is one foot thick, surmounted by the figure. The statue is of pure white marble, from the Rutland quarries, and was sculptured by Daniel J. Perry, a young man of Swanton. The whole height of the monument is twenty feet.

Conrad Aseltine, one of the first settlers west of the falls, came here with his three sons, from Claverack, N. Y., in 1788. He returned the same year, leaving one son behind, and the next year, 1789, moved his family to the town, coming from Whitehall to Maquam bay on the ice, and located on what is now the Barney farm, on the river. He removed the same year to the place now occupied by Truman E. Mead. He was the father of eight children, Isaac, John, Henry, Peter, Andrew, Jane (Mrs. Matthew Lampman), Lydia (Mrs. Andrew Decker), and Margaret (Mrs. William Emery). Henry died in December, 1814, aged forty-three years. Henry, Jr., born in this town, followed the occupation of a blacksmith for many years, but about 1860, he engaged in farming, and about ten years ago sold his farm and retired. Oliver Potter was among the early settlers on the west side of the river at the falls, coming here in 1803. He was born March 7, 1781, and died at Swanton, August 19, 1861. Soon after coming here he bought a saw-mill of Seth Warner, at the west end of the dam, July 26, 1804. He carried on the lumber business, giving to it his personal supervision most of the time until September, 1826, when he sold his mill to Dr. Jonathan Berry, and retired to his farm near Maquam, about three miles southwest of the falls. Late in life, however, he removed to another farm, about a mile west of the falls, now owned by Enos Aseltine. Mr. Potter married Sophia Davis, and had a family of seven children, David, John, Augustus, Miranda, Matilda, Noel and Allen, all of whom are now living.

In 1849, he built the house now occupied by his widow, on Grand Avenue. He died April 20, 1874. His children were Alanson, Louise, Hiram, Daniel, George W., and Hiram, the former of that name having died at the age of three years. He built the house now occupied by his grandson, Horatio, in 1807, and in which he died, in 1841, aged eighty-one years. Brown Robinson, son of Stephen, was also born in this house. He was a justice of the peace a long time, and died in 1862, aged sixty-three years.

(GEO. W. SQUIER'S STORE, GRAND AVE. COR. CANADA ST.)

George Watson Squier, proprietor of the store represented in the above cut, is a son of the late Rev. E. H. Squier, a Congregational clergyman, who graduated from Middlebury College in 1838, and Andover Seminary in 1843. He married Maria E. Watson, of Benson, Vt., June 23, 1844, and preached in several towns in Vermont until 1867, when he removed to Scipio, Cayuga county, N. Y., and died while pastor of the Presbyterian church of that place, March 4, 1870, and was buried at Rutland, Vt. George W. Squier was born at Hartland, Vt., April 19, 1848, and is the oldest of three children. His brother, Eben H., died at Edgerton, Colorado, June 20, 1878, aged twenty-three years, and was buried at Colorado Springs. His sister, Ellen M., married Gordon C. Adams, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and died April 4, 1882, aged thirty years, and was buried in Greenwood Cemetery. Mr. Squier married Fannie E. Dorman, October 10, 1875, and has one child, James Orrin, born July 3, 1878. He came to this town in the spring of 1862, for the purpose of attending school, and being left to his own resources at the age of fifteen years, he entered the employ of J. W. & O. Dorman, in the autumn of 1862, and in the autumn of 1868, he was admitted as a partner, under the style of Gould & Squier, the Messrs. Dormans retiring. The new firm did a successful business for two years, or until J. W. & O. Dorman built this new block; a new partnership was then formed, under the style of Dorman, Gould & Co., September 1, 1870, Mr. Squier being a junior partner until the autumn of 1872, when Gould & Squier again assumed control, the other partners retiring. This style continued until September 1, 1875, when Mr. Squier assumed full control, buying out Mr. Gould.

Elisha Barney came to Swanton in the autumn of 1798, and in February, 1799, purchased, in company with his brother Rufus, of Bennington, Vt., a tract of land and mill privilege where the village now is, and commenced the manufacture of iron. This manufacture was continued by the family many years, but Rufus never resided here, and only retained an interest in the concern until 1803. The business was discontinued in 1868. Elisha was the father of George Barney, one of the present prominent men of Swanton. He was born in Taunton, Mass., July 17, 1776, and was united in marriage with Mehitable Leonard, daughter of Rufus Leonard, of Taunton, May 15, 1795. The fruit of this union was seven children, three dying in childhood, as follows: Eveline, Seth W., and James Alanson. The remaining daughter married Robert Foster, July 22, 1818. Her death occurred January 19, 1835. Elisha died November 1, 1837. His wife survived him until June 5, 1871, aged ninety-five years. In 1839, he commenced the business of selling goods, in connection with the manufacture of marble. In 1853, he bought out the firm of J. & W. H. Blake, and continued to sell goods about one year, when William H. Blake became his partner, the firm name being Blake & Barney, continuing the sale of goods with the marble business. This firm continued to do business about three years, since which time neither of them has done anything in the way of selling goods, Mr. Barney confining himself mainly to the marble business, in connection with his son, R. L. Barney. Several brothers of Elisha were among the early citizens of the town, and Swanton owes much of its prosperity to this enterprising family. R. L. Barney, brother of George, at his death, February 26, 1874, bequeathed to the town a sum amounting to $20,000.00. George, in addition to business capabilities of a high order, has much literary ability, as is evinced in his joint authorship, with the late Prof. John B. Perry, of the history of Swanton, one of the best of this class of works we remember to have seen, and to which we are greatly indebted for this sketch of Swanton.

Marshall Nye Beebe, the fourth of a family of fifteen children, was born at Rutland, Vt., April 11, 1800. His father, Guy Beebe, a scion of an old New England family not unknown in the annals of revolutionary fame, was a native of Ludlow, Mass., and located at Rutland in 1775. During the war of 1812, he took an active part in the American cause, participating in the battle of Plattsburgh, he being at that time a resident of Milton, Vt. In 1832, he came to this county, locating in Franklin, and remained there until his death. Marshall Nye became a carpenter and joiner, was for many years a successful mechanic, and is now a hale old man residing near his son, A. J. Beebe, of Swanton. On December 22, 1834, he was united in marriage with Rebecca Ricard, daughter of John and Caroline Ricard, the union being blessed with a family of nine children, as follows: Allan L., born in December, 1835, died in infancy; Andrew Jackson, born August 23, 1837, of whom more will be said further on; George Allison, born August 8, 1839, followed farming and mercantile pursuits until the breaking out of the late war, when he enlisted, served with honor, was commissioned captain of Co. F, 9th Vt. Vols., June 25, 1862, and died soon after of chronic diarrhoea; Guy Anson, born September 5, 1841, is now a prominent lumber manufacturer and dealer in timber-land, at Fitzwilliam, N. H.; Ezra H., born October 17, 1842, is engaged as salesman in a clothing house and dealing in produce at Swanton; Elwin M., born May 16, 1845, died in infancy; Ethel C., born August 31, 1847, is a prominent physician and surgeon of Oconto, Wis.; Gaylord Warren, born October 20, 1850, is cashier of the National Union Bank of Swanton; and Carrie J., the only daughter, born April 20, 1852, became the wife of Nelson Beckwith, of New Hampshire, and died June 24, 1875.

Andrew Jackson Beebe was born in Highgate, August 23, 1837. When four years of age, his father located on a ten-acre farm in Highgate, on the road leading from the Daniel Watson farm to the old furnace, where he resided until the death of his wife, in 1862, when he sold the place, removed to Canada, and in 1868, returned to Vermont, and took up his residence near Andrew. In early life, young Beebe was his mother's chief help in household duties, and in caring for his younger brothers, and later, in assisting his father about his ten-acre farm, while as much of his time as could be spared from these duties was occupied in working for the neighboring farmers, and in attending the district school. At the age of fifteen years he commenced to work with his father at the carpenter's trade; at seventeen he worked land on shares, and at the age of eighteen he went to Burlington, where he entered the employ of Morillo Noyes, as clerk in his wholesale peddler's supply store, agreeing to work for Mr. Noyes the first two years for the same that Mr. Noyes had received for his first two year's clerkship. Young Beebe's surprise may be imagined when Mr. Noyes informed him that the salary was $30.00 for the first year, and $50.00 for the second, including board and washing. But his word had been given, and there was no withdrawing. By the exercise of the most rigid economy, he was enabled to get through the two years without getting into debt, proving in the end an excellent school for him. He remained with Mr. Noyes five years, and at the end of that time, having gained much valuable experience and a few hundred dollars in money, was offered an interest in the business; but declining the offer, he returned to Swanton, in 1863, and purchased a few acres of land. He then bought a peddler's cart, supplied himself with a peddler's outfit, and commenced trading about the county for sheep, oxen, pelts, etc., which he sold, and with the profits thereon purchased more land, which he has added to from time to time, until he now has four farms, aggregating 500 acres, stocked with some of the finest bred horses and cattle in the county. His home farm and buildings are represented in a view on another page. On September 4, 1872, Mr. Beebe was united in matrimony with Miss Addie L. Marvin, eldest daughter of T. B. and Samantha (Meigs) Marvin, and they now have a family of five children, as follows: Rigney D. M., born March 26, 1874; Murray A. J., born December 10, 1876; Lura H., born October 11, 1877; Linda J., born August 24, 1879; and A. Winnona, born August 23, 1881. Mr. Beebe has cleared about 250 acres of his farms, and has about 100 acres more partially cleared, which together with the old land, gives him ample field for cropping and grazing. Among his commodious farm buildings is an extensive barn, nearly completed, which is a model stock barn in all respects. He has given much attention to growing improved stock, especially horses of the Morgan breed, having an excellent stud now on his farm. Mr. Beebe is known as an industrious, hard-working farmer, possessed of excellent ability. He believes in making two blades of grass grow where one grew before, and of raising valuable animals rather than cheap, ordinary stock.

The First Baptist Church, located in the eastern part of the town, was organized by Rev. William A. Marsh, with eleven members, in 1796. The society now has sixty-five members, with Rev. G. W. Wilkins, pastor. Their first house of worship was a Union church, which was superseded by the present structure in 1850. It is a comfortable building, capable of seating 200 persons, and valued at $3,000.00.

The Congregational Church, located at Swanton village, was organized by Rev. Mr. Huntington, with ten members, January 4, 1801, the first pastor being Rev. Eben H. Dorman. The first building was a wood structure, erected in 1816, at the Center; the present brick house, built in 1824, will accommodate 350 persons, and is valued, including grounds, at $10,000.00. The society has 171 members, with Rev. J. H. Babbitt, pastor.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, located at Swanton village, was organized by Rev. Almon Dunbar, with five members, in 1816. Their first church was the building now owned by the Congregational society. Their present building, a commodious structure capable of accommodating 400 persons, was commenced in 1847, and completed the following year. The society now has 170 members, with Rev. Mr. Boutwell, pastor.

The Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, located at Swanton Falls, was organized by Rev. J. B. Pitman, with seven members, November 3, 1867. Their building was erected the year previous, a small building capable of accommodating 200 persons, and valued at $3,000.00. The society has forty members, with Rev. Thomas Burgess, of St. Albans, rector.

GAZETTEER OF TOWNS.

GRAND ISLE COUNTY.

ALKBURGH, the northwestern town of the State, is a narrow neck of land extending south from the Province line into Lake Champlain, having a width of about six miles at the northern line, and a length of ten miles, lying in lat. $45^{\circ} 0'$ and long. $3^{\circ} 42'$, bounded north by Canada, and east, south, and west by the waters of the lake. It was granted by Vermont, February 23, 1781, to Ira Allen and sixty-four others, as a tract to contain an area of 23,040 acres. Nearly fifty years previous to this, however, the land had been granted by the French Crown, and a settlement made by the French, at Wind Mill Point, in the western part of the town, as early as 1731. This settlement was made under a charter issued to "Senior Francois Foucault, counselor to the supreme council of Quebec, and principal scrivener to the Marine, which was confirmed by another charter, bearing date April 3, 1733, ratified by his Majesty the King of France, April 6, 1734. In May, 1743, this charter was renewed and augmented, in which charter of confirmation it is recited, that Foucault had complied with the conditions of the original grant, by establishing three new settlers, in addition to eight who had settled the previous year—that he built in that year, 1731, a wind-mill of stone masonry, which cost near 4,000 livres, and had taken steps to build a church, 20 by 24 feet, which was to be ready to receive a missionary the next spring, to whom a lot of land was conveyed, free of charge, of two acres in front by forty acres in depth, to serve for the building of a church, a parochial house and burying-ground, and for the maintenance of the missionary, which donation was accepted by the Bishop of Quebec. This charter of concession granted to the said Foucault, was for two leagues in length upon the River Chambly; and in its renewal the lands of the original grant were included, and an augmentation of one league in front, by the same in depth, to be taken at the end of the said two leagues, going up the said River Chambly. In view of the improvements set forth in the petition of the said Foucault, to which reference is made in the said grant, and also efforts to induce settlers to enter upon these lands, the farther augmentation above named was made in the year 1743, of a neck of land or peninsula of about two leagues in front, joining the concession previously made, and going up the said River Chambly to the point called 'Point du Detour,' the southern extremeity of Alburgh, known as the 'Point of the tongue,' which said extent of land had been granted to Mr. De L'Isle who relinquished the same at the same time, on account of the bad quality of the land; part of which, the petitioner states, is fit for cultivation, and which the petitioner could give to some laborious young men—all the remainder being without any depth, and full of large stones and rocks. This grant or concession was signed jointly by Charles Marquis DeBeauharnois, and Gilles Hocquart, who declare therein, that they have full power and virtue thus to do by his Majesty."

Aside from the grants thus made, the territory was claimed at different periods by New York, and by the St. Francis Indians, of Canada. These numerous claims led, as a matter of course, to much litigation and trouble, it having been said that there is not a single lot of land in the town over whose title there has not been a law-suit. Sen. Foucault transferred his grant to Gen. Frederick Haldimand, who was Governor of Canada from 1778, to 1784, and Haldimand subsequently conveyed the same to Henry Caldwell, of Belmont, near Quebec. Caldwell caused the outlines of the town to be surveyed and lotted on the lake shore. The title of Henry Caldwell descended to John Caldwell, his son. It was afterwards purchased from John Caldwell by Heman Allen, of Highgate. The Vermont charter to Ira Allen, however, stood the test of law, and under it the inhabitants hold their land. The town has also had several different names, among which are Point Algonquin, Point Du Detour, and Point Detourrer, by the French. The latter name being translated means "turn about," so named probably by some footman who, having reached the southern extremity of the peninsula, was obliged to turn about on account of the water. It has also borne the names Missisco Tongue, Missisco Leg, Caldwell's Upper Manor, and, finally, Alburgh, from a corruption of Allenburgh.

The surface of the territory is nearly level, there being no hills of any great altitude, and consequently no streams of importance. For the latter reason, no mechanical or industrial enterprises of any magnitude have been attempted. Near the center of the southern portion of the town there is a swamp, nearly three miles long by a half mile in width, and in the northern part of the town there extends from Canada another swamp, called Mad Creek Marsh, having a width of nearly half a mile, and a length in the town of nearly four and one-half miles. The soil, with the exception of these marshes, is mostly susceptible of cultivation, and some of the fields near the swamps that cannot be plowed make excellent pastures. A large proportion of the soil is a clay loam, and in the northern part of the territory a gravelly formation, both of which are well adapted to the different grains. The timber is that common to the northern towns of the State, though extensive forests are among the things that were.

Geologically, the town overlies an immense bed of Utica slate, the rocks consisting entirely of those incident to this formation. Mineral springs, whose waters contain valuable medicinal qualities, have made the town justly celebrated, and have been resorted to since 1816. The waters of Alburgh Springs arise from an argillo-calcareous slate, are of a milky appearance, strongly impregnated with hydro-sulphuric acid, and said to be highly efficacious in cutaneous diseases. When the C. V. R. R. bridge was erected, indications of coal were found upon the farm of James Bremmer, and in 1881, specimens were found that undoubtedly contained a small per cent of this valuable mineral.

In 1880, Alburgh had a population of 1,614, was divided into ten school districts and contained ten common schools, employing two male and seventeen female teachers, to whom an aggregate salary of $1,103.00 was paid. There were 321 pupils attending common schools, while the entire cost of the schools for the year, ending October 31st, was $1,304.38. P. A. Wheeler was school superintendent.

ALBURGH SPRINGS, a post village located in the northeastern part of the town, received its name from the mineral springs found at that point. It contains two churches (Congregational and Methodist), one store, one blacksmith and carriage shop, a number of fine dwellings and two good hotels.

ALBURGH, (p. o.) a hamlet and station on the Vermont & Canada (C. V.) railroad, located in the northwestern part of the town, contains one church (Methodist), a store, blacksmith shop, and about seven dwellings. Deputy collector N. K. Martin is also located here.

EAST ALBURGH, (p. o.) a hamlet and station on the V. & C. R. R., contains one store, one hotel, and about ten dwellings. One of the U. S. Custom Houses is located here, with Halsey H. Adams, deputy collector of customs.

ALBURGH CENTER, a post village located in the central part of the town, contains one church (Methodist), three small stores, and several dwellings.

The settlement, by the French, at Wind-mill Point, was of short duration. Another was commenced in 1741, only ten years after the first, and that in turn abandoned. About the year 1782, some emigrants from St. Johns made a settlement in the town. They supposed themselves to be in Canada, and were principally British refugees. These were joined by others from different localities, from time to time, until, in 1791, the town had a population of 446. Previous to the year 1792, these settlers were destitute of all civil government, except such as was voluntary. During that year, however, the town was organized, and the first town meeting held, when Thomas Reynolds was chosen clerk; Richard Mott, John Chambers, Joshua Manning, and Jacob Cook, selectmen; Benjamin Marvin, town treasurer; Abel Parr and Joseph Mott, constables; Moses Parr, Joseph Weeks, John Ladue, Ichabod Babcock, and Alexander Griggs, listers; James Sweet and Gabriel Manning, leather sealers; William Brandigo and John Ladue, grand jurors; Richard Mott, Daniel Smith, Stephen Sweet, Sylvester Sweet, Titus Clark, Jacob Babcock, John VanVleet, Alexander Griggs, and Philip Cook, surveyors of highways ; Michael Honsinger, pound keeper ; Jacob Mott, Ichabod Babcoek, Sylvester Sweet, James Fisher, Peter Carrigan, and Frederick Hoxie, fence viewers ; Michael Dual, Daniel Beazal, Joseph Hayden, Peter Truman, Joseph Mott, Conrad Burghardt, and Joseph Sowles, haywards ; Richard Mott, David Staunton, Michael, Dual, John Griggs, Sands Helmes, Timothy Sowles, Abraham Holdbrock, and James Andrews, petit jurors ; Hendrick Miller and Thomas Reynolds, tithingmen ; and Titus Clark, and Timothy Sowles, wardens.

The first birth known to have occurred in the town, was that of Agnes, a daughter of John Gibson, December 15, 1784. The first male child born was William Sowles, in 1788. About the year 1800, Ephraim Mott, aided by some others, built a wind-mill for flouring, on the west shore of the town, about three miles south of the Province line. Previous to this the nearest mills were at Swanton, Plattsburgh, or Champlain and Lacole, in Canada, from ten to twenty-five miles distant. This mill was built of stone, in a circular form, and supplied with one run of stones. It was used for several years, but finally abandoned and fell into ruins. About the year 1830, a steam saw-mill was erected in the western part of the town, near the Province line, by William L. Sowles and William H. Lyman, aided somewhat by the voluntary subscriptions of others. Another was built the same year at the Center, by a company formed for that purpose. After about four years, the one built by Sowles & Lyman. was accidently destroyed by fire. The boiler and engine were afterwards sold and removed to the shore, near the line, and a mill built and operated by a company consisting of Manning, Williams & Gear. It afterwards passed into the hands of Goodenow, Redington & Co., and was removed to Canada. The mill at the Center proved unprofitable, and finally suspended operations.

The first to practice medicine in the town was Doctor Emerson, in 1786. The first school was taught by Reuben Garlic, a Church-of-England deacon, and doctor of medicine, of liberal education. He established a school in the western part of the town in 1789. The planing machine, one of the most useful machines we now have, was invented in this town, by Joseph S. Mott. After much study and patient application, he brought out his model and sent it to Washington to be patented ; but delay ensued, his model was stolen, and he never obtained a patent.

William Bell, one of the early settlers of the town, was born in Ireland, and at the age of eight years he enlisted as a drummer boy in the English army, during the French and Indian war. He also served in the revolution, was captured by the Indians, taken to an island in the St. Lawrence, whence he escaped only by swimming several miles. His son, William, settled here soon after the revolution, and Mr. Bell took up his residence with him, remaining until his death. Orlando Bell, grandson of William, Sr., born here in 1797, is now one of the oldest residents of the town.

Emanuel Honsinger, from Duchess county, N. Y., located at an early day upon the farm now owned by his son, William. It was then in the midst of a forest, not a tree having been felled. He built the house now occupied by William, and he and his wife spent sixty-seven years of their lives therein. Mr. Honsinger attained the age of ninety years, and his wife the great age of ninety-eight years.

George Bremmer, from Scotland, settled near Ticonderaga at an early day. He served in the revolutionary war, was taken prisoner together with his family, by the Indians, and carried to St. Johns, Can., where he died. George, Jr., left St. Johns about the year 1786, and was among the early settlers in Alburgh, locating in the eastern part of the town, where he resided until his death, in 1844, aged seventy-seven years. His son, Thomas, married Catharine Bramer in 1823, located near his father, and died in 1850. George, son of Thomas, now resides here, not far from his grandfather's old homestead.

Duncan McGregor, born at Montreal, December 25, 1781, came to Alburgh the following March with his father, who had been granted five hundred acres of land by the British government, as a reward for faithful services as an officer in the army. At the age of twenty-three years, Duncan located on road 44, upon land now owned by his son, Duncan. Duncan, Sr., served his country at the battle of Plattsburgh, and when offered a pension for the service, proudly declined it. He died in 1877, aged ninety-five years.

Thaddeus Landon immigrated from Connecticut at an early day, making for himself a home in the southern part of South Hero, where he reared a family of twelve children, two of whom, John S., and Jesse, are now living. Edwin, the first son of the latter, located in the eastern part of this town in 1845, where he still resides.

Dwight Darrow was one of the first settlers in the southern part of the town, where Annette and Barton Darrow now reside. He reared a family of eleven children here, and died at an advanced age.

Jesse Brown came to Alburgh at an early day, but upon the final establishment of the Province line, it was found his location was in Canada. William, son of Jesse, came here when quite young, learned the carpenter and joiner trade, and finally located where his son, Philander, now resides. He married Pauline Huxley, reared a family of nine children, and died about the year 1860. His wife survived him until 1878.

Timothy Wheeler, from Grafton, Mass., came to Alburgh in 1783, locating near the Province line. He died here in 1854, aged seventy-three years. Palmer, his son, who is still living, at the age of seventy years, also spent a portion of his life on the farm, which is now owned by Timothy's grandson, Dr. Philander A. Wheeler, of Alburgh Center.

Benjamin Marvin was a soldier in the French and Indian war, and also served as a captain during the revolutionary war. In 1787, he came to this town, locating upon the farm now owned by his grandson, Rev. David Marvin. Benjamin served the town in many positions of trust. His son, Thomas, born on Long Island, in 1773, resided in Alburgh ninety-three years. He was a Methodist minister and preached about forty years, dying in 1869, aged ninety-six years.

Joshua Manning came to Alburgh in 1788, and located upon the farm now owned by his grandson, Allen Manning. He reared a family of ten children, and one of his sons, Harry, had the unusually large family of twenty-six children.

John LaDue, born at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., February 23, 1768, came to Alburgh at the age of twenty-one years, locating on Savage Point, where he kept a hotel for many years. From there he removed to a farm about two miles north, on the western shore, where he died in 1832, aged sixty-five years. William A., his seventh child, has always been a resident of the town, and is now eighty years of age. Abraham, another son, lived on the old homestead eighty-four years, dying in 1881.

Stephen Sweet came to Alburgh in 1790, locating upon a farm in the northern part of the town, where he remained until his death. George, one of his ten children, located near his father and died in 1843. George, a grandson of Stephen, now occupies the old homestead.

Samuel Mott emigrated from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., about the year 1798, and located upon the farm now owned by his grandson, Micajah T., where he reared a family of twelve children. Samuel, Jr., his sixth son, born in 1780, resided in the town from the date of his father's settlement here, until 1854, when he died, aged seventy-five years. Jacob, the fifth child, was a citizen of the town from 1798, until his death. Stephen, the fifth child of Jacob, died in March, 1882, after a long and useful life. Herbert S., a great-grandson of Samuel Sr., now resides on road 3.

Nathan Niles, an old revolutionary soldier, came to Alburgh, from Connecticut, in 1789, and made a settlement in the eastern part of the town, where he resided for a period of nearly fifty years, or until his death, aged seventy-five years. His son, Stephen, located on the same farm, where he died, aged sixty-five years.

Elisha Reynolds, a native of Rhode Island, immigrated to this town from Hoosac, in 1800. He took an active interest in public affairs and served the town in various capacities, dying at an advanced age. His family consisted of three sons and four daughters. The second son, John, born in 1782, located upon the farm now owned by his son, Barber W., and grandson Hardy H., in 1816. He died at the age of sixty-two years.

J. R. Chilton emigrated from England previous to 1800, and located at East Alburgh, where he reared thirteen children, and died about 1850. John Chilton, born August 11, 1799, located on road 44, where his widow now resides, reared a family of five children, and died January 31, 1868.

Josiah Bohannon, from New Hampshire, came here in 1812, and worked at his trade as carpenter and joiner until 1840, constructing many of the old houses now in use. He died in 1840, aged seventy years. Three of his twelve children are now residents of the town.

Clement Eddy came to Alburgh in 1809, and in 1820, purchased a small farm of Louis Sowles, upon which he resided until a short time previous to his death, in 1867, aged eighty-two years.

The Congregational Church of Alburgh, located at Alburgh Springs, was organized by Revs. Simeon Parmalee and E. W. Dorman, with eight members, in 1824. Rev. Chauncey Taylor was the first pastor. The church building, a brick structure capable of seating 200 persons, was erected in 1854, and is now valued, including grounds, at $6,000.00. The society has ninety-one members, with Rev. Richard Hicks, pastor.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, is located at Alburgh, with Rev. David Marvin, pastor. We have failed in getting particulars in regard to this church.

GRAND ISLE, the northern town of the southern island of the county, lies in lat. $44^{\circ} 43'$, and long. $3^{\circ} 42'$, and is surrounded by the waters of Lake Champlain on all sides except the south, where it borders on South Hero. It is about six and one-third miles in length, and varies from a quarter of a mile to four miles in width, containing 10,234 acres,—including Savage Island of 200 acres on the east, and the Two Sisters of about ten acres on the northwest,—of which 7,034 acres are improved land. The charter of the town was granted by Vermont, together with North and South Hero, to Ethan Allen, Samuel Herrick, Joseph Bowker, Ira Allen, Jonas Fay, and 359 others, supposed to have all been veterans of the revolution, October 27, 1779. The grant was given under the name of the Two Heroes, referring to Ethan and Ira Allen, and contained 25,002 acres. Isle La Motte, or Vineyard as it was then called, was intended to have been included in the grant, but by some misunderstanding it was left out. On October 21, 1788, the Two Heroes was divided into North and South Hero, giving to North Hero 6,272 acres; and November 7, 1798, South Hero was again divided, and the northern part named Middle Hero, a name it retained until November 5, 1810, when it was changed to Grand Isle.

In surface, the town is usually level, though it contains some elevations of minor importance, the view afforded from either of which is most beautiful. Nothing is lacking in the scene. On either side are lofty mountains towering into the clouds, while the town itself is washed by the waters of one of the most beautiful lakes in the world, and contains within its own limits, a complete scene of pastoral thrift and comfort, and at some points, wild, romantic solitudes, at others the peaceful sylvan dells so dear to a poetic soul. This wealth of natural beauty attracts many city-tired people during the warm summer months, so that the town has attained some celebrity as a summer resort. The soil is rich and productive, varying in different parts of the territory from marl to clay. Sheep breeding, grain raising and fruit culture, are extensively engaged in by a large majority of the inhabitants, the soil being especially well adapted to the raising of sheep. It is claimed that the disease commonly called "foot-rot," has never been known to exist among these animals here. Fruit culture, too, is conducted as successfully as in any other portion of the State. No streams of importance are found, there being but one, Beaver brook, that furnishes sufficient power for propelling machinery. The timber that originally covered the land has almost entirely disappeared to supply the never ending demand for lumber, that which remains being mostly maple on the uplands, from which sugar is manufactured in considerable quantities, and cedar and hemlock on the low and swamp-land. The geological structure consists of Chazy and Trenton limestone and Utica slate, extending diagonally across the town from north to south, in parallel ranges. The slate vein contains a number of quarries of a good quality, some of which, on Savage Island, are worked to good advantage.

In 1880, Grand Isle had a population of 749, was divided into five school districts, and contained five common schools, employing three male and five female teachers, to whom was paid an aggregate salary of $578.00. There were 136 pupils attending common schools, while the entire cost of the schools for the year, ending October 31st, was $655.16, with S. P. Gordon, superintendent.

GRAND ISLE, a post village located in the eastern part of the town, contains two churches (Methodist and Congregational), a school-house, etc., and about a dozen dwellings.

William Hoag's saw-mill, located on Beaver brook, road 22, was built in 1866, by its present proprietor. Mr. Hoag manufactures about 10,000 feet of lumber and 14,000 shingles per day.

Melvin A. Ladd's grist-mill, located on road 24, was built in 1880. The power is furnished by one of Halladay's wind-mills, giving the mill a capacity for grinding from two to twelve bushels of grain per hour, according to the strength and velocity of the wind.

Proprietors' meetings were held at stated times from 1783, to 1786, when the usual business of such bodies was conducted. John Knickerbocker was the first clerk, and was succeeded by Col. Ebenezer Allen, in 1784. The first deed on their records is one from William Williams to Capt. Jedediah Hyde, of Norwich, Conn., of a lot of land for £12, bearing date January 18, 1783. The first surveys were made in 1783. It is believed that the first settlers were Col. Allen, Lambertin Allen, and Alexander Gordon, about the year 1783, the exact date not being known. From this commencement of the settlement until 1785, the following named persons came here, most of whom had families to accompany them: Cyril Reed, William Hyde, Jonathan Griffith, Uzziel Clark, William Campbell, Jacob Vantyne, Abraham Vantyne, John Minckler, William Hazen, Barnabas Minckler, John Sawyer, Reuben Clapp, John Gibson, and Ephraim Sawyer, Jr. To these, others were added from time to time, so that in 1791, the town had a population of 337. Most of the early settlers located on the lake shore, and very little progress was made in the settlement of the interior of the town for many years. After a long series of efforts had been made to divide the island into two towns, the object was finally accomplished in 1798. The first town meeting was warned by Reuben Clapp, justice of the peace, and was held at the dwelling of Isaac Atkins, March 1, 1799. Reuben Clapp was chosen moderator; James Brown, town clerk and treasurer; John Thomas, first constable; Abel Bristol, Thomas Cooper, Sen., and Reuben Clapp, selectmen; and Thomas Cooper, Sen., James Tobias, and William Hazen, listers. James Tobias, Reuben Clapp, and Jedediah Hyde, Jr., were appointed commissioners to settle the claims of South Hero, and various sums were subsequently voted in liquidation of its demands. It was also voted at this meeting to raise a tax of one per cent on the grand list of the town, the said tax to be payable in wheat at 5s. 6d. per bushel, and corn at 3s. per bushel, for the support of the poor, and other incidental town expenses. It was also voted to build a pound, and the contract for its construction was awarded to Timothy Nightingale and Joseph Merrihew, for $27.50.

The first justice of the peace was Alexander Gordon, chosen in 1786. The first representative, Rev. Asa Lyon, in 1810. In 1810, the first freemen's meeting was held, there being thirty-one votes cast. The first birth was that of Esther, daughter of Lambertin Allen, December 13, 1782. The first death, that of Jesse Tripp, about 1786. The first saw-mill was erected by Enoch Allen, in 1822. Mr. Allen also had a grist-mill in connection, which was built the year previous, and ceased running in 1831. A small forge was erected near the mill in 1827, by Isaac Goodwin, where plows and domestic utensils were cast, it being discontinued in 1838. The first tanner and currier was Lambertin Allen. The first blacksmith was Samuel Davenport. The first carpenter and joiner was Fox Fowler, about the year 1786. The first merchant was John Ferguson, at Ladd's Ferry, in 1792. The first physician was Jacob Roebeck. The first highway was surveyed in 1790, and extended through the island from north to south, and is now known as the Main road. The first tavern was kept by Alexander Gordon, at Ladd's Ferry, which at that time bore Gordon's name. Another tavern was opened a year or two afterwards, by Timothy Nightingale. The first postoffice was established in 1810, and Ephraim Beardsley was the first postmaster.

Ezra Kinney, from Stonington, Conn., came to this town when there were but two houses erected, and made the choice of a home in the southern part of the island, where he remained for a number of years, then removed to the foot of what is now known as Kinney's hill. Two of his family of ten children, Lorenzo D., and Lysander, are now living in the town, the former aged seventy-eight years, and the latter seventy-three years. Reuben S., the only son of Lorenzo D., was born in 1834, and now resides on road 11. Marcus O., the second child of Lysander, born in 1848, married Mary Centre in 1873, and has one child, Clarence. Albert, the third child, born in 1852, is now managing a large stock farm in South Hero.

Grinday Reynolds came to Grand Isle at an early date, and located near the centre of its eastern shore. His first grists were taken to Vergennes, requiring a week for the trip. Of his family of ten children only two are now living, John Reynolds, of Winooski, and Guy, the fifth child, born in 1797, in this town on road 20.

Ephraim Hatch came into the town at an early date, and located in the extreme northern part of the island, where he died in 1831, aged sixty-six years. Abijah B., his eldest son, born in 1799, lived with his father until his marriage with Abigail Lyon, when he removed to a farm south of the center of the town on road 29, and upon which he passed the remainder of his life, dying in 1861. He had a family of eleven children, two of whom, Daniel M., on the old farm, and Oscar E., on road 21, are still living in the town.

Wyman Chamberlain, born in 1772, came into this town at the age of four years. William, his father, was killed in the war of the revolution, at Stillwater, N. Y. Wyman located on the western shore of the town, where he died at the age of sixty-six years. William, the only son of Wyman, born in 1809, now resides on road 11. Lavina, the fourth child of Wyman, born in 1804, married Mosher Hoag in 1830. Their only child living here is Mrs. Hannah Vantine.

Jonathan Griffith, from Danby, Vt., came here in 1786, and located in the southeastern part of the island, where he lived for several years, then removed to the eastern shore of Grand Isle, and finally took up his residence with his son Seth, on road 17, where he died in 1834, aged eighty-six years. Seth, born in 1772, was the first one to locate upon the old farm occupied by him, about 1800. A family of fifteen children have been reared on the place, only one of whom, Mrs. F. R. Griswold, is now a resident of the town. Seth, Jr., born in 1818, on the old homestead, lived there nearly sixty-four years, and died February 14, 1882, leaving a wife and one daughter.

Daniel Samson, from Norwich, Conn., immigrated to this town in 1786, and purchased the land now owned by his grandson, Daniel G. He reared a family of four children, all of whom settled in the town. Reuben, the only son, born in 1794, lived for seventy years on the old homestead, and died in 1865. Daniel G., the only living child of Reuben, born in 1825, has always resided on the old farm.

William Samson, from Norwich, Conn., came here as one of the earliest settlers, and located where Arthur Centre now lives, and died on the farm owned by Mrs. Julia Child, in 1856, aged eighty-seven years. He had a family of eight children, none of whom survived his death. Augustus C., one of his sons, had four children,—Julia, George F., Henry G., and Albert A. He died May 6, 1847.

Willard Gordon, from North Salem, N. H., located in the northern part of the town in 1788. On October 8, 1794, he married Clarissa Armstrong, the first marriage in the town. He died in 1846, aged eighty years. Lucretia, his seventh child, born in 1813, is still a resident of the town, located on road 25, corner 24. Norman, the fourth child, was a resident of the town for sixty-six years. Of his children, but two are now living here. Edward, the third child of Norman, born in 1840, now resides on road 25.

Jedediah Hyde, from Norwich, Conn., settled on road 1, previous to 1788. He was a leader in the affairs of the town for a long time. His family consisted of ten children, six of whom located in this town. Mary, the sixth child, born in 1793, married Daniel Jackson, in 1815. Of their family, two are living.—Julia, the wife of Charles Watkins, in Worcester, Mass., and Dr. A. Henry N. Jackson, a medical graduate of Dartmouth college, a practicing physician here, where he has held the office of town clerk since 1851, and that of postmaster since 1845. George W. Hyde, grandson of Jedediah, and son of Alexander F., born in 1811, is still a resident of the town.

Timothy and Stephen Pearl came from Connecticut, to Pawlet, Vt., and thence to South Hero, in 1785, clearing the land where the South Hero post-office now stands. From there, Timothy removed to the eastern shore of Grand Isle, where he died in 1840, aged eighty-eight years. Wyman W., grandson of Timothy, and son of Stephen, was born in the house now standing on the old farm, which he still occupies.

Wesson Macomber, from Dutchess county, N. Y., came here in 1789, and located in the western part of the town, where his family of three children increased to twelve. They were prominent members of the Friends society, which at that date had a church consisting of a number of families. Wesson died in 1814, at the age of fifty years. Benjamin, the youngest child, born in 1806, is yet living on the old homestead with three of his sons, Joseph F., Samuel M., and Mahlon D. Wesson, the oldest child of Silas, and grandson of Wesson, Sr., was born in 1815, on the farm he now occupies with his son, Abner H.

Daniel Hoag, from Dutchess county, N. Y., came into the town in 1789, and chose a home near Mr. Macomber, where he remained for several years, then removed to the lake shore. Of his family of fourteen children, all but one lived to have a family of their own. Mr. Hoag died in 1809, aged forty-eight years. His wife, Phoebe Mosher, survived his death forty-six years, dying in 1855, aged eighty-seven years. Two sons, Daniel and Seth, reside on the western shore of the town. Wyman C., son of Seth, with a wife and three children, is residing on road 16, and Stephen, born in 1824, lives on road 18, while James W., the youngest son of James, resides in the old farm house, part of which was built previous to 1805. Mercy R., the oldest daughter of James, is now Mrs. William C. Irish, of South Hero.

Warren Corbin, from New York, was one of the first settlers on road 34, where he reared a family of seven children, and died in 1832. One son, Peter, resides in Illinois, aged eighty-four years. David T. Corbin resides in Charleston, S. C., during the winter, and in this town, on road 6, in the summer.

James Tobias came here from Dutchess county, N. Y., in 1791, and located in the western part of the town. Two of his grandsons now reside here.

Joseph Adams came to Grand Isle, from Pawlet, Vt., in 1792, and located on road 3, upon the farm now owned by his granddaughter, Mrs. Rev. Charles Fay. Nathan, his second son, born in 1794, settled on road 2, after his marriage to Catharine Hildreth, in 1827. Their family consisted of three children, one of whom, Josiah H., occupies the old homestead, on road 2.

Andrew Ladd, from Norwich, Conn., came to this town in 1797, and located on road 2, where he purchased a farm of 135 acres, and where the descendants of the family still reside.

James Griswold from Hartford, Conn., came here about the year 1800, and located near the center of the town, upon the farm now owned by his son, Fitch R., where he resided until his death, in 1857, aged seventy-four years. Fitch R. was born in 1820, and now owns the old homestead and also a large stock farm on road 3. Solon S., the third child of D. Edgiston Griswold and grandson of James, is engaged in mercantile pursuits in the only store in the town. Carpenter M., the second son of James, born in 1809, still resides on road 20.

Dorastus Center, born at Sunderland, Vt., in 1784, came to this town about 1805, and after laboring in the forests for several years, accumulated sufficient means to purchase a lot of sixty-four acres of land. To this he added from time to time, until at his death, in 1864, he owned over 600 acres. Jeremiah, the oldest child, born in 1809, resided on the old homestead most of his life. William H., the youngest of his four children, born in 1855, now occupies the old farm.

John Chamberlin, from Massachusetts, came here in 1806, locating on road 4, upon the farm where his son, John A. was born. John died in 1873, aged eighty-nine years. He had a family of two children, Eliza, now Mrs. Hyde, of Chazy, N. Y., and John A., born in 1818, who now occupies the old homestead.

The Congregational Church of South Hero and Grand Isle was organized in conjunction with that of South Hero in 1795, and was then called "The Congregational Church of South Hero." The original membership of the society consisted of seven persons, which number was not materially increased until about 1840. Rev. Asa Lyon was the first pastor, though he was never regularly installed. Rev. Orville G. Wheeler became pastor of the church in April, 1840, and was ordained November 5th following. The church building, a brick edifice, was commenced in 1853, and completed the following year, at a cost of over $3,000.00. It was dedicated in September, 1854. Rev. O. G. Wheeler is the present pastor.

The Methodist Episcopal Church of Grand Isle was organized by its first pastor, Rev. William Anson, in July, 1802. The church building was erected in 1822, a wooden structure capable of seating 250 persons, at a cost of $2,000.00. It has been much repaired since, and is now valued at $3,000.00. The society has at present about sixty members, with Rev. D. P. Bragg, pastor.

St. Johns Episcopal Church, a small mission consisting of about twelve communicants, was lately organized by Rev. Charles Fay, of Chicago, who has a summer residence in town. Services are held in the Union church.

ISLE LA MOTTE, an island town of this county, six miles in length by two in breadth, its northern extremity eight miles south from the Canada line, and lying in lat. $44^{\circ} 57'$ and long. $3^{\circ} 41'$, one-half mile west of Alburgh, and one and one-eighth miles east of Chazy, in the State of New York, bounded on all sides by the waters of Lake Champlain, receives its name from a French officer, La Mothe, or La Motte. It was chartered by Vermont to Benjamin Wait and ninety-five associates, October 27, 1779, containing 4,640 acres. On November 1, 1802, its name was changed to Vineyard, and again, November 6, 1830, altered to the original.

The surface of the town is generally rolling, and with the exception of a Marsh near the center of the township, is well adapted to purposes of agriculture. The soil is mostly a clay and loam, though there are some portions that are gravelly, and near the marsh mentioned it is composed of a rich deposit of decayed vegetable matter. Fruit culture thrives in all parts to an unusual degree. The island being so small and possessing no rivers or water-power, it has no manufacturing interests. The territory was originally covered with a fine growth of pine and cedar timber, most of which found its way to the Quebec market, leaving it now almost destitute of timbered land. Geologically, its formation consists principally of Chazy and Trenton limestone, and contains some excellent quarries of Isle La Motte marble, for which the town is quite celebrated. These quarries were the first ever worked in the State, having been opened previous to the revolution. The marble is nearly black, of a compact structure, and susceptible of receiving a good polish. When sawed it makes an excellent marble for floor lining, and specimens of it may be seen in the public edifices and costly mansions of the principal cities of the Union. Associated with this marble there are large and valuable beds of Chazy limestone. The limestone does not possess the jet black color, and is not susceptible of receiving as good a polish as the former, yet is valuable as a building stone from the ease and facility with which it can be quarried and splint into the required dimensions. It is much used for abutments of bridges, large quantities having been used in building the Victoria bridge at Montreal, and the piers of the New York and Brooklyn bridge. Among the principal marble quarries are the Fisk, Hall, Fleury, Hill, and Goodsell & Hayward, the Fisk quarry alone having produced 50,000 feet of marble during the year 1881.

In 1880, Isle La Motte had a population of 504, was divided into two school districts, and contained two common schools, employing one male and three female teachers, to whom was paid an aggregate salary of $300.00. There were 107 pupils attending common school, while the entire cost of the schools for the year, ending October 31st, was $336.50, with H. O. Hill, superintendent.

ISLE LA MOTTE, a small post village, the only one in the town, is located near the center of the island. It contains one church (Methodist), two stores, two blacksmith shops, a Masonic hall, and about twenty dwellings.

As early as 1609, Samuel Champlain visited the lake, and between this time and 1666, a fort was built on the island, and called St. Anne. At the latter date, an expedition of an important character under De Tracy, was fitted out and proceeded from this place against the Mohawk Indians. The fort faced north and west at a point where good calibre could command the passage, and its settlement precedes that of any other part of the State by nearly a century. The French government and the English after them, held it with Alburgh and with North Hero, in which was a block-house, nearly as far south as to include the island, which kept an armed vessel in its view, sustained thus up to nearly 1800.

The proprietors procured a survey and allotment of the town, to be made in 1785, and certified in January, 1786, by John Clark, surveyor. In 1788, William Blanchard, one of the original proprietors, settled on the island, and resided here until his decease. He was a revolutionary soldier, and died in the year 1824. About the same time of his settlement, came also Enoch Hall, with his two sons, Nathaniel and Elihu. Both of these sons raised large families, who, as well as their descendants, have served in various public trusts. Ebenezer Hyde, another of the original proprietors, was the principal actor in procuring the town organization in 1791. His energy and business tact attracted the attention of his fellows, and readily they conferred on him the first office, for which they could give a legal vote, and by which he became the first selectman. Ichabod E. Fisk was also another one of the early settlers, with a large family of sons and daughters. He was a prominent business man, a surveyor, teacher, etc. His descendants still reside here, and occupy places of public trust, with good acceptance. Abram Knapp not only appears among the earliest settlers of the island, but his hardships and sufferings, as such, will scarcely find a parallel, he having been compelled, in order to sustain a large family, to use the buds and tender leaves of the basswood tree to form a mucilage for nourishment, and from the bark fibre to make a sort of cloth for covering and wearing apparel. It is also worthy of note, that, when grain could be had by these early settlers, there were no mills for grinding nearer than Whitehall, over one hundred miles, distant, or Chambly, thirty miles by water and twelve by land, while the mode of conveyance was to paddle their canoe to Whitehall, which was a trip of from two to four weeks, or to proceed in the same manner to St. Johns, and then carry their grain twelve miles by land, on their backs. Indeed, every stratagem was forced upon them, and actually employed, in order to prevent a dissolution of the partnership between soul and body.

In August, 1784, there appeared an advertisement in the Vermont Gazette, warning a meeting of the proprietors to be held at the house of Col. Ebenezer Allen, of the Two Heroes, August 20, 1784. At this meeting, the most important business transacted was as follows:—

“4ly. Voted that each proprietor have the liberty of purchasing four rights if he will settle them by the first day of June, 1785.

"5ly. Voted that the committee appointed to lay out the town into lots make their report by June next.

"6th. Voted to raise a tax of eighteen shillings on each right, to defray the cost of the committee for scaling and tolling the town."

In 1791, the town had a population of forty-seven. The freemen met on the 24th of March of that year, according to a warning published March 11th, at the house of Nathaniel Wales, for the purpose of organizing the town. Abraham Knapp was chosen moderator and town clerk; Ebenezer Hyde, Enoch Hall, and Nathaniel Wales, selectmen; Ebenezer Hyde, treasurer; William Blanchard, constable; Nathaniel Wales, Enoch Hall, and William Blanchard, listers; Ebenezer Hyde, collector; Ichabod Hyde, grand juror; and Joseph Rasey and Gardiner Wait, tythingmen. In the second meeting, held August 16, 1791, it was voted that the selectmen be directed to lay out one road through the island, and two cross-roads, one south and the other north of the marsh; but this was not done until years afterward, the first road being laid out in 1794, from Fisk's quarry near the shore around the island to a point near the southern terminus of the bridge from Isle La Motte to Alburgh. In a town meeting held March 20, 1792, it was voted that the selectmen be a committee to pitch a town plot and burying-ground, and to make a report at the next meeting. The first representative was Nathaniel Wales, chosen in 1791. An amusing anecdote of this election is sometimes related. There being but three voters, they purchased a jug of rum for the occasion, and started for the polls, and of course each became a candidate, receiving at each ballot one vote, till at last, one being on more friendly terms with the jug than the others, and perhaps becoming weary of the repetition of this state of things, or losing all ambition for office, votes for one of the others, Nathaniel Wales, who was duly elected. The first justice was William Utley, chosen in 1792. The first person born on the island was Laura, daughter of William Blanchard, September 7, 1792. The first death was that of a child of Abraham Knapp, previous to 1800. The first school was taught by Ichabod Fisk. In 1802, there was a school kept by John Clark, a State surveyor, in a house near the one now occupied by Amasa L. Holcomb. The first minister who ever preached here was Daniel Brumley, about the year 1800. The first physician was Luther Plympton, about 1800. The first lawyers were Seth Emmons, Solomon Morgan, and Samuel Holton, who practiced from 1800 to 1810.

The settlers who served in the war of the revolution, were Joseph Williams,—who was wounded at the battle of Brandywine, and taken prisoner by the Americans, and after having recovered from his wounds, joined our forces under Gen. Washington, and served during the remainder of the war; was present when Gen. Washington joined the masonic fraternity, he afterwards lived and died upon the island, and was buried with Masonic honors,—William Blanchard, Ezra Pike, Daniel Bixby, Gardner Wait, Elisha E. Reynolds, Nathaniel Hall, William Wilsey, Seth Strong, John Fadden, Henry Scott, and Caleb Hill. In 1812, a requisition was made for a sergeant and six men, a detachment from the militia to enter actual service,—headquarters at Swanton,—to protect the frontier from inroads of the enemy. About twenty volunteered. Those who went and served their term, were Orlin Blanchard, sergeant; privates, Ira Hill, Harry Wait, Minard Hilliard, Conrad Denio, Lewis Gordan, and Amos Holcomb. In 1814, Capt. Pring, a British commander, landed on the western side of the island, erected a battery, mounted six long eighteen-pounder guns, commanding a passage down the lake, and claimed to exercise jurisdiction over the island. From this point the enemy's flotilla started on the early morning of the memorable 11th of September, 1814, and paid their respects to Commodore McDonough, in Plattsburgh Bay. During the late rebellion, Isle LaMotte furnished seventy-three soldiers, all of whom, except four, volunteered. Fourteen were killed in battle, and four died in hospital. Included among the number of enlisted men from this town were three corporals, ten sergeants, two lieutenants, two captains and one surgeon.

Ezra Pike, from Hoosac, N. Y., came to this town at an early date, and resided here until his death, in 1840. His son, Ezra, Jr., was born in 1793. He lived at home with his father until he became of age, then settled on road 4, a little north of the old homestead. Seneca Pike, a grandson of Ezra, still owns the farm his grandfather cleared.

Enoch Hall, one of the first selectmen of the town, came here in 1788, and remained until his death, in 1807, aged seventy-two years. Elihu, his son, succeeded him on the old homestead, and reared a family of twelve children. Carmi, his fifth son, came into possession of the farm after his father, and it is now owned by his sons, Ira A., and Jared P. Carmi took an active part in town affairs, and held most of the offices. He died in 1874, aged seventy years. His son, ransom, occupies a farm adjoining the old place, and is the present town clerk and notary.

Ichabod Fisk came to the island in 1788, and settled in the southern part of the town. His son Samuel succeeded him, and occupied the farm until his death, in 1858. His grandson, Hiram C., now owns the farm and marble quarries thereon, which were opened by Ichabod, and which are kept in successful operation by Nelson W. Fisk, under the the firm name of N. C. Fisk & son.

Jesse Holcomb, born in 1769, came to this town when about twenty-one years of age, and located upon a farm in the eastern part of the island, where four generations of the family have since resided. Mr. Holcomb took an active part in town affairs, and died in 1845, aged seventy-six years. Amasa L., the second of his eight children, born in 1804, has practiced law for the past fifty-four years, and, although he is now seventy-eight years of age, is yet an excellent authority on legal matters.

Cornie Holcomb, brother to Jesse, came here from Connecticut in 1790, and located on the eastern shore of the island, where he resided the remainder of his life. Samuel Holcomb, a third son, lived in Malone, N. Y., for a time, but the largest part of his life was spent here, where he died in 1869, aged seventy years. Cyrus, the only living son, resides on road 14, in the southern part of the town. Ephraim Holcomb, brother of Samuel, came here at the age of eight years, resided here over fifty years, then removed to Canada, and died there in 1871. Eli, the second of his six children, was born in 1817, now resides on road 13, and has never been absent from the town twenty consecutive days in his life.

Caleb Hill, from Granville, N. Y., came to this town January 7, 1802, and located in the northern part. He reared a family of twelve children, all of whom lived to have families of their own. He was shot in his own home, on the evening of August 16, 1814, by some of McDonough's soldiers whom he had reported for unlawful depredations. Ira Hill, his second child, was born August 14, 1793, and is now the oldest resident in the town.

Charles Carron emigrated from France to Montreal, and from there to Isle LaMotte, previous to the war of 1812, and settled on the western shore of the island, about two miles from the northern extremity of the same. He reared a family of three children, of whom Jackson B., the second, born in 1834, is still a resident of the town.

The Methodist Church of Isle LaMotte was organized by the Rev. Mr. Anson about the year 1816. Rev. William Wait was the first pastor. The first house of worship, a stone structure, was built in 1831. In 1847, the wood-work was destroyed by fire and rebuilt during the same year. The building will accommodate 400 persons and is valued at $4,200.00. The society now has about 54 members, with Rev. Chauncey S. Hulbert, pastor.

NORTH HERO, the shire town of the county, lies in lat. $44^{\circ} 51'$, and long. $3^{\circ} 44'$, bounded by the waters of Lake Champlain. The island contains an area of about 6,272 acres, and includes several small adjacent islands, of which Knight's and Buttler's, are the only ones inhabited. It was originally called by the French Isle Longue, and was granted by the governor of Canada, in 1737, to M. Contrecoeur, a captain of Infantry, and, with other grants, was for a long time a subject of dispute between the French and English. On October 27, 1779, however, all the county of Grand Isle, except Alburgh and Isle La Motte, was chartered to Gen. Ethan Allen and Col. Ira Allen with 363 associates. The Allens being heroes of the revolution, the islands were named in their honor—the "Two Heroes." On October 21, 1788, this island was set off as a separate town and named North Hero.

The surface of the territory is very even and level, so that it contains no rivers or water courses of any account, and hence no water-power or manufactories. A long, narrow strip of verdant farming land, some fifteen miles in length, as beautifully located as could possibly be imagined,—a gem in itself, and with a setting composed of the contiguous far-famed lake and mountain scenery, it forms in all a jewel whose loveliness has to be seen to be realized or appreciated. Near the center of the island a bay on the western shore nearly cuts the town in half, it being connected only by a narrow neck of land a few rods in width, and called the "Carrying Place," so named from boats sometimes being carried across it to prevent a longer voyage. During the embargo act of 1807, the place became quite noted, from the fact of smuggling parties taking advantage of the opportunity afforded, and when hard pressed by the government officials, would steer to this place, carry their boats and cargo across to the water on the opposite side, while the larger government craft would be obliged to sail around the island in order to continue the pursuit. On the 27th of March, 1792, at a town meeting, John Martin, Benjamin Butler, and John Hutchins, Jr., were appointed a committee to raise a subscription for building a canal across this Carrying Place, but were unsuccessful, and the project was never carried out. The soil of the territory is principally clay, and yields fine crops of grass and grains, and is also well adapted to fruit growing, though the culture is not carried on as extensively as in Isle La Motte. The timber of the town was originally a dense growth of hardwood, spruce, hemlock, and cedar, though but little is now left. Geologically, the town consists of an immense bed of Utica slate, with the usual modification of shales, etc., attending this formation.

In 1880, North Hero had a population of 637, was divided into four school districts, and contained four common schools, employing two male and six female teachers, to whom was paid an aggregate salary of $625.00. There were 141 pupils attending common school, while the entire cost of the schools for the year, ending October 31st, was $682.16. A. K. Hibbard was superintendent.

NORTH HERO, a post village, (also known as North Island City), beautifully located in the eastern part of the town, on City bay, contains one church, (Methodist), the court-house, the store of Roderic R. Hathaway, and about ten dwellings. The court-house was built in 1825, up to which time courts had been held in the house of Jed P. Ladd. It is built of Isle LaMotte marble, 40 by 50 feet, and two stories in height. The first story is occupied by the family of the deputy jailor, Roderic R. Hathaway, and also contains a debtor's room and dungeon, and the second story contains the court and jury rooms. The town paid $500.00 for the privilege of using the court-room as a place of worship.

LAGRANGE post office is situated in the northern part of the town, at the house of Giles H. Hawrican, being kept for the accommodation of the farmers in that locality.

The settlement of the town was commenced in the winter of 1783, when Enos Wood, Ebenezer Allen, and Alexander Gordon, came to the Two Heroes, traveling across the lake on snow-shoes, and drew cuts for the choice of locating their claims. Wood, being unfortunate, made choice of the south end of North Hero. The other two made their claims on the island south of this.

The 25th of August, of the same year, they brought their families and settled on their land. Mr. Wood and his cousin, Solomon Wood, with their families, were the only residents of the town until the following spring, when a few others settled near them. A small band of hardy pioneers soon settled about, who shared each others sufferings, joys and sorrows, living like members of the same family. The English also had a block-house erected here, at a place called Dutchman's Point, which was garrisoned and not given up until 1796. The settlement or the town, however, was very slow, as at the taking of the first census, in 1791, the reports show it to have had a population of only 125. The town was organized March 17, 1789, the meeting being held at the residence of Benjamin Butler, when Nathan Hazen was chosen moderator; Nathan Hutchins, Jr., town clerk; Nathan Hazen, John Knight, and John Bronson, selectmen; Solomon Wood, Benjamin Butler, and Asahel Trumbull, listers; Enos Wood, constable; John Martin, collector; Nathan Hutchins, Jr., and Ephraim Sawyer, fence viewers; and Nathan Hutchins, Jacob Ball, and Jabez Bronson, surveyors of highways. The first justice of the peace was Nathan Hutchins, Jr., who was also chosen the first representative, in 1791. The first birth was that of Adin, son of Enos Wood, November 4, 1785. Dame Knight, a daughter of John Knight, was the second, November 27, 1786. The first marriage on record was that of John Bronson to Mrs. Elizabeth Bates, January 27, 1787. The first circuit minister was sent here in 1802. The first school was taught by Lois Hazen, in a barn owned by John Knight. The first framed school-house was built in 1803. The first division of the town into school districts was made in 1793, the committee for the same being Nathan Hutchins, Jr., John Martin, Elijah Knowlton, and Enos Wood. The first store was established by Jed P. Ladd, in 1809. The first mail route was established in 1813, with Jed P. Ladd, postmaster. The first hotel was also kept by Mr. Ladd, built in 1803, the building being used for judicial purposes until the court-house was built, in 1825.

At the time of the battle of Plattsburgh, September 11, 1814, a volunteer company was organized here under Joseph Hazen. When the British fleet passed up the lake to meet its assault, the inhabitants who were left in the town, mostly women and children, flocked to the western shore of the southern end of the island to watch its progress and attack, the greatest excitement prevailing among them.

Elisha Hibbard, from Bennington, served through the war of the revolution, and after its close, located in Plattsburgh, where it is said he built the third house. After a time spent there, he removed to this town and located on road 21. He reared a family of three children, of whom Orlin, the only son, born in 1786, came here with his father and continued a resident of the town until his death, in 1869. Elisha, the third child, born in 1813, now resides on road 17.

John Knight, from New Hampshire, came into this town in 1785, and located in the southern part of the island upon the farm now owned by his grandson, Guy R. Knight. John, Jr., born the second year after his father's settlement here, resided on the homestead forty-four years, then removed to the house now occupied by his son, where he resided until his death, in 1878, aged ninety years.

Joseph Hazen came to North Hero, from Connecticut, previous to 1790, with a family of eight children. He settled near the center of the southern portion of the island, upon the farm now owned by his grandson, Uriah H. Hazen. Of his children, six located in the town, while the others removed to Ohio. Solomon and Daniel, sons of Joseph, made settlements on adjoining farms on road 7. They both held positions of trust, and were much respected by their townsmen. Solomon reared a family of eleven children, and Daniel thirteen. Amasa B., Solomon's sixth child, was born in 1809, on the old homestead, and there resided for sixty-six years, then removed to his present home on road 7. Uriah, the youngest son of Joseph, was about four years of age when his father came here, and upon the farm now owned by Uriah H., had resided seventy-nine years, dying in 1869, aged eighty-three years. Uriah H., his youngest son, born in 1845, has always resided on the old farm, and is now one of the largest Spanish Merino sheep breeders in the county. Flavius J., one of the grand-children of Solomon, born in 1830, has always resided on the farm settled by his father, Jesse. Chancey P., another grandson, the only living son of Chauncey, resides on road 7.

Jedediah P. Ladd, born at Franklin, Conn., in 1766, came to North Hero in 1789, and immediately took a leading part in the local government, and at various times during his long life here held town and county offices. He was the first postmaster, and kept the first store and hotel, the latter being managed by him for a period of forty two years, twenty-two of which it was used as a court-house and jail. Mr. Ladd died in 1845, aged seventy-nine years.

Oliver Russell, from Bennington, came here in 1792, and located about half a mile south of the court-house, upon the farm now owned by his grandson, Charles B. His wife made the journey on horse-back, the saddle she used being a present to her when fourteen years of age, and is now in the possession of her grandson. Oliver died in 1814, at the age of forty-three years. William H., his oldest son, born in 1796, died here in 1866. Charles B., second son of William H., born in 1831, has held all the town offices, and, in 1872, represented his town in the legislature. He has always lived on the farm settled by his grandfather.

John Dodds left Ireland about the time of the American Revolution, and after a three year's residence in Scotland, came to America. He first located at Saratoga, and from there removed to this town, where he spent the remainder of his days, dying in 1832, aged sixty-eight years. When he left Ireland he had two children, a boy and a girl. The girl he brought with him, but left the boy with a relative. This boy, James, removed to Scotland, and by some means lost track of his parents, so that they did not hear from him for many years. After diligent search, however, they were at last brought together, and the son finally took up his residence here, where he died, in 1856, aged sixty-eight years. James left a family of six children, of whom John, the eldest, and David, the third, now reside here.

Reuben Hyde was born in Grand Isle in 1792, and removed to North Hero in 1815. He settled in the southern part of the town, upon the farm now occupied by Charles Hyde, where he resided until his death, in 1877, at the age of eighty-four years. He reared a family of eight children, seven of whom are now living.

Joseph Tatro came to North Hero in 1824, and settled in the northern part of the town, where he resided until his death, in 1850, aged seventy-three years. Michael, his third son, commenced work for himself at the age of twelve years, and for some time helped support his father's family. In 1838, he married Lavina Hazen, and bought a farm. He now has a farm of 225 acres, and one of the pleasantest homes in the town. Julius, his only son, lives on the old homestead with his father. Florence, his only daughter, is the wife of W. H. Hyde.

Joel Allen, a native of Massachusetts and a distant relative of Ira and Ethan Allen, came to Grand Isle at an early date, and from there to this town, in 1825, locating upon the farm now owned by his son, Heman W. He resided there until his death, in 1868, at the age of eighty years.

James McBride, from Glasgow, Scotland, entered North Hero in 1841, and a few years afterward located on road 8. Since then he has lived upon farms in different parts of the town, and now owns 500 acres of land. His family consists of five daughters and one son. The latter resides on road 1, and has one son, Walter Raymond.

George Tudhope has been a resident of North Hero since 1858, when he came here from Monroe county, N. Y. He was married in 1859, has a family of six children, and resides on road 7. James, brother to George, came here in 1868.

The Methodist Episcopal Church of North Hero was organized early in the present century. The church building, erected in 1866, is connected with the town hall, both being built under one roof,—the hall occupying the basement,—and cost $4,000.00. The society also owns a parsonage valued at about $1,000.00. The church now has thirty-eight members, with Rev. Geo. F. Buckley, pastor.

SOUTH HERO lies at the southern end of the county, in lat. 44° 38', and long. 3° 44', bounded north by the township of Grand Isle, and on all other sides by the waters of Lake Champlain. It was chartered by Vermont, October 27, 1779, together with North Hero and Grand Isle, to Ethan Allen, Samuel Herrick, and 363 others. That part of the grant which is now North Hero, South Hero, and Grand Isle, was called the "Two Heroes." On October 21, 1788, they were divided into two separate towns, North Hero, and South Hero, and, November 7, 1798, South Hero was again divided, and the north town was called Middle Hero, till November 5, 1810, it took its present name, Grand Isle. The present town of South Hero contains an area of 9,065 acres.

In surface, this town is quite level, containing no elevations of importance, and consequently no rivers or water-courses. It abounds in, and is surrounded by a wealth of natural scenery whose beauty is unsurpassed, and which, together with a most salubrious climate and a number of mineral springs whose waters are impregnated with valuable medicinal qualities, unite to lend an attractiveness that calls many visitors to the town each year. In the northern part of the territory, extending northwest into Grand Isle, there is a low hill, or ridge, of slate rock, which in many places rises above the soil, making the land in that section rather barren. South of this ridge the land is much better, and very productive, the soil being mostly a clay loam, with here and there portions of sand and marl. Fine crops of corn, oats, rye, and buckwheat, are grown, while hay and potatoes yield a fair percentage; but in fruit raising, this is probably the banner town of the State. Apples and grain are the principal exports. The timber, like that of most other towns of the county, has been nearly cleared away, yet there still remains enough remnants to show that the territory was once covered by an immense growth of pine, hemlock, cedar, beech, birch, basswood, elm, and maple. Geologically, the structure of the town is composed of three parallel ranges of rocks extending in a north and south direction. That on the west is a bed of Chazey or Black river limestone, next to which is a Trenton limestone range, and finally, a large deposit of Utica slate.

In 1880, South Hero, had a population of 621, was divided into four school districts, and contained four common schools, employing five female teachers, to whom was paid an aggregate salary of $557.50. There were 167 pupils attending common school, while the entire cost of the schools for the year, ending October 31st, was $630.56. H. W. Conro was superintendent.

KEELER'S BAY, a pleasant little post village located in the northeastern part of the town, on Keeler's Bay, contains one church (Catholic), two stores, and about a dozen dwellings. The inhabitants are an enterprising, stirring people, more so than is sometimes found in much larger villages.

SOUTH HERO, a small post village located near the central part of the town, contains two churches, (Congregational and Methodst), two stores, one hotel, a blacksmith shop, carriage shop, and about a dozen dwellings.

Gabriel Joslyn's steam saw and grist-mill, located on road 11, manufactures several hundred thousand feet of lumber per year, and does custom grinding.

John L. Browe's blacksmith shop, located on road 13, was built in 1875, and has been under Mr. Browe's management since 1879.

James Dougherty's blacksmith and carriage shop, located on road 19, was built by Ralph Stenoir, in 1866.

The first settler in South Hero was Ebenezer Allen, who located in the southern part of the town, August 25, 1783. Ebenezer, though no relative of Ethan, was nearly as noted a character. He was born at Northampton, Mass., October 17, 1743. He married a Miss Richards when he was nineteen or twenty years of age, in Berkshire county, Mass., where his parents had removed. After he had two or three children, he, with Thomas Ashley, a brother-in-law, removed to Poultney, Vt., in 1771, and commenced the first improvements in that town. Here he had a son added to his family, the first child born in Poultney. It was not long before he was appointed a captain in the famous regiment of rangers commanded by Col. Herrick, and soon after removed his family to Tinnouth, where he and Maj. Thomas Rice were appointed delegates to the convention at Dorset, September 25, 1776, which ended, after several adjournments, in declaring Vermont independent. He and Charles Brewster were chosen delegates to the convention at Windsor, in 1777, that formed the first constitution of the State. He was engaged in many skirmishes with the enemy, and signalized himself in the battle of Bennington. At one time during that battle, he with only thirty men, taking the advantage of a natural breast-work of rocks, successfully contended against the main body of Col. Baum's troops of Burgoyne's army, causing great slaughter among them, and a tempoary retreat. In September, 1777, 500 men under Col. Brown were sent from Pawlet to attack Ticonderoga, Mount Defiance, and Mount Hope. The taking of Mount Defiance, defended by 200 British regulars and artillery, was allotted to Capt. Allen, Lieut. Isaac Clark, and forty men. The work was accomplished by surprise, September 18, 1777, not losing a man. He commanded the fort at Vergennes, and rendered many other important services during the war. August 25, 1783, he landed on the south end of South Hero, with his frame for a house and lumber for other buildings, of which he made a raft at Shelburne Point, upon which he took his family. He kept a public house and ferry, and continued his residence here until 1800, when he removed to Burlington, where he died, March 6, 1806, aged sixty-three years. Enos Wood, who settled in North Hero, and Alexander Gordon, who settled in the northern part of this town, came the same day that Allen located here. These were followed by other settlers, so that in 1791, the town had a population of 337.

The first town meeting recorded after North Hero was set off, was held March 10, 1789, when Stephen Pearl was chosen moderator; Ebenezer Allen, town clerk; Alexander Gordon, Ephraim Duel, William Hazen, Stephen Pearl, and Ebenezer Allen, selectmen; Isaac Adams, first constable and collector of taxes; and Reuben Clapp, second constable. The first justice of the peace was Ebenezer Allen, chosen in 1786, he being also chosen the first representative in 1788. June 1, 1789, another town meeting was held, to see if the town would vote to hire a minister of the gospel to preach in town the ensuing year, when it was—“Voted to raise a tax of three pence on a pound, to pay a minister, said tax to be paid to the collector, by the first day of December following, in wheat, at four shillings per bushel, or Indian corn at three shillings.”

At the same town meeting a committee was appointed to lay out two burying-places for the use of the town—one to accommodate the northern, and the other the southern part. At their next March meeting, 1790, after re-electing nearly the same town officers, they voted to raise a tax of 3d. per £, to defray town expenses, and to raise the sum of £60 to pay for preaching, these taxes to be paid in wheat and corn, at 4s. and 3s. per bushel. No mention is made, however, of their subsequently having preached. At a freemen's meeting, in September, 1792, Timothy Allen and Jedediah Hyde were appointed a committee to draft a petition to the general assembly to divide the town. At a town meeting held in March, 1793, a committee was chosen to hire a preacher, consisting of Joseph Phelps, Alpheus Hall, Samuel Mix, and Ebenezer Allen; and “voted to request the committee to hire Rev. Mr. Williams,” and—

“Voted a tax of six pence on the pound, to pay for preaching, one-fourth in cash, and three-fourths in wheat, at four shillings per bushel, and the place for holding their meetings be in the sand-bar district school-house.”

At another meeting, in August of the same year, it was voted to instruct their committee to extend a call to Rev. Mr. Williams to settle with them. No record is made of any report of this committee, however, and Mr. Williams never settled here. The first marriage recorded is that of Howe Graham and Mary Allen, the ceremony being performed by Ebenezer Allen, justice of the peace. In 1788, a year before any town record was made, under the name of South Hero, the next marriage was solemnized by the same justice, and one in 1793, by Stephen Pearl, justice of the peace. The first physician was Dr. Jacob Roebeck. The first brick house was built by Benjamin Landon, and is yet standing.

Among the early settlers were the following ex-soldiers of the revolution: Alpheus Hall, Benjamin Adams, Capt. Thomas Dixon, and John Monte. There were but few, if any, regular soldiers from this town in 1812, except volunteers as occasion called for them during the incursions of the British down the lake. During the late war of the rebellion, the town furnished its full quotas, amounting to upwards of fifty men; five only were drafted, one man paid commutation, and the others furnished substitutes. Several died from disease, a number were killed in battle, and some were severely wounded.

Timothy and Stephen Pearl, from Connecticut, came to this town in 1785. During the first half of the present century, Timothy removed to the northern part of the township, where he died in 1840, aged eighty-eight years. Stephen, his second son, came here with his father and reared a family of ten children, eight of whom settled in the town. He died in 1859, aged seventy-six years.

Warren, his first son, was born in 1822, and is now proprietor of the Iodine Springs House, located on Keeler's bay. The house is one of the largest in the town, and is kept as a summer resort for the accommodation of guests attracted thither by the Iodine Springs, which are located near by.

Here he followed the occupation of a potter until his death, in 1806, aged forty-three years. He reared a family of five children, two of whom are now living. Stephen P., his first son, born in 1792, is now living at the age of ninety years. He reared a family of ten children, all of whom lived to attain an adult age. Horatio, his sixth son, now resides on road 6, with a family of six children. Stephen P., Jr., his fifth son, born in 1855, resides on road 6, and has a family of six children.

Of his family of eleven children, only one settled in the town. Hezekiah, his tenth son, born in 1816, has always resided on the old homestead.

His family consisted of sixteen children, four of whom settled in the town. It is said that his first grist was taken to Whitehall, a distance of eighty miles. Joseph Mott, from Dutchess county, N. Y., entered Alburgh among the first settlers, and located in the western part of the town, upon the farm now owned by his grandson, Henry G. Mott. He had a family of nine children, one of whom, Joseph, Jr., served in the Revolution. Pheobe, daughter of Joseph, Jr., is now a resident of this town.

Alpheus followed farming here until his death, in 1843, aged eighty-four years. He reared a family of twelve children, of whom the eldest and the youngest are still living, the former at the remarkable age of one hundred years. Lorenzo, his second son, was born in 1793, and always resided in this town, served in the battle of Plattsburgh, and died in 1870, having had a family of four children. Of these, the second, Jerome P., was born in 1826, and is yet a resident of the town.

He reared a family of ten children, two of whom are now living, residents of this town—Jesse, residing on road 18, aged eighty-six years, and John S., residing on the same road at the age of sixty-nine years.

GEORGE W. SQUIER became interested as a partner in a dry goods business in Swanton in 1868, and under various changes continued as such until 1875, when he bought the entire business. Finding that he had not sufficient capital to run the business on the old style of long credit, he launched into a new system, a strict cash business, a great undertaking at that time; but through his energy and pluck he made it a success, and has continued to increase his business, until at the present time he has one of the finest and most varied stocks of general merchandise to be found in this vicinity. The rooms of his store are light and airy, 50 feet front and 80 feet deep, divided in the center by a partition, and connected by swinging glass doors. He has also systemetized his business and divided it into departments. It was a great undertaking to change from an old established credit to a strict cash business in a small country town and a farming community, yet it was successfully done and with an increasing trade which is a great credit to Mr. S. and something that many of his friends and competitors thought could not be done successfully. He is always wide-awake to the change wants of his trade, and always has the best of help in his employ, and draws trade for many miles around. THE VERMONT STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, at Castleton, Rutland county, is one of the most beautifully located in the State. The grounds and buildings are admirably adapted for school purposes. Situated on a slight elevation, at the head of Seminary street, they are at once retired, yet easy of access, airy and healthful. The drainage of the grounds is perfect, the ventilation of the buildings complete, having accommodations for one hundred boarders and two hundred day pupils. (See cut on page 550). The present main building was first opened for the reception of pupils in 1830, by the late Solomon Foote, since which time there have been many changes of able teachers, while many hundred cultured young men and women have gone out from its halls upon a useful life. It became a State normal school in 1867. In 1881, it came under the permanent control of Capt. Abel E. Leavenworth, entering upon a new era of prosperity. Principal Leavenworth was born in Charlotte, Vt., graduated from the University of Vermont, was for eight years principal of Hinesburgh Academy, several years principal of Beeman Academy at New Haven, and while principal of the State Normal School at Randolph, over two hundred graduates were commissioned to teach. His success at Castleton has been very satisfactory. During his first year students came from seven counties. The Maple Tree.

The maple tree looks beautiful,
('Tis useful, all admit.)
How sweet the sugar or the sap
That people get from it
How much of sap's lost every year,
How much of time as well.—
By having wretched wooden pails,
As all the farmer's tell.

One C. C. Post, of Burlington,
(A Science man is he.)
Has a Sap Spout you may affix
To any maple tree ;
It has a Bucket Hanger, too, —
The two combined in one ;
That every farmer ought to see,
And every farmer's son.

This Galvanized Metallic friend
"Eureka" has been styled ;
"I've found it !" sugar makers shout,
And every farmer's child.
For when 't is to a tree affixed
With Post's SAP BUCKET bright,
The maker knows sap will be saved,
And all things will work right.

The Tin Sap Bucket, conical,
Its indented side you'll see—
So made that it will fit the shape
Of any maple tree.
And to its brim with sap 't will fill
Ere any sap runs out ;
It should be sold to sugar makers
This Bucket with the Spout.

To make the thing the more complete
And bring good things about,
A Cover he has now affixed
To Bucket and the Spout.
When to the tree they are applied,
All storm and dirt without,
From sap so very pure you'll see
The nicest sugar out.

I can't describe them as they are
In any verses here,
But much of maple sap they'll save
In each succeeding year.
Go see them, and appreciate.—
Their maker does not boast :
But he'll convince you very soon
That he's a useful Post.

Oh, Sugar Makers, save your sap,
For maple sugar's high ;
Eureka Spout and Hanger have,
This Bucket and Cover try.
Those useful things describe them—
Can sugar makers please, [selves,
Each sugar manufacturer
Should have them for his trees.

THE SUGAR MAKER'S FRIEND !

POST'S EUREKA, THE PERFECT Sap Spout AND Bucket Hanger.

Over 20,000 Maple Sugar Makers have discarded every other kind and have purchased.

Post's Patent Metallic Eureka Sap Spouts and Bucket Hangers.

They are destined to be the universal article of the kind used for the coming century.

Eureka Sap Spout with Post's Patent Indented Conical Sap Bucket and Cover attached.

Their construction is wholly Mechanical, Scientific and Practical, combining Convenience, Simplicity, Durability, and Economy. They are guaranteed to work perfectly and to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded.

Many millions have been sold and not one returned. At least one-fourth more sugar and a better quality is made yearly by their use. They will last for generations, and all points considered, are the CHEAPEST

AND MOST PROFITABLE SAP SPOUTS the Sugar Maker can use.

N. B.—The public are cautioned against the purchase, sale or use of any Sap Spout having fins or flanges and chambers between the same for the free flow of sap, or a bucket hanger detachable, or one permanently attached to a spout.

Buy the EUREKAS and you escape all Infringements.

FRANKLIN SCOTT,
Attorney at Law and Counselor in Patent Causes, ✧ SOLICITOR OF AMERICAN AND FOREIGN PATENTS, ✧
 NORTH BENNINGTON, VT.

AFTER an experience in patent matters extending over a period of twenty years, offers his services to inventors in Franklin and Grand Isle Counties and vicinity, and confidently believes that his facilities for the transaction of patent business in the United States Courts, and in American and Foreign Patent Offices, are unsurpassed by any Patent Agency in New England.

Acting as the Associate Attorney in the United States for the Patent Agency of ROBERTSON, BROOMAN & Co., London, the oldest establishment of the kind in England, I am able to execute on this side of the water all papers necessary to obtain British patents, so that inventors seeking English patents may know, before their British applications are lodged, in what shape their inventions have been presented. The general custom is to turn the whole case over to the English Agents, who handle the matter as they please, without consultation with the inventor,—a practice often prejudicial to the inventor's interest.

Having a complete set of English and United States Patent Reports covering a period from 1617 to date, as well as a good selection of legal and scientific patent authorities, I am able to furnish information of the highest value to the inventor and the litigant. No charge made for preliminary consultation.

The customary charge of $5.00 is made for preliminary searches on inventions.

Fee for obtaining United States patents ranges from $25.00 upwards, according to the complexity of the case.

Where applications are made after a preliminary search, the fee for search will be applied on the regular attorney's fee.

Re-issues, extensions, copyrights, rejected cases and caveats, prosecuted on reasonable terms.

Cost of English patents from $175.00 upwards. This covers English Government fees and all other expenses.

DR. JOHN SHEERAR,

DENTIST

MAIN, CORNER KINCMAN STREET,

ST. ALBANS, VT.

Wife ! since Dr. SHEERAR fitted you with artificial teeth you look as plump and pretty as a girl of twenty ; it makes me think of the old times, and I believe I'll have to court you over again.

Well, Richard, I do feel many years younger ; my breath is sweet and my appetite is improved, and now it is a wonder to me that so many people neglect their teeth, allow them to decay, and then go about annoying people with their impure breath and ill-shaped face, all of which they could easily remedy by the aid of Dr. SHEERAR's services.

LIVELY! INDEPENDENT! AGGRESSIVE!

The Richford Gazette

IS PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, AT RICHFORD, VT., BY

THE GAZETTE PUBLISHING COMPANY,

AT $1 PER YEAR.

THE GAZETTE is bound to no party, clique, or particular interest; it opposes cliques and rings—Republican, Democratic or otherwise; it believes in the truth and tells it, whether it affects high or low, rich or poor; it endeavors always to expose wrong, whether on the bench or off, in railroads or out; it believes in and advocates equal taxation, obedience to laws,—be they good or bad,—temperance in all things, and honesty in local as well as in state and national politics; it is Republican in politics, but its Republicanism is not of the “mossback” order, that believes there is nothing good or pure in politics but that which is contained in the Republican party, as at present constituted.

If you want to read and support a lively, independent and aggressive newspaper, that believes in “stirring the animals up” when circumstances warrant and occasion demands, subscribe for THE GAZETTE.

"Honest Competition the People's Safeguard."

"The Best Goods at the Lowest Prices."

"Quick Sales and Small Profits."

Squier's Cash Store!

GEO. W. SQUIER,

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

SWANTON, VT.

Call on us for Everything. New Goods arriving Daily. Job Lots a Specialty.

TO OUR NUMEROUS FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS!

Reasons why we can sell goods lower than any other concern in the County:

Knowing by past experience that the only true way to do business, where both parties (the buyer and seller) are satisfied, is the cash system, we have adopted it. It is impossible to sell goods cheap when you have to wait for your money, for you are not sure of receiving it all, and have to put an extra charge on those who do pay, to make up for bad debts; but when we receive cash for goods we can buy for cash and sell at the lowest living prices.

Please bear this in mind: By keeping no books and having no bad accounts for my cash customers to pay for, neither for the expense of book-keeping, I shall be enabled to sell you goods at a small margin above cost, as my motto is "Quick sales and small profits and the best goods at the lowest prices!"

Bring along the "Root of all evil" and see how cheap you can buy for cash.

Yours, Respectfully,

GEO. W. SQUIER.

CLASSIFIED BUSINESS DIRECTORY

FRANKLIN AND GRAND ISLE COUNTIES.

EXPLANATION.

The Towns are alphabetically arranged at the end of the line, under the business classifications. The postoffice address of each individual or firm follows after the name. Where no postoffice is given after the name, it signifies that the name of the postoffice and the township is the same. In the villages the name of the street is generally given and precedes that of the postoffice. The names of farmers are omitted in this list, as they can readily be found in the general list, by noting the figures at the end of the line, which indicate the number of acres owned or leased by each. Road numbers signify the same as in the general list.

BLOOD WILL TELL!

AT BEEBE'S RIVERSIDE STOCK FARM

MAY BE FOUND THE FOLLOWING WELL-BRED TROTTING, ROAD AND FARMING ANIMALS:

BEEBE MORGAN, or CAPTAIN and his Brother, GOLD DROP, also VERMONT KNOX, and two Brothers, MOSES and DANIEL WEBSTER, the two latter of which are promising Young Colts.

Captain and Gold Drop were bred from the old Morgan and Blackhawk families, and are good representatives of Justin and Gifford.

Vermont Knox and Brothers were sired by Captain, their dam, QUEEN OF THE HUB, a large, powerful Hambletonian Mare, raised in Boston, when three years old was so promising and fast that her owner was offered $750.00 for a half interest in her. She was sired by old General Knox, whose service was then valued at $100.00, and is now in New York with service valued at $150.00

For Terms, Descriptions and Extended Pedegree of my Horses, address for Catalogue,

A. J. BEEBE, Swanton, Vt.

MY HERD OF JERSEY CATTLE were established fourteen years ago by purchase at Auction Sale of the Keyes property in Highgate; they were from the Imported Stock of the late U. S. Judge, David A. Smalley, of Burlington, Vt. From this Stock and from the progeny of Hon. H. A. Burt's celebrated cow, I have been able to get some first-class grades for dairy purposes. In the future I shall make a specialty of raising pure bloods for the trade.

MY FLOCK OF MERINO SHEEP will be of the Atwood family, bred pure for the last forty years by the Hammonds, of Middlebury, and by S. G. Holyoke, of St. Albans,—the latter of whom stands first in Franklin County, and I believe first in America, as a judge and breeder of Spanish Merinos.

BEEBE'S MORGAN PIG is a cross between the Chester White and Medium Yorkshire, is a pure white, of good size, easily kept, and, for beauty and symmetry of form, cannot be excelled in this County. It may be of interest to know that I have secured five Pigs of H. Livingston from his noted Sow "Caroline," and the same Yorkshire Boar my original Stock is from. The Boar was imported by Mr. Brooks, of Boston, and is now owned by J. W. Dorman.

MY TURKEYS, of the Bronze or Mammoth Variety, were raised by Hon. G. S. Fassett, of Enosburgh. My Gobbler's father weighed FOURTY POUNDS.

OF HENS, I shall keep for layers the Brown Leghorns, and for the table and setters the Light Brahmas.

I am Agent for the LINCOLN PATENT CHANNEL-CAN AND CREAMERY, the very best yet invented for raising cream and making first-class butter. I have used and seen all other kinds. This channel has a cooling capacity of over 230 inches above all other Cans; it saves much ice and labor. When running water can be had at a temperature of 45° to 55°, it will do the work. For fall, winter and early spring setting—say nothing of dog days—it will pay for itself in one season in a large dairy. The temperature is even and steady, and no smoke, no stench from cooking, no freezing and thawing of milk or cream, no wood, but a uniform number one article produced every time.

Send for a Circular and get posted.

SASH, DOORS AND BLINDS.—I expect during another year to have my Factory in full operation in the manufacture of superior Sash, Doors, Blinds, &c., and hope to merit a liberal patronage. The shop will be run by water—not rum.
